

CONFEDERATE'S WOMAN'S BODY IS OFFER SERVICES NOW IN PHOENIX AGAIN

Secretary Dickinson Expresses Sentiments of United States in Letter in Which He Talks Peace.

Washington, March 27.—The administration of the peace intentions of the administration toward all the world and a tribute to the brave and self-sacrificing of the north are the features of a letter addressed by Secretary of War Dickinson, himself a southerner, to an organization of Confederate veterans in Fort Worth, Texas, who offered its services as infantry to "our common country."

The offer came under date of March 15 from "The Fort Worth Confederate Gray." The letter stated that by unanimous vote the organization had directed its officers to tender services "for duty as United States soldiers on the Mexican border or in any other capacity as volunteers in the present crisis involving the welfare of our common country."

"You know what we were in the sixties," the letter concludes, "and we are still bound with the same spirit. We are at peace with all the world," Secretary Dickinson says, "our record in the movement looking toward the maintenance of peace with other nations and the adjustment of international differences by arbitration and similar methods rather than resort to arms, is based upon a fixed policy that will not, I believe, be departed from. For us to become involved in war there would have to be some unjustifiable cause presented upon us by another nation."

The secretary says that even in such an event arbitration undoubtedly would be invoked. The attitude of the president is required to peace movements is such that he will not permit, as far as he can, our government to become involved in hostilities with any other government. The letter continued, "It is unfortunate for our country and for the peace of the world that a disposition is shown by those who are in possession of the general welfare of mankind to stimulate, by false statements and evil suggestions, distrust and prejudice between nations. Such things have in former times brought our wars, but I believe that there is a stronger corrective now in the opinion of such influential men than ever before existed and that they will be impotent now where before they might have been effective."

The letter concluded, "It is unfortunate for our country and for the peace of the world that a disposition is shown by those who are in possession of the general welfare of mankind to stimulate, by false statements and evil suggestions, distrust and prejudice between nations. Such things have in former times brought our wars, but I believe that there is a stronger corrective now in the opinion of such influential men than ever before existed and that they will be impotent now where before they might have been effective."

WOMAN'S BODY IS NOW IN PHOENIX

Grief Stricken Parents of Mrs. Smith Who Was Killed in Stage Coach Accident Are in Critical Condition.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 27.—Prostrated with grief at the death of their daughter, Mrs. A. M. Smith, who died Saturday from injuries received Friday, when the Roosevelt stage overturned on Fish Creek hill, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Anderson returned from Roosevelt yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. They were accompanied by Mr. Smith, the young husband, who is leaving on travels under the sudden loss of his young wife, whom he loved with passionate devotion.

Closely following the auto which brought Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and Mr. Smith from the dam, was another machine, seat on late the previous day by John & Driscoll to bring the remains to Phoenix. The body was taken to the Mohr & Driscoll morgue, and funeral arrangements will be made today.

Mr. Anderson learned at Fish Creek of his daughter's death, so in order that his wife might be able to finish the journey he telegraphed, expressed all signs of grief. At Roosevelt the truth could not be kept longer from the widow's mother and both broke down. News of the death of Mrs. Smith reached Phoenix only a few minutes after Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left for the dam Saturday afternoon. They did not stop at Mesa but hurried on to Fish Creek. There Mr. Anderson and Mrs. Cohen, a friend who had volunteered to go with them and render any assistance in her taking, went into the station for a moment. They were then told that Mrs. Smith had passed away several hours before. The blow staggered Mr. Anderson, but knowing his wife might not be able to go on to Roosevelt if she knew, he told her that there had been no change in their daughter's condition.

When the stage overhauled at Mr. Smith and Bud Norton, the driver. Mrs. Smith suffered a fracture of the skull five inches in length. A piece of the bone was driven into the brain and an artery was severed.

As soon as the physicians who had been summoned from Mesa and Roosevelt arrived they took the splinter out from the brain and laid the severed ends of the artery. The condition of the patient then seemed fairly satisfactory and he was hurried to Roosevelt. She recognized her husband, who had come from Roosevelt with Dr. Mohr and who rode back to the dam with her. About 5 o'clock in the morning she began to sink and at 7 o'clock in the afternoon she died. Considerable trouble was experienced in finding an automobile to make the journey to the dam. H. P. DeMund, an old friend of the family, offered them the use of his car, and Mr. DeMund's son, Charles, offered to drive. An examination of the auto, however, showed that it was in no condition to go to Roosevelt, and would need thirty repairs before it would be safe to start with it on such a trip. Charles DeMund happened to know that Clinton Campbell's car had been put in shape to go to Roosevelt Saturday, but had not been taken out of the garage. Mr. Campbell could not be located, but Mr. Campbell, who the morning before explained to her, used the coming train to take the machine without a moment's delay.

TIM RUTHERFORD, SELLS-FLOTO SHOWS

CHILD DESERTION BAD OUTLAW IS NOT A CRIME AGAIN IN TOILS

Supreme Court of Missouri Makes Ruling Which Upsets Time Honored Law in That State.

St. Louis, Mo., March 27.—The Missouri Supreme court today rendered a decision which has had its effect on the apprehension of fugitives who desert from military service. The court held that a child who deserts from military service is not a criminal under the laws of that state.

The court's decision is based on the fact that the child, being a minor, is not capable of forming the intent necessary for a crime. The court also noted that the child's actions were the result of parental neglect or abuse.

