

SEED BED SHOULD BE CAREFULLY PREPARED FOR ROW CROPS

It pays to prepare the seed bed well before planting to row crop. Thorough and careful seed bed preparation not only saves a great deal of time in cultivation after the crop is up, but also insures a larger yield. Larger yields will reduce the cost per bushel, unless this increased yield is produced at too great an expense, and it is largely by keeping cost of production down that profits can be increased.

After the land has been plowed, regardless of whether the plowing has been done in the fall or the spring, the land should be worked down to a fine and firm seed bed with a disc or harrow before planting, says Professor Quesenberry of the New Mexico Agricultural College. Discing has a decided advantage over other implements in packing the soil, breaking many clods, and in case of fall plowing, eliminating the young weeds that have begun to sprout. In the irrigated sections it pays to replot fall plowed land in the spring when the soil is of an adobe nature.

The depth of plowing the land will depend to a considerable extent on the time it is done, the amount of rainfall and other climatic factors, as well as upon the type of soil. Under irrigation, plowing should be deep, especially done in the fall. Heavy adobe soil responds more readily to the deeper plowing than the light soil. Where fall or winter breaking is practical in sections where the blow is bad, the lister is usually used. Under these conditions working down the ridges with the harrow previous to rebreaking in the spring is advisable. It is always desirable to prepare the land in such a way that one has thoroly pulverized, mellow moist soil in which to plant the seed, as the direct contact of the seed with such soil stimulates quick germination and rapid growth of the young plants.

Hon. B. F. Brown, correspondent for the S. A. from the county seat, was nominated for mayor of Mosquero at a mass meeting at that place last week. When we called him Mayor in a write up about the county seat a few weeks ago some of our county seat friends gave us the laugh, but we'll bet Ben is elected mayor with scarcely an opposition vote, and why not, as he has done far more for Mosquero than all the rest of the people of the town combined. Ben's a booster from the word go and he'll see that Mosquero is placed on the map. Here's to B. F. Brown for Mayor of Mosquero.

WARNING

Some miscreant has been hunting deer on my premises and I have found a 5 pt. Buck, dead from wound. I know who is doing this work and I warn you to keep off my premises. I am watching for you and you are due for a good stiff fine when I catch you.

NOTICE

To Members of Legion and Auxiliary

Whereas it is fitting that all American Legion and Auxiliary Posts hold services in honor of Mothers on Sunday May 14th and in as much as the Christian Church have invited such organizations to participate with them in their exercises, I would like very much that every member feel free to be present.

Homer Holmes, Post Commander.

Is everybody thinking of and preparing for memorial day May 30th?

The American Legion earnestly requests all citizens of the community to make every effort to co-operate with them in making the day a success.

Please remember that because of the fact that the American Legion will have charge and that their ceremony is in honor of deceased ex-service men, that it by no means signifies that all others are forgotten. Let us in our hearts, do equal homage to all who have gone before.

Homer Holmes,

"THE ARRIVAL OF KITTY"

WEATHER FORECAST, MAY AND JUNE 1922

May 1st to 7th pleasant just as it has been, since last July 18th to 25th whirlwinds with occasional dust storms; 26th to 31st scattering showers.

June 1st to 8th warm and dry but pleasant as it has been since last July. 9th to 30th different tho, this will be our wet season. Not much wind, but plenty of fog, electric storms, excessive rains, cloudbursts and almost floods in some parts and hail storms in other parts. The old question which has been constantly asked and propounded the past several months will be reversed in June and instead of saying, "when will it rain? We will say, when is it going to stop raining?"

T. H. Polaski, Mills, N. M. Editor Note:—Mr. Polaski, if you could just move that June rain up into May we would appreciate it more. Try and do this if possible.
