A. H. S. FOOTBALL TEAM WILL PLAY WINSLOW HIGHS

Game to Take Place at Winslow, Marking Local Highs First Time Outside of New Mexico.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEARNED WIRE.) The high school football team will make its first trip outside New Mexico this season with the Albuquerque team to Winslow, Ariz., to play the high school team of that town November 11. The Winslow high has been making a strong showing against teams of its class in Arizona this season and the game between that school and the Albuquerque team, it is expected, will be a hard fought.

The high school team's schedule for the season has been completed. It calls for three games here. They will be played October 28, when the team will meet the Indians, November 4, when the Santa Fe high comes to Albuquerque, and November 15, when the high meets the Maricopa school. This will be the second contest between the high and Maricopa this year.

The high will not play here Thanksgiving day owing to the fact that the University of New Mexico has scheduled a game with the Aggies for that date. The high will play in Santa Fe, meeting the Apolito in their second contest on Turkey day. A ticket selling campaign has been started by high school students. They wish to dispose of season tickets, giving admittance to the three games to be played on home grounds. The season tickets sell for $1. Fifty cents admittance will be charged for each game if you do not have a season ticket.

DISCUSS HEALTH AT FORTY-FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING

Convention in Cincinnati of American Public Health Association Discusses Subjects in Line With Their Work.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEARNED WIRE.) Cincinnati, Oct. 24.—Health insurance, public health, mental hygiene and the milk problem were the general topics discussed at the first day's session of the forty-fourth annual convention of the American Public Health Association here today. Dr. John B. Andrews of New York, head of the American Association of Labor Legislation, in discussing health insurance, said that when first advocated it had three enemies, the employer, the laboring man and the physician. Now, however, he said, the two first named enemies had disappeared, but the third, the physician, still remained. He said that the physician feels that in the present phase his position has not been properly protected.

The effect of alcohol on the public health was discussed by Dr. Haven Emerson, commissioner of health of New York city, and Dr. J. Robertson, health commissioner of Chicago, both asserting that it was the duty of every health officer in the United States to touch the doctrine that alcohol has a very disastrous effect on the public health.

Dr. V. C. Barker, assistant surgeon general of the United States public health service, discussed the administration of public health, while H. W. Conn, director of the laboratories of the Connecticut state board of health, vigorously defended bacteriological analysis as the only satisfactory basis for grading milk.

In his principal address, Dr. John P. Alderson, president of the association, aroused considerable discussion when he said it was not necessary for a health officer to be a physician.

BITTER FIGHT IN AUSTRALIA OVER DRAFT SERVICE

Prime Minister Hughes Appeals for Compulsion to Supply Soldiers for Great Britain During War.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEARNED WIRE.) Melbourne, Oct. 24.—The Australian commonwealth now is in the throes of a campaign for and against compulsory military service, which was brought on a few weeks ago by the decision of the Hughes government to submit the question to a referendum to be held October 28.

The enrollment situation at this time shows that 195,000 reinforcements voluntarily have been enrolled, additional reinforcements needed up to July 1, next year, are 100,000, and 155,000 men are available, according to the war census, who are "fit, single and without dependents."

The government's plan is that the voluntary requirement is to be continued, the deficiency to be made up by conscription, men to be called up month by month as required, no compulsory calling up of men under 21 years of age; absolute exemptions otherwise: (1) only sons, (2) single men who are the sole support of dependents, (3) in families which have already furnished conscripts, the number of the remaining members of the family up to one-half, the constitution of non-military tribunals to hear appeals for exemptions.

Referendum Ballot Simple. The referendum question which will be submitted to the electors of October 28, will be the simple one: "Do you elect to call up the electors on October 28, and who, the man and women voters of the commonwealth at home and on active service abroad will answer simply with the words: "Yes," or "No," will read as follows:

"I vote in favor of the government having in this grave emergency, the same compulsory powers over electors in regard to requiring their military service for the term of this war, outside the commonwealth, as it now has in regard to military service within the commonwealth."

Labor Party Is Split. Since the prime minister came out flatly for compulsory service, events have been rapid and dramatic. The labor party, of which Mr. Hughes was a founder, is split into two factions over the issue of conscription. He, with most of the federal labor party, (that is, those members of it in the commonwealth parliament) and some members of the state labor governments of New South Wales and South Australia, are ranged on the side of conscription, and bitterly opposed to him, and his supporters, are several members of the federal party, powerful trades unionists based in Melbourne and Sydney, and laborite politicians in several state governments.

Hughes Is Expelled. Mr. Hughes has been expelled from the parliament of New South Wales by the officers of that organization, which represents various unions, but he refuses to recognize their action. Other leading laborites in public life are under almost as severe a ban. The minister for education, Frank Lister, and the minister for the interior, recently declared he was out of sympathy with conscription on the question of conscription.

But to offset the cleavage in his own party, which is growing more pronounced as the day for voting nears, Mr. Hughes has approached Mr. Hughes, his backing, and he ordinarily determined political antagonists, the liberals, both in the federal parliament, and in the various states.

