Woman Gives Tip On Three Alleged White Slavers

Santa Fe, July 16.—Federal and county authorities have been put upon the track of three alleged white slavers, including a woman, who make their headquarters at Clovis and are charged with enticing high school and other girls into a life of shame by promising big money returns and a life of ease with fine clothes and plenty of good things to eat. An anonymous letter written by a Clovis woman gave the clue to the operations of the trio.

Sheriff Moye of Curry county has also raided speak easies in Texico the past few days, obtaining twenty quarts of whiskey, wine and alcohol from two places, while thirteen quarts were confiscated in the old Deatz bar.

Rounding Up Slackers.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Henry Russell and Jim W. Johnson returned last night from a trip in the Sacramento mountains, having visited Pinon, Queer, Orange and other points in search of "Slackers." They made two arrests, B. W. Wright and J. W. Holley. Wright gave bond and was released, Holley was placed in the county jail at Carlsbad—Roswell News.

"IN SEARCH OF A TOWEL!"

By JOAN COSBY.

Jimmy, blinking and blinded by the shower, reached for a bath towel. His fingers, clutching the first one with which they came in contact, gave it a jerk off the rack, but the towel caught on a faucet of the bathtub, and that had Jimmy known it, settled his fate forever, for his Aunt Brewster had given him the towel and Aunt Brewster was his chief hope for the future.

"D—n it!" said Jimmy. Suddenly the towel, or rather the lace of the towel, let go, and Jimmy didn't. Out he went over the end of the tub.

When the fireworks in Jimmy's head had subsided and he had cautiously tested every bone for breaks, he swore again. "You blankety-blank fool thing, you, with your silly blue roses and lace. Get out of here!" And without any apology to the donor, he hurried the cause of his troubles through the window and reached for another towel.

We'll leave Jimmy to dry and dress and rub his bruises, and follow the per cent. 107 storages report a decrease of 357,733 pounds, or 15.8 per cent, during June, 1916.

Chaves County to Furnish Only 52 Men For Draft

Santa Fe, July 16.—Federal disbursing officer R. C. Reed today announced the apportionment of New Mexico's national draft quota of 2292 among the counties as follows:

Bernalillo	125
Chaves	62
Coffax	192
Curry	54
Dona Ana	63
Grant	218
Guadalupe	74
Lincoln	92
McKinley	1
Mora	152
Otero	48
Quay	89
Rio Arriba	179
Roosevelt	22
Sandoval	71
San Juan	60
San Miguel	213
Santa Fe	47
Sierra	41
Socorro	168
Taos	89
Terrance	69
Union	107
Valencia	110

Eddy and Luna counties having furnished more than the pro rata of men for the regular national guard, their percentage showing is applied to the draft apportionment, which therefore makes no call upon these counties.

Warrants for Slackers

A party who is in a position to know what he is talking about, but whose name is withheld from publication, informed a News reporter today that warrants for a number of persons charged with being "slackers" have arrived in Roswell and are in the hands of the proper officers.—Roswell News.

towel out of the bathroom window on the sixth floor of the apartment hotel. It floated downward—hardly floated, either, for it was as wide and heavy as a rug—but it arrived, at any rate, at a certain point in the street over which a roadster was passing at the instant, and having a penchant for catching on things, it caught on a button of the car's top.

All unconsciously beneath her gay canopy of lace and blue roses sat Eileen Brannon. She saw people stare, laugh and point, but there was nothing wrong that she could see. But in front of "Anna Katherine's Shop" she stopped to investigate. What was attracting such attention? And then she saw the towel spread shamelessly over her natty little car.

"Where did you get that towel so blue? Out of the sky as you came through?"

She turned quickly. "Oh, Charley, isn't it the limit! Where do you suppose it came from? Get it down, will you, and I'll take it into Anna Katherine. These things are in her line and maybe she'll know something about it."

But Anna Katherine didn't except that there were weeks of work on the line.

"Then keep it," offered Eileen. "Maybe some nice old lady will buy it for her college grandson."

In the meantime more things were happening to Jimmy.

The postman brought some letters, and there was one from Aunt Brewster. "I'm starting for Florida," she wrote, "and I'm stopping to see you for a day en route. I forgot to take off the pattern of the lace on that towel I gave you for your birthday. Besides there's something else I want to see you about that I can't explain here. Until Friday then. Affectionately, Aunt B."

"For the love of Peter Jones!" groaned Jimmy. "Can you beat it! Where in this nickel-plated town do you suppose that towel is?"

Then someone rang the bell. It was Charley Boggett, he of the titulating rhyme.

"Hello, Charley, come in. I just need a tonic like you after a bally hood day. Aunt Brewster's coming and as she carries my prospects around in her bank book we'll have to concoct some way to amuse her. Proceed, Charley!"

Charley lit a cigarette. "Poor Jimmy! Well, I've got a story saved up for her that ought to help some." And he told of Eileen and the towel.

"Mine, by Jingoos! Where did you say it is?"

"At a fancy-work shop on Fifth avenue. Come along and I'll show you the place."

But when they reached the shop and inquired for the bath towel they were told that it had just been sold!

"Heavens!" cried Jimmy in dismay. "Who bought it?"

But the girl didn't remember. A lady, she thought.

"We'll get Eileen," suggested Charley. "Maybe she can do something. Women can always think of a way."

So they took a taxi and went to her house. She had just come in and was still dressed for the street. Charley started an introduction, but to his surprise the two were shaking hands.

"You're Jimmy Young, aren't you?" smiled the girl, while Jimmy was saying: "If it isn't my little old playmate, Dot Brannon!"

"We used to play together at Aunt Brewster's," they explained to Charley, quite forgetting to let go hands and looking back at each other with interest that had evidently been compounded rapidly for ten years.

"Aunt Brewster is here!" went on Eileen. "I've just brought her from the station."

"But she was to visit me!" exclaimed Jimmy. "Funny, isn't it!"

"But he doesn't want her since he lost the towel, so it's all right," put in Charley.

"It's all right," said a quiet voice in the doorway. There stood Miss Brewster smiling, the towel in her hand.

"Eileen told me of her find on the way from the station. I was interested, so we drove around to the shop and bought it. I recognized it instantly. But the mystery is cleared up now, and it's all right. The towel has done what I came to New York to do, to bring you and Eileen together again."

"The comedy is ended!" quoted Charley.
