

SOCIETY

Capital sits enthroned, imperiously directing the affairs of local society. The triumph of summer time romances is most appropriately in the harvest season when the hopes of the year find fullest fruition. The first of the autumn ceremonies presided over by the little monarch of the season occurred this afternoon, the merry home weddings are an annual feature. Four people were quietly made two the past week and the news broken gently to their friends afterward. Did they lack the courage to "face the music" of a "chivarrari"?

The preparations for the notable Rothernberger-Gransfeld nuptials go on apace. Dressing rooms are being flower-decked and life time friends thronged together express regard for this dearly loved Albuquerque and Society. In enjoying the pre-nuptial season to the utmost and with the brides who are to figure in the light of the Yule-tide prominence Miss Stetson, Miss Gransfeld and others are making society young again. Who would be otherwise when the motto of the hour is:

"I will open unto you the door of my house that you may enter in, to eat and drink with me, and bless us by your presence."

Mrs. Wilson to Entertain.
Increasingly and increasingly pleasurable are the social teas of the ladies comprising the membership of the Aid Society of the Lead Avenue Methodist church, and the function tomorrow afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. John W. Wilson, is anticipated eagerly by a throng of subscribers as well as the ladies of the congregation. Expectations of a fine musical program in this domicile where the spirit of music reigns, are not to be disappointed on this occasion as an excellent program of vocal and instrumental selections has been prepared. Mrs. Bradford, the popular soprano, will sing Mrs. Holloway, the new contralto heard but a few times here, will sing as will Mrs. S. B. Miller, another of Albuquerque's favorite vocalists. The hostess and Mrs. Woodford will act as accompanists. Mrs. Thomas Baldwin of Greensburg, Pa., formerly Miss Nettie Durling of this city, will render piano solos, and altogether the spirit of music, sociability and pleasure will insure an entertaining afternoon to those who attend. Remember the place 202 S. High street, and the cause—the treasury needs of the aid society.

Mrs. M. Stern to Entertain.
Mrs. M. Stern will entertain at luncheon Saturday afternoon complimentary to Miss Helma Gransfeld who is soon to wed, and Miss Helen of Denver who is visiting Mrs. Childer this season.

Mrs. Seligman of Santa Fe Honored.
The second in a series of afternoon functions was this afternoon tendered by Mrs. Amado Chavez complimentary to her guest Mrs. James L. Seligman of Santa Fe. What was the pastime and, as always in this hospitable home an ultra-enjoyable season was passed by the favored invitees. The honor guest has won a place of high regard among social leaders in this city as she has in her home town.

Master King at Home.
No jollier goblin party could be imagined than the week end festivity at which Master William King presided Friday evening. A contingent of seventeen school chums were the luckiest who were greeted at the entrance of a ghostly specter, ushered into a dressing room by attendant spears and then welcomed by a dainty little white-clad spirit known in the flesh as little Miss Margaret King. Shaded lights gleaming through flimsy, pumpkin faces, shed a weird glow over the walls where

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or unduly anxious to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an optimistic attitude for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more characteristic than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

black cats being ready to spring on the happy-faced company. Music, games, lunch deliciously "Holloween" in taste, service and decorations, featured the gay evening of three hours from 6 to 9 o'clock. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of the young host were Alfred Amador, Scott Knight, Edwin Knight, Mark Wilson, Warren Graham, Alfred Neustadt, Harry Ingle, Donald McGaffey, Billy Rose, Chester Hale, Roy Gilbert, Sidney Dent, Lawrence Lovitt, Harold Lovitt, Birch Foraker, Milton Hinckert.

Beautiful Home Wedding.
No scene in life is so exquisitely tender and impressive as the ritual uniting two young lives, and when the background is made up of faces beaming their love and sympathetic joy in the home that nurtured the bride, the picture is complete in haloed beauty. Such a scene was this afternoon enacted in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Stetson, 309 South

The air was sweet with the incense of white flowers, resonant with music and laughter, and freighted with good wishes. The spacious rooms had been transformed into blossoming sylvan bowers by lavish decorations of palms, luxuriant vines and loads of white caryanthemums and carnations. Parquet white embellished in green marked the decorative scheme throughout the rooms, and expressed harmoniously in the smiles of the bride and bridesmaid. were grouped about the home altar when, to the strains of the wedding march played by the De Mauro orchestra, the bridal party advanced to the floral, candle-lighted altar, a replica of the church altar surmounted by the crucifix, before which Rev. Father Magallon celebrated the matrimonial service. The bride looked radiantly beautiful in the ceremonial gown of crepe de chine over silk, trimmed with rich diamonds. A filmy veil caught with coronal of orange blossoms and falling to the floor, and the bouquet of bride's roses gave a finishing touch to the lovely picture. Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Salome Stetson, becomingly attired in a white silk veiled in Nile green chiffon, made empire with a graceful flou.

