

Japanese Adaptability.
The readiness of Japan and China in adapting themselves to Western methods of electrification, says the Railway News, is to-day amply evidenced in the work going on in the large cities of these two countries. Yokohama has the electric tramways, Tokyo, the capital of Japan, has a fine system of electric railways. The railway engineers and directors are Japanese. Shanghai has recently completed a splendid system of tramways, and Hong-Kong has operated street railways for several years with good results. There are many other cities in Japan and China which will undoubtedly follow the example of these cities.

Defined Absent Minded.
Rufus Choate once endeavored to make a witness at an illustration of absent-mindedness. "Wall," said the witness, cautiously, "I should say that a man who thought he'd left his watch to him, 'n' took it out'n his pocket to get it—I should say that that fellow was a little absent-minded."—Everybody's Magazine.

Stop the Clocks.
Bendigo, Australia, has started a reform movement to stop the chiming and striking of all-night public clocks, and striking of the bells of the city. The prima donna passed a sleepless night in Bendigo owing to the din of clocks, and she has threatened never to visit the city again. The complaint has been discussed by the Bendigo City Council, and it was decided to silence the clocks from midnight to 6 a. m.

SHE QUIT.
But It Was a Hard Pull.
It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such condition as it did an Ohio woman. She tells her own story:

"I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it so well I would not, and could not quit drinking it. I was gradually getting worse until finally one time it came over me and I asked myself what the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee?"

"So I thought I would see if I could quit drinking coffee and get some Postum to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions and I want to tell you, that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I had the Postum which I now like better than the old coffee."

"One by one the old troubles left, until now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my work and have done a great deal of it."

STREET CAR RIOTING FATAL IN PHILADELPHIA

Policemen's Quarters Wrecked by Dynamite—Three Boys Killed.

STATE FENCIBLES DISARMED

Police Arrest C. O. Pratt, Leader of the Strikers—30,000 Men Are Anxious to Join the Trolley Employees—No Mail Cars Were Run.

Philadelphia, Pa. — Rioting occurred throughout Philadelphia in connection with the street car strike, and Market street and the other principal business thoroughfares in the heart of the city were the scenes of repeated pitched battles between the police and the strikers and their friends. Three boys were shot and probably fatally injured, and several other persons received less severe wounds. Many arrests were made, and in some instances the prisoners were rescued by the crowd.

In a statement issued the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company says the amount of damage done and the number of assaults committed by mobs was greater than on any previous strike, and that the company was less. A total of 750 cars have been put out of service or demolished. No cars were run from the city to the suburbs, and the company's Richmond or the Second and Wyoming streets cars.

President Kruger informed Postmaster Asahel Smith that the company no longer could insure the safe transportation of mail, although it would continue making every effort in this direction.

The State Fencibles, the military organization composed of veterans of the Spanish War, were utterly routed by the crowd that attacked them when they attempted to go on duty. Many of them were stripped of their uniforms. Their muskets were seized and used as clubs upon them. It was ordered that this order be rescinded.

Inasmuch as in the mail district of Kensington a mob turned a wheel, the center of disturbances late in the day was on Market street, but two blocks from the City Hall and near the Baldwin works, where four blocks north of the headquarters of municipal authority.

An aged man was crushed and killed by a mob in front of the Reading terminal, following an attack upon three cars. Three boys were shot in the Kensington district, one of whom may die. Another man died of heart disease as a result of the strike, making two fatalities.

Following a conference with Governor Stewart in the Union League Mayor Reuben held a consultation with the heads of the various city departments, and it was decided to prepare formal requests for the troops, so that no time need be lost if their presence should be required.

Dynamiting made its appearance in the fight, and fifteen policemen quartered in the barn of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company at Ridge avenue and York street narrowly escaped death. The entire northeast corner of the building was blown away with dynamite. The explosion occurred just as C. O. Pratt was arrested as he was about to address a meeting of carmen in a hall at Ridge avenue and Dauphin street. This building, as well as others in the neighborhood, was shaken by the shock of the explosion. How the dynamite was placed in the car barn is a mystery, the strikers and their friends denying all knowledge and responsibility.

