THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 28, 1896

IT seems that the Silver City smelting project is about to be abandoned. The company was incorporated, some three months ago, under the name of Silver City Smelting and Refining Co., with S. E. Bretherton, manager. The capital for the establishment of the plant was held by Dr. Benman, of Silver City, who, a couple of months since, went insane and his conservators do not feel justified in carrying out the proposition, hence all is now at a standstill. Considerable money had already been expended in the way of labor and material in constructing the plant, and quite a large amount of ore and concentrates are already on the ground which must now be reshipped to some other smelter, the shipper bearing the loss.

IT may be that in the humanitarian code the tramp has certain rights which stay-at-home people are bound to respect. In order to live, men must eat, wear clothes and be sheltered from wind and weather. To get these things they must work. Those who are able to work and who will not work and who possibly cannot find work to their hand, must be fed, clothed and protected out of the earnings of honest toilers. Altogether, the thing has become a national nuisance, for the abatement of which what are known as vagrant laws had to be enacted. It is not because of the right of the vagrant to live upon others, but because of compassionate humanity that communities do not permit even the laziest and most worthless creature to starve. When tramps march in battalions through the country, the scope of the laws should be broadened to cover the case of aggravated mendicancy with a punishment suited to the aggravated character of the offense. The tramp who is seized by authority and given bread upon the condition of earning it, soon sickens of work-house diet. Anyway, it is the great problem of the hour.

THE PROBABLE NOMINEE.

The probable presidential nominee of the national prohibition convention, at Pittsburg, is Joshua Levering, a prominent citizen of Baltimore, Md., in which city he was born fifty-one years ago. He is reputed to be a millionaire, and is a member of the firm of E. Levering & Co. The firm does a large importing business in coffee and exports flour and provisions to and from South America, where it has several branch houses. Mr. Levering is one of the foremost Baptist laymen in the United States. For twelve years, he has been president of the Baltimore Young Men's Christian association, and for a longer period superintendent of the flourishing Eutaw Place Baptist Sunday school. He is also president of the house of refuge, vice-president of the Southern Baptist association and of the Baptist publication society, treasurer of the American Baptist education society, president of the board of trustees of the Southern theological seminary, at Louisville, Ky., and a member of the international executive committee of the Young Men's Christian association.

Originally an independent democrat, Mr. Levering became a prohibitionist in 1884, and voted for St. John. He was a delegate to the national convention in 1888 and 1892, and is elected again this year. In 1892, Mr. Levering's name was placed before the convention as a candidate for vice-president. He ran for state comptroller in 1891, and for governor of Maryland in 1895, receiving 7,700 votes,

DECORATION DAY.

As May 30th approaches, again the vision of The Days appears, days of the tented field, the emptied home, the loud alarms, the stilled sobs, the sad, proud smile of valiant love, the furtive tears of hearts that break, the roar of frenzied war, the soldier lying dreamless in the trench, the wail of orphans in the night. Again before the mind pass scenes and memories that still have power to chill the soul with dread, though sweet-browed peace has cast a halo light of half enchantment over horror's face and made the hideous seem the glorious.

We feel again the shudder of the earth beneath the blood-drenched feet of flame-souled men in headlong thousands rushing to the fight to fling down life at honor's high behest, or with fierce fury hold death's self at bay. We hear once more the roar and din of strife, the thunderbolts of hell, the shriek of shells, the moan of trampled heroes; see the fall of men like grain before the reaper, see the flood of new-made rivers sluggish roll to wash away a crime, and re-baptize a nation God-designed for liberty. The days are dark with anguish and dismay, and graves unnamed are numberless as stars, and desolation broods on town and field. But woes have ends as all things, and clear above the bruit of baleful war, when twilight shadows deepen and enshroud what pity shrank to look on, swells the chant, the chant of deep-voiced freedom, and the song sweeps round the world of peace-kissed victory. The dark days are done and the remnant troops march their scarred numbers home—victors! victors! victors! but at a price the running years shall pay till from the sunland to the snows that waste, not man is man in brotherhood.

