"For five years, I suffered untold misery from rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $3000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away, so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after a few bottles, the rheumatism, which had been so long and so painful, was soothed away, and I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight had increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."

Las Vegas, meaning "The Meadows," is the county seat of San Miguel county, lies on both sides of the Gallinas river, and, with its suburbs, has about 10,000 inhabitants.

West of the river, the old town has the quaint and picturesque Mexican appearance—adobe houses, narrow, crooked streets, and people and customs handicrafts and occupations; but the plaza and all of the new town, east of the river, constitute a distinctive American city. The streets are wide and well graded, while sidewalks abound, shaded with growing trees. Three parks, filled with grass and trees, add to the beauty and healthfulness of the place. Handsome and well-fitted stores, beautiful residences, and innumerable lawns, set in grass and adorned with shrubbery and flowers, combine to proclaim a cultured community, possessed of all modern comforts and conveniences.

A city hall, three public school buildings, court-house, Masonic temple, opera house, Territorial Normal school and Territorial insane asylum are public buildings, constructed of red and white cut sandstones, unsurpassed in beauty by similar edifices in any town, of equal size, in the States.

There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the expense upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little, injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling symptoms.