The groom was handsome in the conventional black garb and was attended by his chum, Mr. James Hubbard. The ceremony over, the company extended congratulations, and at this hour are enjoying a post-nuptial luncheon appointed in green and white and the De Mauro orchestra in all the white, discoursing violin and piano music.

Present at the wedding among other out of town guests, are Mrs. Anton Nagel of Chattanooga, Tenn., Mrs. Nagel is a niece of Mrs. Stetson who came Tuesday expressly to witness the bride. At 2:30 this evening the newly weds will leave for a honeymoon trip to California, and early January it will be at home to their friends at 206 West Silver avenue.

Steele-Love Marriage.
Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement that last Saturday afternoon Miss Lola Love and Mr. Harvey B. Steele were made one by the process of matrimonial service presided over by Rev. Herman P. Williams at the parsonage of the Guild and Broadway church. Miss Love is the popular daughter of Mrs. Mary Love of this city, and the happy bridegroom an attaché of the Wells Fargo company. Mr. and Mrs. Steele are domiciled in their new abode at 329 South Arno street.

Congregational Ladies to Meet.
Mrs. Aspinwald will be at home to the ladies of the Congregational Aid society tomorrow afternoon. Business, and a great deal of it is to be transacted, therefore it is the hope of the hostess and society officers that every lady in the Aid society be present. Remember, Mrs. Aspinwald's, at 2:30 o'clock.

The Inside Ion.
You are going, of course. Everybody who is interested in dramatics, in music or fond of laughter will go. If there are a struggling few not prone to laughter, theatrics or music, even they will feel the call of friendship to go and see their companions behind the footlights. And it is by chance there are those impatient to the appeal of friends, music, laughter, beauty and histrionic art, their loyalty to a home fraternity, their very patriotism will constrain them to go—maybe both nights. Be rain or shine, it is a forgone conclusion that the opera house will be crowded to the gunwales at each performance of the Inside Ion.

G. A. R. Ladies to Feast Friends.
The culinary experts in the ranks of the John A. Logan Circle of the Ladies of the G. A. R. are planning a rare feast for their friends and the general public. Visit their stand in the store of the C. and A. Coffee company next Saturday afternoon and evening and try their home made doughnuts, bread, pies, beans, collies, cakes and steaming hot coffee. Panned as cooks these ladies have only to announce their intention to cater to the public to have a throng of patrons eager to sample food of the "mother-made" variety.

Kipling Program at Woman's Club.
Rudyard Kipling, the sterling English poet, through whose writings run the virile crimson of life-blood, is to be the subject of the splendid literary program to be heard at the Woman's club Friday afternoon. Kipling characteristics will be discussed, his poems read by club leaders and able vocalists will sing the favorite poems of "On the Road to Mandalay," "Daddy Deever" and "The Recessional" that have been set to music. Mrs. George Everett is leader of the day, and the program (subject to revision) is given herewith:

BABY CARRIAGES TO DISPLAY LIGHTS

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 7.—Baby carriages upon the streets of Minnesota towns and villages will be required to have white lights in front and a red one behind to warn "traffic." Women who go out with their promisculators after dark will have to provide some form of lighting system.

The law is now designed to keep women home nights, but is the "slip-in" measure which got by Gopher salons at the last session of the legislature.

The law as framed was designed to aid motorists, who had already been compelled to maintain lights, by compelling farmers and other users of wheeled vehicles to maintain lights, also (the catch comes in) "the other users of wheeled vehicles."

Baby carriages are not exempt from provisions of the act, according to Attorney General Simpson; neither are wheelbarrows, kids' wagons or any other form of vehicle having wheels.

A two wheeled safty must have lights in front and behind, and horse owners are wondering how they are to accomplish the job. It has been suggested that an electric battery be provided to be placed under the seat and the light be placed in the center of the wheel.

Electric-lighted baby carriages and wheelbarrows may not be unusual before the session of the next legislature, which probably will amend the law. The attorney general says the law is a valid one and must be enforced.

CAN'T CURE CATARRH.

Stomach Dosing, sprays and Douches Have All Failed.

There is only one way to cure catarrh.

Reach the raw, tender, inflamed membrane that is infected with catarrh germs, and destroy them.

You can't reach the nooks and crannies with liquid preparations; there is only one way—breathe the antiseptic germ-killing air of HYOMER (pronounced High-ome) directly over the infected parts.

HYOMER contains no opium, cocaine or other harmful drugs. It is made of Australian eucalyptus, thymol and other laterian antiseptics. It is guaranteed to end the misery of catarrh, asthma, croup and bronchitis, or money back.