Strike Leader Pratt was released on $3,000 bail. He discontenanced talk of a sympathetic strike, which has been referred to the various bodies of organized labor. Thirty thousand workers are said to have signed a request for the ordering of a sympathetic strike.

HOUSE TO MAKE NO FOOD INQUIRY.
The Senate. It is pointed out that there is no necessity for a committee of the work and the extra expense which would be entailed by permitting bodies to be engaged in the same work. It is also clear that great confusion will result from conflicting reports and the House leaders believe that it is the part of political wisdom to allow the Senate committee to have full charge of the investigation.

"Their plans may be upset, however, by the Democratic insurgent coalition, which seems bent on making political capital out of the high prices."

He also jumps on the shoulders of the timid and causes wild excitement in the drawing rooms. Mrs. Roosevelt made a rule that no visitor would be admitted to White House affairs without being accompanied by one of her monkeys.

Major Charles E. Woodruff, of the Army Medical Corps, has taken sharp issue with certain college theorists who think that the regular army soldier is overfed. Some

More years ago a squad of soldiers was fed on a greatly reduced diet, under the supervision of college professors, to demonstrate his point that people in general could live on much less food than they ordinarily consume. Apparently a satisfactory showing was made, but now Major Woodruff has gathered evidence to show that most of the soldiers suffered severely from the experiment, and that they would have been much more seriously affected had they not obtained, unknown to the professor, extra meals during the test. Major Woodruff wants more food for the army, saying that the United States Army is behind European armies in that matter, and favors an allowance of fifty cents a month for each soldier to buy extra food.

THE STORY OF THE PEANUT SHELLS.
As everyone knows, C. W. Post, of Battle Creek, Michigan, is not only a maker of breakfast foods, but he is a strong individualist, who believes that the trades-unions are a menace to the liberty of the country.

As a result of Post's activities the people now know a whole lot about these organizations: how they are honeycombed with graft, how they obstruct the development of legitimate business, cartload labor out, hold up manufacturers, graft upon their own membership, and rob the public. Naturally Post is hated by the trades-unionists, and intensely.

He employs no union labor, so he can not call out his men, and he defies their efforts at boycotting his products. The latest move of "getting" Post is the widespread publication of the story that a car which was recently wrecked in transmission was found to be loaded with empty peanut shells, which were being shipped from the South to Post's establishment at Battle Creek.

This car was probably originated with President John Fitzgerald, of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who, it is said, stated it publicly, as truth.

Post comes back and gives Fitzgerald the lie direct. He denounces Fitzgerald's statement as a deliberate falsehood, and underhanded, and cowardly attempt to injure his business, having not the slightest basis in fact. As such an effort it must be regarded. It is significant that this statement about "the peanut shells" is being given wide newspaper publicity.

In the "patent insider" of an Eastern country paper I find it, and the inference naturally is that labor-unionists are insidiously spreading this lie.

An institution (or a man) which will resort to moral intimidation and to physical force, that will destroy machinery and burn buildings, that will maim and kill if necessary to effect its ends, naturally would not hesitate to spread falsehood for the same purposes.

We admit Post. While we have no enmity toward labor unions, so long as they are conducted in an honest, "live-and-let-live" kind of a way, we have had enough of the tarred end of the stick to sympathize thoroughly with what he is trying to do. He deserves support. A man like Post can not be killed, even with lies. They are a boomerang every time. Again we know, for hasn't this weapon, every weapon that could be thought of, been used (and not simply by labor unions) to put us out of business, too?

I am going to drink two cups of Postum every morning from this time on, and put myself on a diet of Grape-Nuts, for Post.—Editorial in The American Journal of Commerce.

Not in His Way

Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, the popular writer, was talking about marriage.

"Pretty girl," said Mrs. de la Pasture, "couldn't make a better resolution for 1910 than to marry an old man, no matter what his wealth. She might also resolve not to marry a widower. Widowers are, as you Americans say, so set in their ways."

"They tell about a pretty girl of twenty who married a rich widower of fifty. He was very much a widower. This girl was, in fact, his fourth wife."

