"Tale Tails"

The Business of Abstracting

If editors would only print all they know about folks, or give place to the numerous requisites for "coasts" made by those who have a grievance, to jump on certain other citizens and expose some of their misdeeds, tear the mask off some hypocritical church member and air some of his conduct before the public, or print the communications and suggestions sent him in unmarked envelopes, there would be "something doing" almost every week. There would be separations and divorces, people would be arrested and thrown in jail, and there would be much to relieve the community. But the kiddies never hear the other fellow's knocks, nor read the letters that are usefully planted in the stove. All they see is the nicely printed articles, and then they complain if a letter is left out or turned upside down, or if their initials are wrong in some commotionary notice of themselves, and growl if their own communications have been transcribed into readable English. If they knew all they would think the "writing" is the most ignorant editor in that thread bare clothing, who has just sense enough not to print all that he is asked to, and to temper much of what he does print.—Lakewood Progress.

WHAT SAVED HER LIFE

Mrs. Martin Tells About a Painful Experience that Might Have Ended Seriously

Riverton, Wyo.—Mrs. Dora North, in a letter from Riverton, wrote: "For three years, I suffered with unnaturally trouble, and had pain in my back and sides. I was nervous and could not sleep at night. The doctor could not help me. He said I would have to be operated on before I could get better. I thought I would try using Curb. I am now entirely well. I am sure Curb saved my life. I will never be without Curb in my house. I recommend Curb to all who suffer from this nervousness."

For fifty years, Curb has been re-

h MATLAB and diabetes caused by unnaturally trouble. It will safely help you. It goes to the stomach—causes the troubles—relieves the symptoms, and drives away the cravings.

If you suffer from any symptoms of un-naturally trouble, bring Curb to your nearest drug store and recommend it. Get a bottle from him today.
