ONE CONVICT IS CAUGHT ON HIS WAY TO NEW YORK; TWO ARE STILL MISSING

Ralph Taylor, "Silk Hat Burglar," Captured in Little Town on Harlem Road.

INSTRUMENTS WEAPONS.

Trio Break Away From Prison After Felling Guards Following Rehearsal.

(Special to The Evening World.) OSSINGING, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Ralph Taylor, one of the convicts who escaped from Sing Sing prison last night, was captured at Bedford station on the Harlem Railroad, this afternoon by the chief of police of that village. When word was received of the capture at the prison Warden Frost left in an auto to bring Taylor back.

The escape from Sing Sing last night will go down into prison history as the "trampoline get-away." The convicts went about their tasks today with broad grins on their faces, and the keepers and guards looked sheepish. The feelings of Warden Frost and Headkeeper Connaughton could not be described in a home and family newspaper like The Evening World.

Alexander McGinley and Wilfred Webster, the keepers who were overpowered by three convicts armed with a trombone, a cornet and a yellow clarinet, were not injured enough to keep them off duty. They told their stories in detail to Warden Frost today, and the details bring out the fact that the escape was quite a simple matter.

McGinley, captain of the night guard, and Webster took the prison orchestra of sixteen pieces to the officers' mess last night for rehearsal.

The Musicians.

Among the most promising musicians in the orchestra were William Bush of this city, serving a life sentence for murder, Ralph Taylor, the "Silk Hat Burglar" of Westchester County, serving a twenty-one year sentence, and Charles McGinn, sentenced from this city to a term of five years for burglary. Bush, a big, powerful man, played the slide trombone or "slip horn"—a most appropriate instrument in the light of subsequent events. Taylor played the clarinet and McGinn the cornet. The three men sat together near a door leading into an entry connecting the officers' mess with the main prison buildings.

The rehearsal began at 6:30 o'clock and an enjoyable time was had by all, as the editor of the Star of Hope would say. At 8 o'clock the music started to leave the room, passing into the entry and Webster ordered the orchestra to line up for the march to the cellhouse.

As McGinley, who was clad in a heavy ulster, stepped into the entry Bush leaped after him and smashed him on top of the head with the slide trombone. McGinley went down, partially stunned and with his scalp cut open.

At the same moment Taylor and McGinn jumped on Webster, throttled him, threw him down, and then a revolver and then made a dash for the prison yard. Before McGinley and Webster could regain their feet—they were not down more than fifteen seconds—the three convicts had disappeared.

Flee Through Fog.

One of the thickest fogs ever seen in the Hudson River valley came over the city today. It was impossible to see for more than five or ten feet in the prison yard. The fugitives, with a few revolver shots scattering after them, ran to a rusty iron fence along the river bank. They climbed the fence and made it.

They turned north and kept along the ice until they were clear of the prison. At about the time the big whistle was sounding the alarm they made their way off the ice, crossed the railroad tracks, climbed a steep hill and disappeared in the direction of the town of Ossining. Their tracks were found today.

During his ten years in the prison Bush had not received a single bad mark. He would probably have been recommended for parole in a few years more. He was employed in the library and Warden Frost believes that he framed up the plan to escape with the assistance of Taylor.

No trace has yet been found of the other two prisoners.

JUDGE O'GORMAN, WHO LOOMS UP FOR THE SENATE.

JUSTICE O'GORMAN IS URGED TO BREAK SENATE DEADLOCK

Rumor in City Hall That Jurist Is Being Considered to Replace Sheehan.

According to reports current about the City Hall this afternoon Charles F. Murphy and the other party leaders have come to the conclusion that William P. Sheehan cannot be elected United States Senator and have agreed that the name of Justice of the Supreme Court James A. O'Gorman should be placed to insure his election.

In case the warring elements in the Democracy should agree on Justice O'Gorman—or enough insurgent votes could be pledged to insure his election—Mr. Sheehan, according to the reported programme, would withdraw. Of course his entire caucus strength would go to the substitute majority candidate.