There in the purple dawning sleep the vales with dew-tipped flowers a-peep, the crystal tide of babbling waters, trill of waking birds, the far, faint murmur of the drowsy kine, making the day-birth musical, and scents of all refreshing health exhale from breast of fecund nature; there the hills repose, their leafy tops unvexed; there rippling fields of plenty smile; there marts of trade, the forge, the shop, the many ways of toil, the fruits of industry, rewards of brain, the gifts of busy art, the deeds of love—thus, thus Peace writes her epic in the hearts of men.

And there, when sun-shot clouds at morning's gate make golden highway to the throne of God, with tattered banners floating to the breeze, with endless ranks unbroken, march the troops that in their country's days of direst need gave death themselves, their souls to glory gave. These are their graves and these our offerings, spring's flowers, glad smiles, and praise, and thanks—no longer tears, but in remembrance pride, songs and rejoicings in memoriam; for they at rest are our defenders still. Their graves, more potent than an armed host, guard peace upon our hilltops and inspire a patriot zeal in every noble breast.

Hood's Is the Best

Medicine all the year around, because it purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, and therefore gives strength to resist bad effects from all blood diseases, Malaria, Pneumopia, Colds, Catarrh, Rheumatism, etc. Serious illness has often been prevented when Hood's Sarsaparilla has been taken in time.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills assist digestion, prevent constipation. 25c.

The people of Hagerman, Chaves county, propose to continue their school by private subscription, the public school fund for that district having been exhausted.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed an exhibit at the World's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other Sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the World's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."

Carpenters and contractors are kept busy, up at Springer, these days, and there is work for more.

It is a fortunate day for a man when he first discovers the value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood-purifier. With this medicine, he knows he has found a remedy upon which he may rely, and that his life-long malady is at last conquered. Has cured others, will cure you.

A new Catholic church will be erected at Clayton, the dimensions being 40x100 feet and two stories high. The structure is to cost something like $10,000.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Diamondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction, she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxisms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." MEMORIAL DAY.

What day itself to us endears?
Memorial day! Memorial day!
What day is this which now appears?
Memorial day! Memorial day!
We look across the gulf of years,
And through a mist of falling tears,
A country stained with blood appears,
Memorial day! Memorial day!

But, God be praised, that time is o'er—
Memorial day! Memorial day!
Now war's red blaze no flame no more—
Memorial day! Memorial day!
All those who toil and danger bore,
And blue and gray so bravely wore,
May now the God of peace adore,
Memorial day! Memorial day!

OLD-TIME RECOLLECTIONS.

Some Troubles Experienced With Indians in New Mexico In Recent Years.

To the Editor of the Optic.

COTOPAXI, Colo., May 24th, 1896—When we bade a temporary adieu to New Mexico last fall, it was with the hope that, for a time at least, we had got rid of the ubiquitous:

"Lo! the poor Indian, whose untutored mind
Sees God in clouds and hears him in the wind!"

Scooped in our ducats, when he raised our blind!

Alas! we were mistaken! On Saturday evening, we were once more confronted by four specimens of our noble red cousins, of the "forest primeval," who had strayed to our quiet village to make "Rome howl" and to give a soul-stirring exhibition of the red man's way of tripping the light fantastic toe, to the dulcet strains hammered out of an old bull hide stretched over an old nail keg, by another red specimen, whose cracked voice added sweet discord to that evoked from the drum.

They called it dancing. Perhaps it was, but there was room, at least, for honest doubt, yet the tenderfoot who saw these monotonous gyrations, and hippity-hop steps of these Indian dancers, seemed charmed with the ricochetty steps and ungraceful poses of these nomads, who were rewarded by an encore, and a few dimes.

These red brethren are members of the Ute tribe, which in its day, cut a prominent figure as raiders and assassins. They seem quiet enough now, save at times when some of them indulge in a little Indian devilry on the side, and in a way to avoid legal punishment.

Seventeen years ago, when a soldier at Ft Union, New Mexico, the Utes were in camp near Cimarron. From this point they were sent to the reservation allotted them in this state, and very soon after their removal, they became sufficiently acclimatized to send old man Meeker, their agent, up the golden stairs, without previous warning also, incidentally to decimate the U. S. army.

