Little "Billy" Possum Nation's Latest Toy

MRS. DE FOREST ALGOOD AND "BILLY" POSSUM THE TOY THAT IS BECOMING THE FAD OF THE MOMENT.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 9.—The latest member of the BBH club is "Billy" Possum. Since the indorsement of the possum as a table delicacy by President-elect Taft, Billy Possum has not only become the national dish, but he is beginning to have prominence in cartoons and on the stage and, sad to relate, he is now due to succeed Teddy Bear as the nation's favorite toy. Mrs. DeForest Algood, one of the charming society women of Atlanta, has just formed a company, with offices in the Flatiron building in New York city, under the name of the Georgia Billy Possum company. They have enormous contracts to supply the great department stores of New York, Chicago, Boston and other large cities with thousands of the mischievous looking toys. Two factories in New York are working to produce the sleek gray and black fur of the possum as true to life as possible and before March 4, every window in every shop in the country will be filled with the fat little possums staring with beady black eyes "Howdy" to the passers by. The "possum" act has already been introduced at a number of New York theatres. Mr. Possum is going to be the proper thing for the women of the stage. May Madden, who sings a possum song at the Circle theatre, has been presented with two live possums by Mrs. Algood. These after a treatment from her favorite bottle of perfume, were presented with collars of bright red ribbons and were immediately installed as her favorite pets at the King Edward hotel, where she lives. Anna Held, who has made an unusual hit in her song, "I've Lost My Little Brown Bear," has received a possum from Mrs. Algood as a recompense for the loss. Miss Held is to use the little animal when she appears to sing the last stanza of her song. The Honest Proprietary Medicine. has saved thousands of dollars to families who could ill afford the expense necessary to maintain the services of a physician, and have answered the purpose equally as well and often succeeded after our best physicians have failed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is one of this kind.

"FAUST" IS COMING

"Faust," with its long speeches and pessimistic philosophy, witches' kitchen, its students' cellar and the other features of the German play would have no chance of success in the United States. The tragedy, with the spirit of its philosophy and the feeling of its humanity, is all that our stage can hope to show. If this is done sufficiently clearly to tell the story, as is done by Mr. Sanford Dodge in his version of "Faust," and points the moral that lies in the conclusion of the first part of the original, it should command the sympathy of students and the applause of the public. Mr. Dodge in his stage setting and acting has achieved this most difficult task. He has also given the spectator a hint of the finality of the story in the apotheosis of Margaret. It would be more satisfactory of course if the ultimate salvation of the man by the woman could be shown; but this would be impracticable on the American stage, and the tragic scenes find a very natural denouement in the punishment of the man, and in the escape of the woman from the clutch of the fiend. The reverent student of "Faust" can no more complain of the dramatic treatment of a portion of the complete story, than can the student of history, when the playwright selects an episode from a reign or an incident in a life for dramatic inspiration. "Faust" bound with Satan, his sacrifice of Margaret to an inordinate passion, the struggle of his better nature to retrieve the past; the sorrows of the woman, which appeal trumpet-tongued at the Mercy-seat, and the fall of "Faust," a victim to rebellion against God, represent a complete and engrossing story, sufficient for the playwright, so far, for the dramatist, while the imagination, full of the entire subject, can take up the second part of the dream out the scene in Heaven, where, tied and purified, Faust eventually joins his earthly lot in the glorified choruses of Paradise. As he has said before, Mr. Stanford Dodge is a close and painstaking student of the drama, and his version of "Faust," which will be seen at the Elks theater next Monday evening is worthy of your attendance.

Some Reasons Why

The Citizen is a home paper. It is either delivered by carrier at the house or is carried home by the business man when his day's work is done and it STAYS THERE. A morning paper is usually carried down town by the head of the family and hurriedly read.

The Citizen is not read hurriedly, but thoroughly so that all advertisements receive their share of attention. It presents the store news a little ahead, giving the prospective purchaser time to plan a shopping tour for the next morning.

Wise advertisers patronize The Citizen because they know their advertisements are seen and read at the homes in the evening, and if they are offering something worthy of attention, their ad has accomplished its mission.

The Citizen has never given premiums to subscribers but is subscribed to and paid for on its news merits, showing that its subscribers have money with which to buy what they want from legitimate merchants. These are the people The Citizen invites to your store.

The Citizen employs a man whose business it is to look after your advertising wants. He will write your copy if you wish, if not, he will see that your ads are "set up" to look their best and he will attend to them from day to day.

Are you advertising in The Citizen? Your competitors are, and are profiting by it. Do you think conservative business men are spending money where they are not getting results? Get in the swim and watch your business grow.