INDICT TWENTY-SIX MORE IN JERSEY ELECTION FRAUDS

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 27.—Twenty-six indictments for alleged election frauds were handed down today by the Camden County Grand Jury, making a total of fifty-five within a week.

ELEVEN-CENT PIN ONE OF HUBBY'S SPLENDID GIFTS

Once Ullman Gave Her a Dime for "Carriage" Ride, Mrs. Ullman Admits.

AND ONCE LEMONADE. Pretty Staten Island Girl Wife Accused of Desertion Tells More of Her Woes.

Mrs. Edna Ullman, the pretty young woman of Tottenville, Staten Island, who pleaded that she was justified in leaving her husband, Percival G. Ullman Jr., because he would not give her enough to eat, was again cross-examined to-day before Supreme Court Justice Clark at Richmond.

Although she has been married three years, Mrs. Ullman is only twenty years old and is very good looking. To-day she answered her husband's attorney's questions that Ullman never had taken her out for a carriage ride. "The only carriage rides I ever got," she continued, "were in the hack from the Huguenot railroad station to my home, and that hack was anything but a carriage."

She said that on two occasions when she went to visit her parents, her husband gave her ten cents more than her carfare and with this she rode in the hack.

His Eleven-Cent Gift.

"Isn't it a fact," she was asked, "that on several occasions when your husband went away on business trips he would always bring you some little trinket home with him?"

"He brought me a stickpin from one of his trips and I could buy this same pin anywhere for eleven cents."

This answer caused the spectators to laugh and Justice Clark threatened to clear the room if there was more merriment.

"Well, how about your posing for post cards which you know these were to be put on sale in stores near your home?" was asked.

"I did pose for pictures, but I never dreamed they were to be put on post cards or offered for sale."

Witness then went on to say "During the time I was ill I was allowed only one pint of milk a day, and no matter how I pleaded with my husband, he would not get me more. Finally I was compelled to go home because I could not get enough to eat in my husband's home."

Once Bought Lemonade.

Yesterday the witness testified that her husband had given her only two summer dresses during their three years of married life. Her husband, she testified, objected to her people coming to the house and she added that when his own brother came to the house he said he did not want him to come any more.

Once her husband took her out, she said, and that was to a beach entertainment at Huguenot, where he bought her a glass of lemonade. She could not live in the house without sufficient food so she went to her parents' home, where she has since lived.

Her husband said his wife needlessly deserted him and that she not only refused to cook his meals for him but made life very unpleasant for him before he left. He asks for a separation.

MAURETANIA, LATE 19 HOURS, BRINGS WEDDING GUESTS

Lord Decies and Miss Gould at Pier to Meet the Drexels.

Because of the thick fog, the Cunard liner Mauretania did not reach her dock until 3 o'clock this afternoon, about nineteen hours late. Had weather conditions been favorable she could have landed her passengers at 8 o'clock last night. She broke a record for a day's run on the way across and her officers and passengers were more or less irritated by the delay due to thick weather.

The forthcoming wedding of Lord Decies and Vivian Gould was responsible for the arrival of several of the passengers. Among them were J. Armstrong Drexel and his mother, Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel.

Mr. Drexel is the aviator who divided honors with the stars at the Belmont Park meet. He will remain here with his mother until after the wedding. Lord Decies with several members of the Gould family were at the pier to meet the Drexels, and two of the ushers who will serve at the wedding. They are the Right Hon. Lord Camoys, a brother-in-law of the groom-to-be, and Capt. Edward Lamb.

Other passengers of note were John R. Hecman, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and his wife; Sir Charles Wyndham, the English actor, and his leading woman, Mary Moore; Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and his bride, H. Gordon Seifridge.

STREET GUN FIGHT ENDANGERS LIVES OF MANY CHILDREN

Passerby Hit by Bullet Fired by Men at 109th Street and First Avenue.

