A Backwoods View of the Toilet.

A popular Macon Minister recently spent the night thirty miles below Americus with a backwoodsman, whose house consisted of only two rooms. The family, however, consisted of twenty-one, though, owing to a dance in the neighborhood, only seventeen of the children were at home. The minister spent the night with the farmer and seven sons in one room, while the old lady and ten daughters occupied the other. In the morning a junior member of the family, in response to an application for a wash-bowl, brought him an old tin pan, and after the face toilet was completed, hunted up about seven teeth of an old tucking comb for him to arrange his hair with. During the progress of this important ceremony the following conversation took place:
"Mister, do you wash every morning?"
"I do."
"And comb your hair, too?"
"Yes."
"Well, don't it look to you sometimes like you is a heap of trouble to yourself?"—Macon Telegraph.

When a year ago, Chief Victory learned that the Americans had put him in a dime novel, he immediately went on the war path, and is now shedding the blood of the pale faces to wipe out the insult. He didn't mind being robbed by Indian agents, but the dime novel outrage was too much.—Norr. Herald.

Guaymas is said to be very quiet at present. The railroad company purchased a very fine half block for $1,000 coin, and considerable property has changed hands at correspondingly low figures.

On a recent moonlight evening at Narragansett Pier there was only an average of a man and a half to thirteen females, and every female dropped her fan and handkerchief as often as possible.—Free Press.
