Banks, what do you think of Alfred Austin, the new poet-laureate of England? I think he's the best man, all things considered, that could have been chosen. He hasn't the turbid style of Sir Edwin Ar. nold, and there's more body, more imagination, more snap, vim and poetic fire about his verses than you will find in—in—say, Rivers, who in thunder is Alfred Austin, anyhow?

Measrs. C. F. Moore & Co., Newberg, Ore., say: "We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than all others put together, and it always gives satisfaction." Mr. J. F. Allen, Fox, Ore., says: "I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have handled." Mr. W. H. Hitchcock, Columbus, Wash., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy sells well and is highly praised by all who use it." For sale by Ireland's Pharmacy.

Say, doctor, is a bald head the sign of wisdom? Not always; it more frequently indicates domestic infelicity.

Mrs. W. B. Meek, who resides at Camp-tonville, Cal., says her daughter was for several years troubled at times with severe cramps in the stomach, and would be in such agony that it was necessary to call in a physician. Having read about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy she concluded to try it. She found that it always gave prompt relief. It was seldom necessary to give the second dose. "It has not only saved us lots of worry and time," she says, "but also doctor bill. It is my opinion that every family should have a bottle of this remedy in the house." For sale by Ireland's Pharmacy.

Dah am to much misplaced energy in disheser work, said Uncle Eben. Dah am too many young men that insists on cultivatin' dah mind when they orter be cultivatin' a 'daher patch.

Sore throat. Any ordinary case may be cured in one night by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm as directed with each bottle. This medicine is also famous for its cures of rheumatism, lame back and deep-seated and muscular pains. For sale by Ireland's Pharmacy.

She (intensely musical)—Oh! You can't think how I love this song; listen, now he's coming to the refrain.

He (intensely bored): Refrain? How I wish to goodness he would.

There are many good reasons why you should use One Minute Cough Cure. There are no reasons why you should not, if in need of help. The only harmless remedy that produces immediate results. Newton's drug store.

The Doctor: You don't mean to say you went to a dog show on Sunday? Penelope: Yes; but I looked at the St. Bernards only.

A. G. Bartley, of Magie, Pa., writes: I feel it a duty of mine to inform you of the cure that De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me of a very bad case of eczema. It also cured my boy of a running sore on his leg. Newton's drug store.

Contractor: I trusted you to overlook this work, and here the thing I was most particular about you have neglected altogether.

Overseer: And isn't that overlooking it entirely, I'd like to know.

The cure of rheumatism has often taxed medical skill, but its prevention has been very easy by an occasional use of Simmons Liver Regulator. It keeps the liver well regulated, and the system free from poison. Therein is the secret of health. "I have used it for years for indigestion and constipation, and also found it gives one relief from a touch of rheumatism." —N. Hughes, Lordsburg, N. M.

Tramp: One moment, my friend; can you spare the price of a glass of beer? Party Accosted: Yes, easily; and what's more, I'm just going down street to get it. G'day!

CONQUEST OF JULIA.

Julia Raymond was Dainton's cousin, and he had been dangling about her for a month. Discouraged at his want of success he determined to go away from her. He had indiscriminately stuffed his third portmanteau when a letter was brought to him. "Gad," he thought, "from Julia! Why can't she leave me alone!" It was a dainty missive, asking him to dine with her that night. "We two together," she wrote, "quite to ourselves. Did you say you were going away today? But that will not matter; you can go as well to-morrow."

He sat down to think the matter over. He was determined to leave by the midnight train, but he saw no particular reason why he should not spend the evening with her. Her house lay between him and the station; there was not much time to lose, and since she chose to send her invitations at so ridiculously short a notice he considered that he might appropriately take his luggage with him. Accordingly, at 8 o'clock he chartered a cab, which, loaded with his impedimenta, went trailing heavily off toward Miss Raymond's house.

Julia, from an upper window, was astonished to see Dainton superintending the unloading of the cab before her door. Indeed, she was distinctly angry, and came down to meet him in a very high and offended spirit. His three portmanteaus were piled together in the hall, crowned with a hatbox, a few chaotic parcels and a gunnec.

"You see, Julia," Dainton said, "I have come."

"You seem to have come to stay."

"Oh, no, I assure you," he said cheerfully. "You see, I am half way to the station here, and it is really too much bore to think of going back to my place again to-night, and so I brought my baggage along."

"It was very thoughtful of you," she said.

"Very, I was astonished at my own discretion."

She looked at him closely. He was quite happy and unconcerned apparently, and Julia's anger gave way to disappointment. She had thought he would not go.

"You are really going tonight?"

"I am really going. In three hours and a half I shall be gone."

"And when are you coming back?"

"I really don't know. It entirely depends on circumstances."

"On what circumstances?"

"I'm afraid I can't tell you."

"But, my dear cousin, you ought to know."

"I suppose we are cousins—about tenth cousins," said Dainton, "but you needn't make so much of it."

