TREATY OF 1799 IS ABROGATED BY U. S. ANZEIGER DECLARES

Berlin Newspaper Claims German Subjects Are Compulsory Detained in America, When They Should be Unmolested.

Washington, Feb. 8.—In a prominently displayed leader the Lokai Anzeiger this afternoon charges the United States with a breach of treaty obligations in "compulsory detaining" in America German subjects who, under the treaty of 1799 are entitled, even in the case of an actual outbreak of war, to pursue their avocations unmolested, resulting the charges of the violation of treaties and the law of nations made against Germany in the earlier days of the war, the Anzeiger continues.

The breach of diplomatic relations with the United States probably will be made again the occasion for leveling against us charges of breaking treaties and international law in order to mobilize the indignation of the whole world against our shameful acts. It is therefore not at all an act of supererogation to point out now, while the deed is still fresh, that the United States simultaneously with the breach of relations, has been guilty of an unjustified breach of treaty in confiscation of German property contrary to treaties between them and Germany and compelling German subjects whose profession, in the words of clause 22 of the treaty of 1799, "serves the sustenance of the general weal of humanity" to compulsory detention. This in spite of the fact that the cited article prohibits any molestations of German subjects in the United States, even in the case of war.

"If treaties are thus trodden under foot a breach of diplomatic relations, when President Wilson's phrase, that Americans are sincere friends of the German nation is still resounding what have we to expect if the contingency for which we must be prepared arrives, and war breaks out? If we cannot prevent a breach of treaty we must at least call attention clearly, openly and immediately to the fact that the U. S. government has violated the treaty of 1799 and the general principles of the law of nations before Germany has undertaken anything which would give the slightest shadow of a pretext for such an action."

Big Appropriation Is Urged by Aero Club For Army Airplanes

By Associated Press.
New York, Feb. 8.—A resolution adopted by the Aero Club of America, sent to Washington today, asks that the proposed congressional appropriation for army aerial preparedness be increased to $50,000,000. The club estimates the cost and equipment of grounds at $20,000,000 and the cost of 3,000 planes at $30,000,000.

Young men seeking service in the aviation section are applying at the Aero Club but most of them do so without previous experience as fliers. However their applications are being given consideration.

Private Shanks, Shot In Stomach, Dies at Cantonment Hospital

By Associated Press.
Columbus, N. M., Feb. 8.—Sergeant Charles Shanks, of the Seventeenth infantry, who was shot in the stomach while on provost guard duty Monday night in the colored district of the town, died last night at the cantonment hospital. The body will be shipped to Dayton, Ohio. This was the second death among the expeditionary troops since crossing the border.

The refugee camp is slowly breaking up. The Mexican refugees have gone to Deming, N. M., to find a country. The Mexicans are finding work on railroads and ranches of the southwest, and the Chinese will probably be sent in bond to Juarez. Less than 1,000 of the 3,000 refugees are expected to be in camp by the end of the week.

SAYS CITY SHOULD DO MORE PLANNING FOR HEALTHSEEKERS

"Citizen" Objects to Advertising for Newcomers Under Present Conditions; His Views Answered by Publicity Expert.

Albuquerque, N. M., "Health Advertising Committee," "Chamber of Commerce, City," "Gentlemen:

"Why advertise for more health-seekers, when the city cannot accommodate those who do come to us?"

"Why not spend a spare time and a reasonable sum of money in building cottages, apartments, and above all a decent, clean and medium rate hotel, first, in order to take care of those already here as well as those who are coming in all the time, as a result of your recent advertising campaign?"

"The committee is really interested in the welfare of the city, as well as the financial end of this scheme. It should remedy some of the glaring defects of this town for those who have to live here, either for health or business reasons."

"I have lived in Albuquerque three years, and I prefer it to any other city I could name, but I have suffered ailments untold, with the remaining nine-tenths of the population, every hot-summer season, until I wish I might hibernate during those six weeks. For I am not one of the favored few who can emigrate at that time and thus escape. Every year we hear of those wonderful things that are going to be done to abate the cotton nuisance, and many members of the medical profession try to impress their patients with the fact that the cotton does not cause hay-fever, but I am from Missouri."

"By not interest some of the people with money to invest, for where can one find a better place to build rental property? When you see the shabby, filthy housekeeping rooms, and poor hotel accommodations that all newcomers (either well or health seekers) are forced to live in, how can you consistently urge others to come until something is done to remedy those conditions. I spent one year, moving frequently in search of suitable quarters, until the first apartment house was built, since that time I have been settled, but I have gone over the same ground, trying to help other newcomers find locations, and I know the crying need of better cottages, and small apartments."

"If there is a board of health in the town why doesn't it enforce the regulations regarding health seekers carrying cups, instead of being allowed to sputterate on the floors of picture shows, and other places where crowds gather? The local newspaper should be enlisted in a publicity campaign for teaching these ignorant newcomers how to protect their neighbors, and in many cases members of their own families. I know of one case where a young girl, frail at that, was allowed to nurse her sister, a tubercular, and was not told to take any precautions—the sister was a patient of a prominent doctor on tuberculosis. Probably he thought everybody had that much sense, but I have met many people who have not the first idea of how to handle the dishes, etc., of such patients in the family."