The idea somehow came that the thorough thrashing administered to them by Capt. Dodge, of the Ninth U S. cavalry, had civilized these scalawags sufficiently to make them yearn to be an angel; but it didn't. They are the same old sixpences, who would lift a scalp or cut a throat as cheerfully and as neatly as ever, if they could only do so, without getting their necks stretched in due form of law.

Remembering the Utes as they were, a quarter of a century ago, and what they are now, there is but one comforting thought comes to us, and that is, the red man grows beautifully less in numbers as time grows on apace, until, bye and bye, he will, like the buffalo, be but a reminiscence.

The dwellers in New Mexico who came to that favored land during the past ten years can hardly realize that this Territory, now so peaceful and safe, was only twelve years ago the scene of an Indian war, which commencing at the Hot Spring agency, seventy-five miles west of old Fort Craig, late in 1879, continued with but little intermission until 1884. Nor can we old fogies of the early days realize without an effort that the barren plains of the once dreaded Jornada del Muerto, where so many emigrants were butchered by Indians, is now dotted with ranches and several thriving villages, and that every one feels as safe and secure as if the locality was in a New England state, instead of New Mexico, which until the advent of the railroad within its borders in 1879, was practically an unknown country east of the Missouri river, supposed to be fit only to produce cacti, horned toads and rattle snakes.

The origin of the Victoria Indian war is unknown to the general public, it being generally believed that it was due to a natural desire on the Indians' part to kill and steal ad libitum, but the fact is that old Victoria went on the war path, because of indignities heaped upon him by Lieut. Merritt, of the Ninth U. S. cavalry, who happened to be, for a few days, in temporary command of the troops at the Ojo Caliente agency mentioned in this letter. Lieut. Merritt looked often on the "wine when it was red," and he was said to have been comfortably drunk when he had the racket which resulted in Victoria's declaration of hostilities and the butchering of every member of the guard who were out on the open plain near the springs, herding the horses belonging to Capt. Hooker's company and taking every horse, using them as mounts for his warriors.

Later on, Lieut. Merritt was court martialed, and when the sentence of the court was made public, it was found that Lieut. Merritt was dishonorably dismissed from the army. After quitting the army, the disgraced Merritt went to Santa Fe, put up at the leading hotel there, got on a regulation "tear," and then blew out his brains. Had Lieut. Merritt considerately blown out his brains, the day before the debauch which caused Victoria to leave the agency and commence active hostilities, there would have been no Indian war, for Victoria up to that time had always shown a disposition to be friendly and peaceful.

That the war, when once begun, lasted so long, notwithstanding the fact that Victoria never had more than sixty warriors at his disposal, while the regular troops numbered a thousand or more, has always seemed inexplicable to many of New Mexico's residents, as well as to outsiders. The blame for this state of affairs belonged to General Hatch, the then commander of troops in New Mexico, who seemed to have a special talent for keeping his troopers at a safe distance from hostile Indians. The only fight of any importance in which Hatch's troops faced the Indians and came out victors, was the fight in the St. Andres mountains, some twenty miles or so distant from Aleman wells, the old-time home of that noted pioneer, Jack Martin, and in this fight General Hatch was conspicuous by his absence.

Victoria had a supreme contempt for General Hatch and his colored troopers, and it was he who sent word to General Hatch that he would pit his squaws against his, Hatch's, buffalo soldiers any time when called on, feeling assured the squaws would come out victors.

Victoria, it will be remembered, had things his own way, until he crossed over into Old Mexico, and was there promptly corralled, and he and his band killed by Mexican soldiers.

JOHN J. BIPPUS.

A man may dress as well as he can his own good judgement and the assistance of an artistic tailor may elect. He may take his "tubs" but if his digestive organs are out of order, he will have an unwholesome appearance. His complexion and the white of his eyes will have a yellowish cast. His tongue will be coated, appetite poor, his teeth rusty, his breath abominable. He is one big, unmistakable sign of constipation.

The quickest, surest, easiest way is to take Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are made of refined, concentrated vegetable extracts. Nothing in the least harmful enters into their composition. They hunt down all impurities and "make them move on." They are the product of many years' study and practice. Doctor Pierce cannot afford to put forth a worthless article. Send for a free sample.
