

The New Mexican Printing Company has prepared civil and criminal dockets especially for the use of justices of the peace. They are especially ruled, with printed headings, in either Spanish or English, made of good record paper, strongly and durably bound with leather back and covers and canvas sides, have full index in front and the fees of justices of the peace and constables printed in full on the first page. The pages are 10 1/2 x 6 inches. These books are made up in civil and criminal dockets, separate of 32 pages each, or with both civil and criminal bound in one book, 80 pages civil and 320 pages criminal. To introduce them they are offered at the following low prices:

Civil or criminal.....$2.75
 Combined civil and criminal.....$4.00

For 45 cents additional for a single docket, or 55 cents additional for a combination docket, they will be sent by mail or prepaid express. Cash in full must accompany order. State plainly whether English or Spanish printed heading is wanted.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Santa Fe But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble. It is the kidney's cry for help. Heed it.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous. There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted. Are just what overworked kidneys need.

They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.

Read the proof from a Santa Fe citizen.

Mrs. M. S. Zimmerman, living at 331 San Francisco street, Santa Fe, N. M., says: "I have an exceedingly good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, and my estimation of this remedy is based on personal knowledge of the great value it has proved to a number of my friends and acquaintances. Of this fact I am positive, that those who suffer from kidney complaint will consult their own interests by giving Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

GLOBE TROTTER IN SANTA FE

M. William Smith Here on Way to Far East

LIKES NEW MEXICO CLIMATE Tells of His Observations While Traveling in the United States.

Among the tourists in Santa Fe last week was M. William Smith, of Exeter, England, who is en route to the new Far East. When he returns home a year hence he will have made a trip around the world. Mr. Williams during the past five years has been traveling most of the time and has developed into a full-fledged globe trotter. This is his second tour of the United States although when he visited this country the first time he did not get beyond the Atlantic states.

Mr. Williams has practically retired from business and is devoting himself to traveling now for health and pleasure. He has acquired a competency which brings him an ample revenue each year and he believes in spending the remainder of his life in quiet enjoyment. Imbued with a desire to see what lies beyond the tight little isle he began making excursions into the continent and since that time has traveled over nearly the entire civilized world.

The English tourist spent several days in Santa Fe and regretted that he could not remain longer. While here he visited the various points of scenic and historic interest in the around the city. Part of one day he spent at the United States Indian Industrial school here and he was much interested with the Indian boys and girls. He carries a camera with him on his journeyings and he secured several snapshots of the pupils and buildings.

Mr. Williams was delighted with the climate of New Mexico and especially of Santa Fe. He said that in all of his travels he never found a more congenial place with its blue skies, bright sunshine, and magnificent scenery. What impressed him most about the climate was the small percentage of humidity and the absence of oppressive heat. He said he began feeling an exhilarating buoyancy the minute he reached the mountainous region and this was particularly pronounced when he arrived in New Mexico.

New York City Mr. Williams thinks is a wonderful municipality, and he would not be surprised if in a few years more it will have a population larger than that of London.

He found that a great change had come over the city during the twenty-two years when he saw it first. Discussing his observations and impressions on his travels in this country he said:

New York a City of Skyscrapers.

"The numerous huge trust and office buildings soaring into the sky are the first most impressive feature of New York City, making the streets look like canons traversed by ceaseless currents of humanity surging and hurrying like the rapids of Niagara gorge. It is the strenuous life indeed, from the boys who run shoe shine parlors on the sidewalks to the bankers who keep open day and night, and the restaurants that never close. Trinity spire, which towered above the other buildings when I visited New York City twenty-two years ago, is now dwarfed by the adjacent skyscrapers.

"The endless procession of electric cars, surface, subway and overhead, make another notch on one's memory. The big department stores are another notable feature. They are stocked, equipped and organized on a scale so large that one wonders on which floor the bedrooms are located. Almost every human want is catered for. Elevators, local and express, passenger and freight, are always in motion; and it is not all buying and selling either. The stranger can walk around anywhere, look at the wares and refresh himself in the rest and comfort rooms with the daily newspapers, or attend a morning concert in the theater on the premises without being asked for a cent.

"Fifth avenue is the Pickadilly of New York and Broadway the cheap side of Oxford street, but our own London thoroughfares are so full of pleasant memories to make more than very general comparisons. During the week or so I stayed in New York City the spring weather was considered backward. Cold winds prevailed, but for my own part that was conducive to rapid transit."

