

WAR HITS CLOSE TO THESE CHILDREN OF TITLED AMERICAN MOTHERS

These three little Vanderbilts are loyal to Hungary. They are Alice, Gladys (in arms of nurse), and Cornelia, daughters of Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt.

Lady Mary Irene Curson is thoroughly British in sentiment. She is the eldest daughter of Earl Curson and her mother was Miss Mary Victoria Leiter of Chicago.

The little Duc de Chaulnes is devoted to the cause of France. He is the son of the former Miss Theodora Shonts, daughter of Theodore P. Shonts.

Another loyal French subject is Prince de Talleyrand, son of the Duchess de Talleyrand, who was Miss Anna Gould.

While too young to appreciate the serious side of war, baby Eileen Vivien Decies is Briton to the core. She is the daughter of Lady Decies, who was Miss Vivien Gould.

This boy is heir to a name famous in England's military annals. He is the future Duke of Marlborough, whose mother was Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt.

Although safe in America, the heart of little Leonora Felicia Gisycka turns to her native Russia. Her mother, the Countess Gisycka, who was Miss Eleanor Patterson of Chicago and Washington, secured custody of the child by order of the Czar after a stormy married life.