"Well, on the return from the honeymoon, the husband, after dinner, took up his hat, overcoat and umbrella."

"The wife, beautiful in a white delicate gown that was no whiter than her shoulders, said: 'Where are you going, dear?' 'He gave her a stern look and answered coldly: 'I am not in the habit of telling my wife where I am going every time I step out of the house.'"

Marriage Statistics.
The vital statistics prepared by City Clerk Entwistle, of Salem, Mass., shows that during 1907 there were 479 marriage licenses issued and 396 solemnized in the city, which is eighteen fewer than the previous year. The oldest bridegroom was sixty-eight and the oldest bride fifty, while the youngest bridegroom was sixteen and the youngest bride fifteen. Seventy-one brides were older than the bridegrooms.

MINNESOTA GAINS BIG RAILWAY SUIT

Great Northern and Chicago Great Western Must Pay Tax.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES IT

Means $800,000 in Arrears and $200,000 Annually For State—Fifty Decisions Handed Down—Complete Victory For the State.

Washington, D. C. — The State of Minnesota won a complete victory over the Great Northern Railway Company and the Chicago Great Western Railway Company when the Supreme Court of the United States affirmed the decision of the State court, holding that the railroads were liable to the four per cent. tax on gross earnings imposed by the terms of the State law.

The Great Northern Railway Company brought suit in the District Court of Ramsey County, Minn., in 1906, to recover $120,000, the difference between the four per cent. claimed by the State and a tax of three per cent. on the gross earnings, which the railroad asserted was all it was liable for.

The case was argued before the Supreme Court on the 10th inst. The railroad asserted that the four per cent. tax on the gross earnings on sixteen branch lines, but excepted from the tax the gross earnings on the branch lines built or owned by the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railroad Company, from which the Great Northern Company leased its lines. The ground for the exception was a provision of the charter of the Minnesota and Pacific Railroad, granted in 1857, and which limited its taxation to three per cent. of gross earnings.

Both sides appealed to the Supreme Court of Minnesota. The State's claim was that the three per cent. gross earnings tax provided for the Minnesota and Pacific Railroad Company had been superseded, and at any rate, that it was personal to that company and could not be transferred, after the adoption of the State Constitution, to any of its successors. The Supreme Court held the increase in taxation to four per cent. was valid as to the Great Northern.

The Chicago Great Western Railway Company held similar exemption under the territorial charter of the United States Supreme Court held in the Great Northern case that the Territorial charter did not exempt it, and decided the suit of the Chicago Great Western on the authority of the Great Northern decision.

The opinion which settled the Minnesota case was one of more than 100 decisions handed down by the Supreme Court. These cases involved the administration of justice as it had appeared in the lower Federal courts and in the States in the Union. Many State laws were declared unconstitutional, but more were upheld. The cases involving, like the Minnesota case, the right of the States to tax were especially numerous and important.

South Carolina and Kansas likewise won victories over the railroads. The Supreme Court sustained the view of the Supreme Court of South Carolina that the law requiring railroads to pay a penalty of $50 for failure to adjust within ninety days claims for loss in motor vehicles, was especially applied only to intra-State traffic. Kansas won its fight with the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company for the installation of separate tracks for the installation of a branch road from Madison, Kan., to the Kansas-Missouri State line. Here the court announced a doctrine that will reach even St. Louis, the event of which passenger train was operated at a loss the railroad was under a duty to perform such service as long as it retained its charter.

St. Paul, Minn.—Speaking of the victory won by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the four per cent. gross earnings tax case, Attorney-General George T. Simpson said:

"This victory means that the State becomes possessed of $800,000 in back taxes as well as an assured annual revenue of $200,000."

"It is the most important litigation the State has ever carried on in office, E. T. Young. The closing arguments were made a few days ago by my assistant, George W. Peterson, and myself."

Logansport, Ind. — The body of John F. Johnson, aged fifty-four, former president of the State National Bank, now defunct, and who served a six-years sentence in the Federal prison at Columbus, was found in the Wabash River here. His watch and jewelry were intact, but only a few cents were found in the pockets. There is little doubt he committed suicide.