The court's ruling is significant as it challenges long-standing laws that treated child desertion as a criminal offense. This decision may have implications for other states and for federal military law.

UNDERWORLD IS LIFE OF CAMORRA OF ITALY

Coachman Tells Gruesome Story of Slaying of Cucolo and His Wife by Band of Cutthroats.

Walter, 1910-11, in New York Times. Here is given the vital part of the confession of Giovanni Abbatemaggio, as revealed by Marsuccello Capizzani, of the Italian Carabinieri and transferred by him to the minister of war for the minister of justice. The entire confession, which is the principal document of accusation against the 1910 and members of the Camorra, is in a cage in the court in Chicago, includes about twenty thousand words.

Marsuccello Capizzani, whom 1910 of Marsuccello declared the highest not-recognized rank in the Italian police had with Marsuccello Ferris just settled down to enjoy garrison life in Sardinia after a strenuous campaign of annihilation carried on against the members of that band, when, in June, 1908, they were ordered to proceed to Naples and join Captain Capizzani in investigating the Cucolo murder in which the military secretary, the Camorra and the local authorities were widely implicated.

All three spoke the dialects of the south like natives. Their new commission was a comprehensive one—to obtain evidence by which the Camorra might be broken up and its most active members placed in penal servitude. Capizzani was to examine the records of the Questura, or national police, stationed at Naples, was to deliver into the archives of the local judiciary, and interview as a supposed officer from the ministry of justice, judges, police, police officers and prison directors. Ferris was to go into Neapolitan society and investigate the ramifications of the Camorra among the aristocracy.

Among the Criminal World. But possibly the most dangerous, because they were so numerous, were the members of the Camorra, who were to be broken up and its most active members placed in penal servitude. Capizzani was to examine the records of the Questura, or national police, stationed at Naples, was to deliver into the archives of the local judiciary, and interview as a supposed officer from the ministry of justice, judges, police, police officers and prison directors. Ferris was to go into Neapolitan society and investigate the ramifications of the Camorra among the aristocracy.

The confession details the intricate network of the Camorra, a secret society that operated in the underworld of Italy. It describes various crimes, including the slaying of Cucolo and his wife, and the involvement of numerous individuals in the organization.

MRS. A. L. BALLEW 118 S. Fourth Street Announces

Spring Millinery Opening

Wednesday, March 29th Afternoon and Evening

Music by Prof. Di Mauro and Mrs. Snyder

The opening of Mrs. A. L. Ballew's Spring Millinery store is announced for Wednesday, March 29th, from 2 to 6 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. The store is located at 118 S. Fourth Street. The event will feature a variety of millinery items and a musical performance by Prof. Di Mauro and Mrs. Snyder.

The wife killed at night. They managed to reach the Cucolo apartment without being seen by the porter, and Sorino opened the door of the ante-chamber. La Bot Sorrentina was ready for retirement. Sorino rushed into her room and placed a hand over her mouth. Said stashed her repeatedly with his dagger until Sorino said it was enough.

Abbatemaggio's statement was read privately to each Camorrista who he alleged had been present at the meeting on May 26, 1906, when the sentence of death was passed on the Cucolos; then one by one they were confronted by the informer. Many were examined before one could be found who would admit that he was acquainted with the others or that he had ever heard that there was such a thing as the Camorra. Moreover, many had most convincing alibis.

How the alibis are prepared may be gathered from the statement made by Bartolomeo. "I absolutely deny that on May 26, 1906, I was in the Bagnoli Inn, for at the time referred to (8:20 p. m.) I was in a Torretta Museo car with Enrico Alfano, Francesco Desiderio, Enrico Torre, and Francesco Langino, and Alfano got down at the Piazza, San Ferdinando."

Planned a Double Murder. "It was there decided that Cucolo should be held that a double robbery might be committed at a house in Torre Annunziata, that Cucolo should be sent there to plan the scheme, that he should be conducted from his apartment in the Via Narones and killed as he passed on the edge of the cliff through the Cupa Calabro; that then some taken should be sent to Aversa as his dentist, and that on the same evening Mattia Cutinelli should also be killed."

Struck From Behind. "Morra, Sorino and De Gennaro went along walking with Cucolo. As they went Morra made a sign with his handkerchief to Tortone, who was walking behind. Then De Gennaro delivered a blow with his dagger at Cucolo, who, wounded, tried to draw a small knife from his pocket. Morra gave another blow with his dagger, while Sorino, in attacking Cucolo, gave him a wound in his left hand. When Tortone joined the group, Cucolo was on the ground, but Tortone gave him several blows with the stick he carried and so he died."

Struck From Behind. "Morra, Sorino and De Gennaro went along walking with Cucolo. As they went Morra made a sign with his handkerchief to Tortone, who was walking behind. Then De Gennaro delivered a blow with his dagger at Cucolo, who, wounded, tried to draw a small knife from his pocket. Morra gave another blow with his dagger, while Sorino, in attacking Cucolo, gave him a wound in his left hand. When Tortone joined the group, Cucolo was on the ground, but Tortone gave him several blows with the stick he carried and so he died."

Advertisement for CHICHESTER'S PILLS. The advertisement describes the benefits of the pills for various ailments, including constipation, indigestion, and general weakness. It emphasizes the natural and safe nature of the medicine.

Advertisement for S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM. The advertisement explains that the primary cause of rheumatism is the accumulation of uric acid in the system. It describes how S.S.S. works to drive out the uric acid and restore health. The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, GA.