"By the way, what a pity it is you Americans have not the nimble hansom cab at a reasonable fare. That is one of the conveniences a Londoner misses in the American metropolis. It is dollars in the big cities of this country where it is but shillings in England. The American capitalists, it seems to me, ought to take up this matter and add to their millions.

Washington a Beautiful City.

"Washington I visited on my way to the Jamestown Exposition. It is distinctly a political city. Its spacious avenues and beautiful residential quarters are among my many pleasant recollections of the seat of the national government. The Capitol and other governmental buildings are all fine architecturally, worthy of their great office, and are picturesquely located. But what I remember about Washington with greatest pleasure—after the White House, of course—is the magnificent Congressional Library. It is a building that is an honor to civilization—a thing of beauty, a dream of art, and a blessing to the book lover—a place where he can repose and lift himself out of the beaten track. The charm of the White House, to my humble mind, is its simple dignity. Like American public institutions generally it is open to people without the wearisome officialism that characterizes red-tape Europe.

"Art collections like those in the Corcoran art gallery in Washington, the Metropolitan Museum in New York City, and the public library at Boston are among the many evidences of the love of culture. In truth, it is not all mammon worship, as is sometimes alleged, to which the business American gives his heart. There is a love of knowledge here outside of the market reports in spite of European conceptions to the contrary.

"American colleges and universities are certainly ambitious. The students are drawn from the poor as well as the rich and class distinction is almost unknown. I have met young men in my travels in this country serving as waiters and bellhops at hotels and on steamboats during vacation time to earn enough to pay their tuition and board whilst they attended college to win a training for the higher professions. There is nothing degrading about this, it is a manly endeavor and deserving of contempt for the snob who ridicules it.

Carnegie Libraries Everywhere.

"It has been a source of pleasure to note on my journey across this great continent the frequency with which I have met with a Carnegie public library. Right here in New Mexico I paused to admire the welcome sight of that gracious institution. And how admirably arranged these libraries are, often with a lecture room combined. In one or more I have had the good fortune to listen to addresses on important questions and particularly one on Japan, in which the lecturer gave such a graphic description of the Japanese people, their institutions and aims that my intention to visit the "New Far East" was considerably emphasized.

"Santa Fe is a very picturesque little city, and I much regret that my short visit prevents me from seeing more of it. It impresses me as being a very salubrious place. The climate here is almost perfect. It is so light and airy that it gives one a feeling of buoyancy. Here you have a maximum of sunshine without the accompanying sultriness that is prevailing now in the East. South England has a fine climate, but the air there does not feel so stimulating and invigorating during the hot months. However, in the spring and autumn I don't think there is a better climate anywhere."

At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach a much as possible by the use of a little Kodol occasionally. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia will rest the stomach by actually digesting the food itself. Sold by The Ireland Pharmacy.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy, Better Than Three Doctors.

Three years ago we had three doctors with our little boy; and everything that they could do seemed in vain. At last when all hope seemed to be gone we began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and in a few hours he began to improve. Today he is as healthy a child as parents could wish for."—Mrs. B. J. Johnston, Linton, Miss. For sale by all druggists. For sale at all druggists.

OJO CALIENTE HOT SPRINGS.

These Celebrated Hot Springs are located in the midst of the Ancient Cliff Dwellers, twenty-five miles west of Taos, and fifty miles north of Santa Fe, and about twelve miles from Baranca Station, on the Denver & Rio Grande Railway, from which point a daily line of stages runs to the springs. The temperature of these waters is from 90 to 123 degrees. The gases are carbonic. Altitude, 6,000 feet. Climate very dry and delightful the year round. There is now a commodious hotel for the convenience of invalids, and tourists. People suffering with consumption, cancer, and other contagious diseases, are not accepted. These waters contain 1,688.24 grains of alkaline salts to the gallon, being the richest alkaline Hot Springs in the world. The efficacy of these waters has been thoroughly tested by the miraculous cures attested to in the following diseases: Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Malaria, Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Syphilitic and Mercurial Affections, Strabismus, Catarrh, La Grippe, all Femal Complaints, etc., etc. Board, lodging and bathing $2.50 per day; $15 per week; $50 per month. Stage meets Denver trains and waits for Santa Fe train upon request. This resort is attractive at all seasons and is open all winter. Passengers for Ojo Caliente can leave Santa Fe at 9 a. m., and reach Ojo Caliente at 4 p. m. the same day. Fare for round trip from Santa Fe to Ojo Caliente, $7.40. For further particulars, address