She raised her eyebrows. "You have not answered my question," she said, "but it does not matter. Shall we go in to dinner?"

"The first half hour was rather silent. Dainton had a pleasant feeling of security. Somehow the thought of his luggage in the hall soiced him. His game, he considered, was to wait. Certainly Julia's mood was unusually gentle; he had never seen her quite so bewitchingly sincere. All so he had never felt so much in love with her before. The situation was one to be sedulously nursed."

"I hate partings," said Julia, "even little, unimportant ones like this."

"Do you?" said Dainton. "Yes, I suppose they are rather sad." "Sad is hardly the word, is it?" "Perhaps not. Would you use a stronger word?"

"I should say they were foolish."

"Oh, no, not foolish. Only necessary."

HE NEVER STOPPED.

Amid Many Interruptions He Kept Right on, Undismayed.

"I hope you will not accuse me of taking an unfair advantage, Miss Jarvis," began Wesley Higginot, slipping into the unoccupied seat by the side of the young woman, "but I saw you getting on this train, and I came along. I am going 25 or 30 miles anyhow and farther still if necessary. I want to have a talk with you."

"Mr. Higginot?"

"I know what you are about to say—I am taking a liberty not warranted by our short acquaintance, and all that sort of thing. But I am not. I have been in this car nearly a quarter of an hour, Miss Jarvis, waiting for a good excuse to come and take this seat, and when I saw that loose jointed old Algerine, with the blue black whiskers and the mottled colored suit of clothes, that got on at the last station, making for this seat, I felt it to be a duty to forestall him. Will you oblige me by taking a look at those whiskers, Miss Jarvis?"

"I see them, Mr. Higginot."

"Well, that's why I popped down here so suddenly. I am not vain, Miss Jarvis, but I took it for granted."

"Yes, you seem to have taken it for granted," she interjected.

"That between a young man of at least average respectability in appearance and a seedy old hunk with dyed whiskers no young woman of taste could hesitate a moment. Hence—"

"Upon my word, sir—"

"Hence I am here. Of two evils, Miss Jarvis, always choose the better looking. When I want any fine, young man, I'll let you know. Will you confer a favor by strolling along down the aisle. I was going to say, Miss Jarvis, that there's nothing accidental about this. I am on this train in pursuance of a deliberate design. I am sitting by your side entirely on purpose. At exactly 10 o'clock last night I made up my mind I wouldn't hang on by my eyelids any longer. I decided I would seize the first opportunity—"

"The train had been going at the rate of 40 miles an hour. The sudden application of the airbrakes brought it quickly to a stop. There was a confused sound of voices. Rifle shots were heard. Mr. Higginot listened a moment and resumed:

"I decided to seize the first opportunity to tell you—"

"For heaven's sake, what?"

"To tell you that I—"

"No, no! I mean what is that noise about? Something dreadful is happening! I am sure it is!"

"There's some disturbance at the forward end of the train I presume. Viola Jarvis?"

"Oh, Mr. Higginot, at such a time as this how can you?"

"A man as far gone as I am doesn't stop to reason about things. I have only known you about six weeks, but I think I have wanted you all my life—"

"Crack! Snap! Boom!"

The wildest consternation reigned. Passengers were crouching down between the seats. Faces were pale with terror. And the fusillade continued, varied now and then by a louder explosion. A bullet occasionally came through a window and buried itself in the woodwork of the car.

"Oh, Mr. Higginot?"

"My name is Wesley."

"Are we in any danger?"

"Danger? I feel as if my whole future were at stake. This is the most momentous crisis of my life. My darling girl!"

"Oh, Mr. Higginot?"

"Wesley. My name is Wesley."

"Crack! Crack! Boom!"

"How can you think of anything?"

"I can't, dear. I can't think of anything except that the sweetest, loveliest girl on earth!"

One's physical feelings, like the faithful setter, search and point out every detail of fact of disease or health.

If a man is not feeling well and vigorous—if he is losing flesh and vitality, if he is listless, nervous, and his digestion is not well. The down hill road from health to sickness is smooth and declines rapidly.

At the first intimation of disease, the wise man takes a pure, simple vegetable tonic. It puts his digestion into good active order and that puts the rest of his body in order. The medicine that will do this is a medicine that is good to take in any trouble of the blood, the digestion, or the respiration, no matter how serious it may have become.

The medicine to take is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remarkable remedy. It cures diseases in a perfectly natural way, without the use of strong drugs. It cures by helping Nature. It has a peculiar tonic effect on the lining membranes of the stomach and bowels.

By putting these membranes into healthy condition, stimulating the secretion of the various digestive juices and furnishing to the blood the proper purifying properties, it reaches out over the whole body and drives disease-germs before it into the usual excretory channels. It builds up firm muscular flesh, makes the skin and the eyes bright.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been found wonderfully efficacious in the treatment of skin diseases—eczema, tetter, erysipelas, salt-rheum—from common pimples or blotches to the worst case of scrofula.