Quoted President Lincoln. In a manifesto addressed to the voters of the commonwealth, appealing to them to vote "yes" on the referendum, Mr. Hughes quoted President Lincoln's defense of the draft at the height of the civil war, and added:

"As it was in the northern states in Lincoln's time, so it is with us today. Like them, we fight in the cause of liberty. Voluntarism has failed us, as it failed them. And we, like them, unless we confess ourselves degenerate—must tread the path they trod, along which they rode resolutely to victory."

The prime minister's speech, in opening the campaign for the referendum, was an impassioned one. He said in the course of it:

"Can anyone doubt that if Germany wins, she will lay her predatory hands on this country of ours? If the allies win, we are free Australians, as we know it, would we not be free? Think of that, all of you who hesitate and dabble about your rights. Conscription, as it is called, against which all this outcry has been raised, has been the law for years. It is and has been and will be a plank of the labor platform. It is true that the law as it stands is confined to compulsory military service inside the commonwealth, but the principle, compulsion, is there."

The strength of the anti-conscriptionists was shown a few nights later when they held a meeting on a same spot. This was so numerously attended as was the Hughes meeting.

TWO CORN SENSATIONS STRIKE PEORIA, ILL.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEARNED WIRE.) Peoria, Ill., Oct. 24.—Two sensations struck the board of trade here today. The first was Illinois corn selling for $1 per bushel, and the second that a large shipment of Argentine corn was en route to a local commission house.

The first shipment of Argentine corn is expected to arrive here tomorrow morning and will be offered in competition with grain grown in Illinois. It is claimed that Argentine corn has an advantage over Illinois corn for the first four months after harvest, because of its lack of moisture. Illinois corn shows 23 per cent moisture up to that time, whereas Argentine corn shows but 11 per cent. The difference amounts to 12 cents a bushel for manufacturing purposes in favor of the imported corn.

It is understood the imported corn will be used by local exporters which have large contracts for the manufacture of alcohol for the allies. Local distillers have been the chief buyers in this market for the past several months.

RUMANIANS ARE FIGHTING BETTER WITH EXPERIENCE

German Artillery Fire, as Viewed by Associated Press Correspondent, Is Far More Effective Than Enemy's.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEARNED WIRE.) On the Rumanian Front with the Army of General von Falkenhayn, October 18.—(Via London, Oct. 24.)—Through a visit made by the Associated Press correspondent during the last few days along the entire line of the Transylvania front, including the Hungarian and German forces, it has been possible to form an idea of the operations of the German and Rumanian forces against the Rumanians.

For several days the Rumanians have held only a few points along the border, while the Germans have advanced through the Red Tower pass to as far as two miles beyond the town of Rine Vastul, and in proximity to Campulung, through the Teusburg pass. Today the correspondent witnessed an engagement which brought the Hungarian and German forces into possession of important positions.

Under Heavy Artillery Fire. The action was inaugurated with heavy artillery preliminaries upon the Rumanians holding the mountain ridges which command the pass on the east. The German and Hungarian infantry, meanwhile, had deployed over the lower slopes, advancing later over the difficult ground. For two hours the Rumanian lines were under a severe artillery fire from the smaller caliber guns, and they fell back as the Hungarian and German infantry approached.

At about 2 o'clock in the afternoon the rifles and machine guns of the Teutonic allies drove off the Rumanians and simultaneously an infantry attack on the Rumanians holding the border, which forms the border between the Hungarian and German forces, was made. The Rumanians made a good stand, but elsewhere the German artillery was too much for them.

When night fell the Rumanians had lost several of their positions, which offered good vantage points for defense.

Guns Terribly Accurate. The action was most spectacular, as seen from the correspondent's observation point. Its most prominent feature was the terrible accuracy of the Hungarian and German artillery fire, the effects of which was watched from a distance of 3,700 yards.

The first shells fired were mainly high-velocity, causing the Rumanians to swarm out of their trenches. On the slope to the northwest, a magazine was hit and exploded, causing the Rumanians to scatter wildly.

Though the single long street of the mountainous town, Rumanian reinforcements were advancing but these broke their formation when the bombardment started. For four hours the narrow pass was filled with a deafening roar and the reverberations of the artillery and the sharp crack of the machine gun and rifle fire, while the tops of the mountains, as well as Pass height, were draped in a dense cloud of powder smoke and dust.

The actions at the Veldin, Red Tower, Teusburg and Predel passes, as well as the open field engagements near Hermanstadt, along the river Aluta, in the Ghast forest, and at Krasniti, were all witnessed by the Associated Press correspondent.

Rumanians Are Hardening. The indications are that the Rumanians are hardening up, as lately many of their organizations have stood their ground well, especially new regiments along the Transylvanian border.

The correspondent met several hundred Rumanian prisoners during his visit who gave him their impressions, which seemed to justify the estimate that the Rumanian army is still far from the point where it is able to meet its opponents on the basis of equal numbers. While the Rumanian artillery is seemingly still of doubtful value, an improvement is notable in the organized bodies. Rumanians of the first and second armies still are in the mountains, but aside from these men, Transylvania has been cleared from Palanaka pass to Ersova.

At Campulung, as well as at Red Tower, the Rumanians were outflanked yesterday by the German mountain troops, who succeeded in crossing the mountains, the man carrying food for four days and ammunition, scaling the steep mountain sides and descending into deep valleys and gorges until a point was reached where the Rumanian flank could be attacked.