"Colorado Springs has forced the railroads and factories to put in smoke consumers, why can't it be done here?"

"Many come but few survive the smoke, the cotton, poor living quarters, unsprinkled streets, unimproved houses, mosquitoes and exorbitant prices for proper treatment in the sanatoriums."

"If it is a better Albuquerque you really want to see, remember charity, and other good works, begin at home."

"But if it is only a bigger town, then pursue your present policy, of urging more to come, and then turn them loose on the town to shift for themselves a best they can, and put up with the many nuisances and inconveniences that the rest of us have lived through; if they live, and remain here, all right, if they are shipped back home, the local undertakers and doctors, at least, have their profit; and if they move or some place else, who is to blame?"

"A CITIZEN—That the foregoing letter does not fully coincide with the views of those directing the destinies of the publicity department of the chamber of commerce became evident when the Herald reporter interviewed John Tombs, under whose direction the work of the publicity bureau is being carried out."

Mr. Tombs said:

"While I realize the value of fresh air, I would also like to see even more smoke coming out of our factory chimneys than there is at present, for if the healthseeker will locate out on the edge of the town or up towards the mesa where he ought to be, he will never notice what little smoke we have has cost us enough to get. This is so much the case as to make one wonder whether or not the game is worth the candle, and whether it would not pay us better in the future to stick to our present plan of advertising for the healthseeker with means and the setting forth of our climatic claims generally. That and the investment opportunities in the city and the surrounding country are much more worth working on than the securing of 'smokeless industries' of which we have some notable examples."

As to the cotton nuisance, "it is too well known that the 'season' for hay-fever sufferers does not limit itself to the cotton season, so that comment concerning that part of the charge seems superfluous. My own experience, and my journeying to and fro in an endeavor to get rid of it, would seem to indicate that hay-fever is not caused by air condition existing solely in Albuquerque, for hay-fever exists everywhere and an improved condition of health generally, seems to be the only 'cure'."

"I am glad to say however that both the cotton and the mosquito are receiving attention and we are in fact at present in correspondence with the authorities at San Antonio, Texas, with a view to ascertaining just how their plan is working out and whether or not it would be a feasible one to set in motion in Albuquerque. It is hoped also that the good work done in the cottonwood trees that year will be carried out over a still greater area this year.

"As to taking a year off to build houses, hotels, etc., I naturally do not favor that. Rather I favor the idea of continuous, persistent advertising for the healthseeker with means, for it has been my observation that it is the newcomer with some surplus cash who is building up the town so far as suitable modern accommodations for health-seekers are concerned. And we are glad there is that outlet for his brains, energy, and capital. For that is one of the things to which we are constantly calling the attention of those who inquire as to what they can invest some money in if they come out here in search of health. That and the ranch land up and down the valley in Bernillo county, should we discontinue our advertising of Albuquerque as a health resort, many of the people now contemplating building would give up their plans and we would have a slump as Albuquerque has never yet experienced."

"Further it is an axiom of the advertising world that it is constant hammering that does it, it is in the cumulative force of advertising that its chief value lies. Thus, to stop now would be to lose the greater part of the effect of what advertising has already been done and the benefit of what money has already been spent."

"There is much to think about in this letter from 'A Citizen' and I hope that all other citizens who have the growth and progress of Albuquerque at heart will read it thoughtfully and will do their bit toward righting the wrong, and we who are in charge of the publicity of the health department of the chamber of commerce thank 'A Citizen' heartily for the interest displayed and only regret that so interesting a letter was unsigned."

Our Flag

There is something in a flag, in a little burnished eagle, That is more than emblematic—it is glorious, it's regal; You may never live to feel it, you may never be in danger, You may never visit foreign lands and play the role of stranger; You may never in the army check the march of the invader, You may never on the ocean cheer the swarthy cannonader; But if these should happen to you, then, when age is on you pressing, And your great big booby boy comes to ask your final blessing—

You tell him: "Son of mine, be your station proud or frugal, When your country calls her children, and you hear the blare of bugle, Don't you stop to think of Kansas, or the quota of your country, Don't you go to asking questions, don't you stop for pay or bounty; But you volunteer at once, and you go where orders take you, And obey them to the letter, if they make you or they break you; Hunt that flag and then stay with it, be you wealthy or plebeian; Let the women sing the dirges, scrape the lint, and chant the psalm."

"Though the magazines and journals teem with anti-war persuasion, And the stay-at-homes and cowards gladly take the like occasion, Don't you ever dream of asking, 'Is the war a right or wrong one?' You are in it, and your duty is to make the fight a strong one; And you stay till it is over, be the war a short or long one; Make amends when war is over; then the power with you is lying; Then, if wrong, do ample justice—but that flag, you keep it flying; If that flag goes down to ruin, time will then, without a warning, Turn the dial back to midnight and the world must wait till morning."