UNIFORM DRESS FOR WOMEN URGED

President of Womens' Clubs Cries Out Against Fickle Fashions and Would Costume Femininity in Plain Tailormades.

Nikola Greely Smith in the New York World gives out an interesting report of a recent utterance of a woman high in social circles:

The courageous president of the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Catherine Carter Warren of Princeton, advocated from a platform in Detroit this week the most startling reform that the feminine world has ever known—the adoption by women of a uniform style of dress.

There's no doubt that a woman's most treasured privilege is that of being or imagining herself different from all other women. For that difference, she imagines, her sweet heart courts her, her husband loves her, her children greet her as the pearl mother. You may say, the differences of dress are superficial, but so many of us live for and upon surfaces that eliminating the contrast of pompadours, and parted curls, of stately gowns and "cute" little frocks—indeed all the distinguishing characteristics which the infinite variety of fashion supplies—what father would be certain of recognizing his own daughter, what husband sure of knowing his own wife?

And what woman would be willing to surrender that precious thing which she calls her individuality and which expresses itself in the angle of her hat, the bow at her throat, the color and fit of her parasol, quite as much as in her thoughts, her manner and her intimate speech?

Moreover, clothes are the one clew man has to woman, the one key to the maze of great and little qualities in which she entangles his heart. Man as well as woman should be interested in Mrs. Warren's revolutionary suggestion. Does he want to lose the one answer to the riddle, the one solution of the mystery? Women betray their real character more by their clothes than in any other way. The stage convention of the heroine in white, the villainess in black or red, is not without its psychology, and the color and cut of the soul is hinted unconsciously by the color and cut of the gown.

Of course, there are a great many excellent points in Mrs. Warren's suggestion as to uniform dress. And she presents them ably.

"We want a uniform plan of dress and we object strenuously to the sweeping changes of fashion that say you must wear one kind of a dress one year and another the next," she told the clubwomen in Michigan. "Last season's dress is no good this season, and we want reforms that will enable a woman to wear the same dress next summer that she wore this summer and not always be a constant drain on her husband's finances. Women should by this time be in a state of revolution against the outrageous fashions dictated to them. The monstrous hats that are worn should be ruled out of style for good."

Undoubtedly, it would be a most desirable thing to be able to buy a suit of clothing as a man does with the idea of wearing it till it wears out. Our grandmothers, even our mothers, wore better clothes than we do. I possess, and nearly every woman who reads this possesses some similar heirloom—a velvet gown bought fifty years ago by a relative, and, so far as I can see, the material, which is in perfect condition today, will look the same fifty years from now.

A fashionable woman thirty or forty years ago paid $10 a yard for such materials, but she wore her gown for years, sometimes for a lifetime, and got the value of her money. Fashionable women today may still pay $10 or more a yard for material, but they don't get their money's worth, for after they have worn their best garments half a dozen times the clothes in fashion compel them to give their gowns away or sell them.

So it pays even the rich woman to buy comparatively shoddy material. She doesn't want a gown built for a day to last a lifetime. So far as a revolt against fashion is concerned,

NOW ONE WOMAN WON

Her Health and Strength Back Again by The Use of Cardui.

Tampa, Fla.—In a letter from this city, Mrs. E. C. Corum writes: "I was all weakened and worn out with womanly troubles. My husband brought me some Cardui at a tonic, and, from the first day, it seemed to help. I had almost lost my reason, but, thanks to Cardui, I did not. Soon, I felt and looked like a new woman. I think the remedy is wonderful. I recommend it to my friends, for I have received great benefit from it."

Cardui acts specifically on the weakened womanly organs, strengthening the muscles and nerves, and building them up to health.

It helps to refresh the worn-out nervous system and relieves the effects of overwork, both mental and physical. Five years' successful use fully prove the merit of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women.

In every community, there live some who have been benefited by Cardui. The beneficial effects of this time-tested woman's remedy, soon show themselves in many different ways.

Try it.

every sensible woman must share Mrs. Warren's views.

But uniform? Heaven save us from them. I wonder if Mrs. Warren ever wore one?

Who could design such a uniform? No man, for he would fashion it for the style of woman he personally admired. No woman, for she would seek, whether consciously or not, to make it becoming to herself.

Seriously, are we not disastrously alike already, without striving to multiply our points of resemblance? The way to avoid the "freak" fashions, it seems to me, is not for all women to dress alike, but for them all to dress differently—to suit their individual types in gowns, hats and coiffures, and let other women wear what they please. A certain deference to the prevailing mode is necessary in the street, but the tailored suit does not change radically from one season to another, and in the home every woman should be an absolute law unto herself. If she looks well in Greek or empire effects, let her wear them. If a simple, one-piece dress is most becoming to her, let her stick to that.

