LEROY PLOWS TURN THE EARTH.

Horses and men grow fat, their labor is pleasant and easy, and the results of the labor are highly satisfactory, all because the farmer profited by the experience of his well satisfied neighbors and purchased a "Le Roy Plow." The draft is just right. The turn of the mold-board is found only on the "Le Roy" and is just right. If the "Le Roy Plow" is not all right they will not cost you a cent. Sold by James Cunningham & Son, Penn's Grove.

Died With Hydrophobia.

Harry Marshall, a farm hand aged 29, who worked for Albert Sumner, died last Sunday night, after suffering most horribly for two days with hydrophobia. He worked and seemed as well as usual on Thursday. On Friday he took his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Jane D. Megill, to a relative's funeral in Salem. That evening his throat began to swell. He grew gradually worse. Convulsions set in about 11 o'clock on Sunday morning and continued at intervals until he died about 10 o'clock that night.

It took two men all the time to hold him and at times four could hardly manage him, during the convulsions. It was at first thought he had fits and had gone insane. An officer was sent for to take him to the insane ward of the County Almshouse so he could be in a padded cell, but he raved, and in his teeth, and frothed at the mouth so much that he could not be removed and had to be tied to a settee.

When Mr. Sumner left Sunday afternoon he declared the sick man bristled up, frothed at the mouth and barked like a mad dog. He recalled that Mr. Marshall had had his hand scratched nine weeks previous, while getting his own (Marshall's) vicious hog into the pen, after breaking out and running in the swamp some hours, during which it got mad and frothed at the mouth. His hand was swollen and quite sore some days, but not bad enough to stop him from work. Mr. Marshall had told some of his folks that he had been bitten by a mad dog years ago.

Afterwards a tumbler of water and tea were brought to him and he went to raving at the sight of it, which confirmed that the disease was hydrophobia, which word means "water-mad."

He raved viciously and threatened to kill the doctor and others. After the convulsions ceased he would talk sensible and know when the ravings were coming on by telling those present to look out for him. It was the most horrible death one could have and is the first case ever in this region.

The funeral services were held in Emmanuel Church on Wednesday morning, interment in Emmanuel Cemetery. The Jr. Mechanics of which Order he was a member attended the funeral.

Harry Megill was also bitten by the hog at the same time. His wound bled and was dressed by a doctor.

Another Drowning.

While swimming in the river at McCarsen's landing above Penn's Grove late on Monday afternoon Clarence George, aged 19, of Wilmington, was drowned.

George was swimming out to a launch some distance from shore when he became exhausted. Brown and Richmond were in the lead and when they heard cries for help returned to George's aid. They assisted him until his struggles endangered them and compelled them to leave him to save themselves as the tide was bearing them out into the river.

Searching for George continued until dark. On Tuesday Cutter Fedrick found the body while wading in the river for it. This is a second drowning of Wilmington young men in a week.

Rained By Hail.

The heavy dash of wind and rain last Friday night about 10 o'clock was accompanied by hail which fell in Gloucester county and did damages to crops estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000.

In less than half an hour numbers of farms were swept clean of their growing crops. Hundreds of acres of tomatoes, melons and corn. Many farmers suffered heavily through the loss of poultry. The wind storm was especially heavy along Raccoon Creek to Almohesson. Quantities of apples, peaches and plums were blown from trees.

In the fields were dead rabbits that were literally riddled by the hail. Chickens that happened to be roosting in the trees look as though they had been shot, and in one instance a calf that was under a tree has a dozen holes through its body.

The damage by hail began near Repampo and extended about a mile wide and eastward above Swedesboro across Mickleton to near Mantua. A dozen farmers in the region of Repampo will lose $1,000. Among them being Fred Folman, Thomas Hughes, Allen Hurff, William Fendell, Philip and Peter Mulharris, Sommer Leap, Lee Jones, Alfred Greger, George Cheesman and George Hall.

Oscar Stern, of Almohesson estimated his loss at $2500. Probably the heaviest loser is Christian Wolterth, who has three large farms, 600 acres in all, in the vicinity of Wolterth's station, on the Salem branch of the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad. When he learned of his loss he started his men plowing up all his land and went out after seed to replant. He is a large shipper of produce, and has 25,000 empty crates at the station.

Some farmers have been financially ruined and have declared their help.

HAL STONES BY BUSHELS.

Some idea of the fall of hail can be gained when bushels of the "crop destroyers" were shoveled up at Mantua, Almohesson and Clarksville, twelve hours after the storm. On the farm adjoining the Grison farm near Mantua, the hail stones washed down the hillside into a small ravine to a depth of two feet, and on Sunday afternoon they still remained in the gully to a depth of fourteen inches. Harry Noly, of Mantua Grove, drove in to Woodbury at noon on Saturday with the back of his wagon loaded with hail stones ranging in size from a pea to a walnut.

HAL STUCK DELAWARE.

On the road leading from Frederica to Bowers Beach all the young corn and tomatoes were cut in strips and all the growing truck ruined, causing a loss of $10,000. Young peaches were knocked from the trees. Many farmers will be compelled to replant all their crops. The hail stones were as large as pigeon's eggs.

The Good Old Summer Time.

In the good old summer time, when by cycles through the thoroughfares, and farm animals and readers are kept busy, accidents to man and beast are of frequent occurrence. ELLIOT'S Emulsified Oil Liniment is the most serviceable accident and emergency liniment in use. It relieves quickly and heals speedily cuts, contusions, bruises, sprains, etc. You get one-half pint for 25c, and you get your money back if not satisfied. James Sweeten Jr., Union Corner.

An Historical Meeting.

A meeting of the Gloucester county Historical Society will be at Red Bank Battlefield (National Park) on Monday, July 11th.

A business session of the society will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning in the old house which was used as a hospital after the memorable battle, on the banks of the Delaware. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the program of exercises will be of much interest. Rev. John Handy, D. D., of Long Branch, will deliver on address on "The Battle of Red Bank" and Francis B. Lee, of Trenton, will give an address on "The Place of Red Bank in the American Revolution."

This meeting will be held to re-awaken interest in the move permanent preservation of this battlefield which ranks in importance in the Revolutionary history of New Jersey, second only to Trenton and Monmouth.

Some years since the Red Bank field became the property of the United States Government. A care taker was placed in charge of the Whittall House, a mansion famous during the battle. Beyond this the administration of this Federal preserve has been one long story of neglect. No attempt has been made to save a small monument from the hands of vandals, while the Delaware river is sweeping away the remains of fortifications occupied by the Americans in 1777.

Fortunately the Whittall House was saved and remains free from those who usually "improve," or "restore historic mansions."

The Federal care of Red Bank battlefield is a super illustration of the application of the adage "What is everybody's business is nobody's business." Red Bank is a memorial to governmental indifference and neglect.