Two young men armed with revolvers fought a street duel at One Hundred and Ninth street at 1 o'clock this afternoon while the two thoroughfares were thronged with children on their way to the public school at First avenue and One Hundred and Tenth street.

Five shots were fired, and one struck Vincenzo Juglatto of No. 233 Madison avenue, who was passing, inflicting a painful wound in his right side.

The two contestants got into an argument on the corner. One drew a revolver and fired. The other returned three shots and the first fired again. Then both disappeared into the doorway of a first avenue tenement.

Juglatto was struck by the third shot fired and he dropped to the sidewalk with a yell of pain. The reckless young ruffian, upon seeing him fall, made tracks out of the neighborhood and no trace of them has been found.

RANSOM OF $5,000 FOR VANISHED GIRL DEMAND ON FATHER

Writer Threatens That Wealthy Importer Arnold Will Never See Missing Daughter If He Does Not Comply With Orders.

FAILED TO MEET GIRL CHUM ON THE DAY SHE VANISHED

Mother Said to Have Expressed Bitterness Against One of Dorothy's Suitors—Family Rejects All Theories but That She Is Dead or Held Prisoner.

From Francis R. Arnold, the wealthy importer for whose beautiful daughter Dorothy a world-wide search is being made since she disappeared from the sight of her family and friends on Dec. 12, Lawyer John S. Keith of Garvan & Armstrong, who have had charge of much of the search, to-day received an unsigned letter which was dropped in the letter box of the Arnold home, unstamped.

Mr. Keith understood from the family that the letter was found yesterday. It was dated Jan. 25, the day before the fact of the girls disappearance was made public through the newspapers.

MOB BESIEGES KAISER'S PALACE CRYING FOR WORK

German Ruler in Grounds Is Protected by Police from Angry Unemployed.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—A large crowd of the unemployed men attempted a hostile demonstration in the vicinity of the Kaiser's Palace today at a time when Emperor William was transmitting the passport to the Castle watch.

The manifestos were driven away by the police and marched through the central district of the city hurrying insulting epithets at the officers and shouting "We want work."

Today is Emperor William's fifty-second birthday. Among the honors announced in connection with the anniversary, Admiral von Turteltaub was promoted to be an Admiral of the Fleet.

ADMIRAL BARRY RESIGNS ON PRESIDENT TAFT'S ORDER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—By direction of the President, Secretary of the Navy Meyer asked Admiral S. B. Barry for his resignation. It has been received and was accepted today "for the good of the service," according to an advance announcement made by Secretary Meyer.

The enforced resignation is the outcome of charges which have been in circulation affecting the moral character of the naval officer. The resignation, severing the officer's connection with the American Navy after forty-five years of active service, was received today and his name was at once stricken from the list of naval officers. This act terminated his salary from the Government.

Mrs. Bull Will Recover.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 27.—The attending physicians announced today that Mrs. William T. Bull, widow of the late New York surgeon, who has been ill here, will probably recover. The result has been in doubt for some weeks. Mrs. Bull is at her Dudley Place villa suffering from nervous prostration.

Letter's Dates in Conflict.

The conflicting time of the dates in the letter and the date lead the investigators to believe it was really written after the disappearance of the girl but been widely published in the newspapers and that the illiterate writer was trying to make it appear that the letter was written before yesterday.

"Mr. Arnold has received several other letters," Mr. Keith said, "but they are obviously the work of weak-minded or mischievous persons even to a greater extent than the one which is given out."

There are fifty-nine families in the tenement at No. 415 East Sixty-fourth street, several of them Germans. Letter box No. 3 belongs to Mrs. Sophie Harris, the caretaker.

Two detectives from Headquarters arrived at the house late this afternoon to run down the letter clue.

Late this afternoon word came to Mr. Arnold from Philadelphia that a man reported that he heard two chauffeurs talking about the Arnold case in front of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in that city. One of them said that a girl re-