Women of good taste wear what is practically a uniform now when they leave their homes—tailored suit, moderate hat, inconspicuous accessories. For the rest, in our homes and other homes there is but one rule for successful dressing: Be yourself, please yourself and those you love, and you'll have your hands full—without worrying about the neighbors.

NEW MEXICO APPLES ARE IN DEMAND

Extreme Cold Weather in Colorado and Northwest Boosts Price of This State's Product 35c Box.

Roswell, N. M., Nov. 8.—Because of the recent extreme cold weather in Colorado and the northwest, Roswell apples have advanced in price 35c per box, and it is believed that this figure will be exceeded within the next month.

While regions of the north and west have suffered the past two weeks from the severe cold snap, said Albert Hauny, acting manager for the Roswell Fruit Growers' association last night, "which cut their apple crop short, it made the Roswell crop take a sudden advance of 35 cents a box. W. N. Baldwin, manager of the Roswell Fruit Growers' association, who is now in Texas supervising the association shipments, stated that they have advanced from $1.40 to $1.75 box.

The association has 150 cars out and not being in touch with the weather gods failed of course to take advantage of the advance on the cars shipped.

The South Springs shed will close Wednesday night, all the apples by All the shipments from that district, the first of the month when the season will close, will be shipped from the Roswell sheds, with Robert Beers in charge.

The apples now being shipped are mostly the Gano and Ben Davis apples of the Holcomb and Urton orchards, and all are running 90 per cent clean.

A new feature that will net the association some $1,000 this year is being the apples refused by the association for shipping as fruit for the cider mill. The association has contracted with Robert Beers, the veteran cider maker of the valley, who will make the apples into cider and turn the beverage over to the association which will place it on the market. This cider will gross $10 a barrel. Mr. Beers has for his own use already milled 200 barrels and will make 175 more. Mr. Beers is also making his winter vinegar which is sold extensively in Roswell.

HITCHCOCK WILL NOT BE MARRIED

Postmaster General Denies Reports That He Was to Join Ranks of the Beneficials.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Postmaster General Frank Hitchcock set at rest today the reports of his resignation from the cabinet, as well as the rumors of his marriage.

"Unfortunately, it is not true either that I am going to be married or that I am going to resign," said he, when asked as to the truth of these two stories, which have been in general circulation in Washington. "I have outlined a winter program for the postal service of some exceptional measures which I hope to get through congress, and I am so interested in them that resignation is out of the question. Furthermore, I am not going to be chairman of the next Republican national committee, nor am I going to manage the next Republican campaign."

Mr. Hitchcock's denial of any intention to resign was so positive that there can, accordingly, be no further belief in the report that he intended leaving Washington to go to New York on the first of next year as the president of one of the subsidiary companies of a big Chicago corporation. His denial of his rumored engagement was also so explicit that it must be accepted, although Washington society has not yet abandoned hope of finding a wife for the only bachelor member of the cabinet.

FORTUNES FOUND IN WASTE BY WOMEN

Searchers in Papers That Are Thrown Away by Treasury Department Find Fortunes in Old Envelopes.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Stranger of many strange government postures are those in the treasury department of Mrs. Mary Warren and Miss Kate Shea, known as the official "waste basket guardians."

Finding money and valuable papers in the refuse from the offices of Treasurer Les McClung is the peculiar vocation of these two women. For years they have picked over contents of the treasury waste paper baskets and desk litter, finding and saving thousands of dollars for Uncle Sam. The two women have become expert in finding small fortunes in the office refuse.

"If I had all the money I have found I couldn't spend it in a lifetime," said Mrs. Warren today.

A package of bills, in small denominations, worth $10,000, is the largest single find the waste basket searchers ever have made. Mrs. Warren and Miss Shea, it is said, save such week what they cost the government in a month.

For forty years Mrs. Warren has searched the waste paper in her hunt for lost valuables. Miss Shea has been her assistant for ten years.

Remittances from national banks, express packages, money sent for redemption, consignments of bonds, and postal savings bank correspondence are the finds in the envelopes, packages and boxes which the women examine. Each envelope is torn apart and searched. From two thousand to four thousand envelopes each day are examined by the women.

Mrs. Warren, telling of her biggest find—that of $10,000 in cash—said: "I found the money in a big express box, all in small bills. It was about 7 o'clock at night. I was so excited over it I couldn't go home, and didn't know what to do with the money. I waited and finally General Spenser came in. I gave it to him and he took it upstairs. The clerk who lost it, now dead, was kept on the anxious seat for a week by General Spenser, who then delivered the money to him. The next month I was promoted."

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief. For sale by all druggists."