Johnson embezzled $350,000 of the money of the bank of which he was president, and since his release from prison had been in the brokerage business.

Washington, D. C. — Another State law that of Arkansas, seeking to impose an incorporation fee on foreign organizations according to the capital stock, was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

He fired the fatal volley just as the policemen entered the attic of the place, where Withers had retreated.

Warship Built Into House.

Timbers of the famous battleship Wellington are being used as supports and rafters in the $200,000 residence of I. N. Phelps Stokes, at Greenwich, Conn. Mr. Stokes, when he bought the timbers in England, was not indulging himself in things historic, although such material in the house will add greatly to its interest. His idea was to get good, strong wood, and the timbers from the Wellington are of oak, which is prized because of its great durability. Most of the timbers will be used as rafters in the great dining room.

In England there are several firms that make a specialty of breaking up old vessels to get teak and other valuable woods.—Popular Mechanics.

Old Country Dance.
The cushion dance was originally an old country dance in triple time, which was introduced into court at the time of Elizabeth. The dance was very simple. A performer took a cushion and then dancing for a few minutes stopped and threw the cushion before one of the spectators. The one so selected had to kneel on the cushion and allow the dancer to kiss her. After which he repeated the dance.

New York Wants Meat.
In an uptown restaurant Tip asked the tall Danish waiter if the boycott on meat was making more people eat vegetables. "We waiters hear and read about the boycotters, but New York people would eat meat if it cost a dollar a pound," said Hans. Tip then asked about meat, and Hans never said a word more.

"These vegetarians all look sickly, and are most cranky. They eat beans baked in pork grease, cabbage cooked with corned beef, spinach, rice, eggs and pies with crust made out of hog's lard and beef lard. One asked me to fill it, and I tried vegetables only for three days. I would sit down and eat all I could hold, and at twice the expense of beef and potatoes, and an hour's work made me weak and as hungry as ever. A waiter can't stand on his feet without meat to eat. Four kinds of vegetables will fill a man up as much as two eggs and some bread."—New York Press.

How to Keep Baby's Skin Clear.
Few parents realize how many estimable lives have been embittered and social and business success prevented by serious skin eruptions which often result from the neglect of minor eruptions in infancy and childhood. With but a little care and the use of the proper emollients, baby's skin and hair may be preserved, purified and beautified, minor eruptions prevented from becoming chronic and torturing, disgusting rashes, itchings, irritations and chafings dispelled.

Old Age Pension.

Ireland, it seems, is to benefit more largely than any other part of the United Kingdom from the old age pension bill. In the first place, such a large proportion of the Irish people live in the country that they live longer than in the towns. And then it is held that it will be much harder to prove that an Irish man or woman has not reached the pensionable age of seventy than it will in the case of the English, Scotch and Welsh. The reason for this is that, until a recent date, there was no compulsory registration of births in Ireland. The old, it is argued, are very apt to exaggerate their age in any case, and when five main until emptied, or until the postman comes again and brings them down by touching another spring.

A Poor Excuse.
The worst thing about a poor excuse is that it seldom serves the purpose for which it was intended.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Largest Thermometer.
The largest thermometer in the world, twenty feet high, with figures big enough to read a block away, was made in Rochester for a Boston druggist. The glass tube was sixteen feet long, and ten tubes were broken in the process of making before a perfect one was secured. The instrument is very accurate, and registers from thirty-five degrees below zero to 115 degrees above.—Optical Journal.

Too Much for His Faith.
"The late Bishop Hare," said a Sioux Falls physician, "used, very reasonably, to impute scepticism to misanthropism."

"He once told me about a Philadelphia business man of sceptical tendencies who said to him: 'My dear Dr. Hare, I do not refuse to believe in the story of the ark. I can accept the ark's enormous size, its odd shape and the vast number of animals it contained. But when I am asked, my dear Doctor, to believe that the children of Israel carried this unwieldy thing for forty years in the wilderness—well, there, I'm bound to say, my faith breaks down.'—Detroit Free Press.
