

LOVE, PATHOS AND TRAGEDY IN THE DRAMATIC STORY OF "MY LADY'S DRESS" AT THE PLAYHOUSE • By Eleanor Schorer

BY SIGN QUARTERMAN AND MARY BOLAND

AN ITALIAN ROMANCE

AN 1850 COMEDY OVER DUTCH LACE

THE FLOWER MAKER

BEHIND THE SCENES AT THE MODISTE

BY ELEANOR SCHORER.

There are things few of us think of. Once romance, tragedy and comedies that are woven and interwoven with every thread: the big salt tears long since dried and hidden in the heart of a rose at midnight's coverage.

In your latest evening creation adorned with a black cable love tragedy and do the fluffy sleeves of gold lace breathe of a delicious two-hundred-year-old comedy staged in Holland? The wonderful gown that Miss Mary Boland wears does not least that in the way the charming story of "My Lady's Dress" goes. I wonder what the really, truly story of the evolution of that dress actually is. But why build fantasies on that dress? I've some of my own. The story of "My Lady's Dress" is the story of every dress. Tales of love, laughter, sighs and tears. The intrigue, comedy, romance and tragedy sewed in every seam from the silk worm stages to when your very fashionable modist's mannequins parade the finished product before your dazzled eyes.

If midday seeks suggestions for stunning gowns "My Lady's Dress" has scores to offer.

If, as thousands of women are, she is interested in social betterment, "My Lady's Dress" will set one on the track of a splendid course to pursue.

What an interesting sequence of events of their creation could our clothes disclose would they but take us into their confidence.

"My Lady's Dress" teaches us to read between the threads.

WON'T TRY MRS. CARMAN AGAIN UNLESS SHE ASKS, SAYS PROSECUTOR

after the shooting I asked little Elizabeth where she herself was when the shot sounded. She said she was in the dining room and ran upstairs to her mamma's room and found her mamma sitting on the edge of the bed in her nightgown. They've said Elizabeth was coached for the trial. Well, she wasn't coached then.

"I do not believe anybody believes really Mrs. Carman is guilty. Mrs. Duryea, Mrs. Carman's mother, came over to me just after the jury came in and put her hand on my shoulder and said 'Doctor, who do you think killed my Lulu?' I told her I'd done my best to find out and she said she believed me and asked me to bring Mrs. Carman to Hempstead to see me and I promised I would as soon as she came back from the country.

"I've been asked why I didn't say on the stand that Mrs. Carman's use of the dictograph was not remarkable because lots of women in Freepost were using them. I do not know that they are in general use in Freepost, though there are a lot of stories around.

"Mrs. Carman is a good sport; she is such a good sport that she refuses to tell me who first suggested the dictograph to her. I don't know who first started up all this trouble between us. But I do know that any story that we are thinking of a separation is a lie. We love each other and our child too much to think of such a thing. All we want now is to be let alone in our home."

COULDN'T GET A JURY TO CONVICT A WOMAN.

"I do not believe a jury in Nassau County," said District-Attorney Smith to-day, "can be brought to convict a woman of murder in the first degree. Such a conviction might be obtained in Kings County, but I shall never move to take this case there. I have never sought to prosecute Mrs. Carman. I am very sorry for her, and while it was my duty to set the case against her before a jury, I personally hoped for an acquittal. We have an unwritten law for men all over the country. Why cannot a woman who is rendered reckless and ferocious by emotional strain—whether right or wrong in her suspicions—have an unwritten law? Unless the attorneys for Mrs. Carman demand a new trial, there will be none.

"This indictment may run as long as Mrs. Carman lives. If the defense seeks to have the indictment quashed I shall offer them the alternative of a new trial. Certainly there can be no new trial before December, when Justice Crane sits in Mincola. In the event of a new trial I think both sides would be willing to have Celia Coleman's testimony read from the record of the trial. She is going back to South Carolina in a few days, but we will know where she is and may call her back if need be.

"As yet I have found no verification that members of the jury disobeyed the Judge's instructions against discussing the case before it was finally committed to them by his charge. Even if the report is true, it would not be ground for a new trial. It would subject the offending jurymen to punishment for contempt of court. I am sorry for the criticism levelled at the two men who felt Mrs. Carman ought to be found guilty of manslaughter; they were men of a high-minded type and proved their good citizenship by sticking to their honor convictions."

GLYNN TO ANSWER WHITMAN WITH SHOT AT HIS APPOINTEES

District-Attorney Goes Up State, While Governor Campaigns in City.

District-Attorney Whitman left town early this morning to campaign through the northern and central parts of the State. Gov. Glynn arrives here to-morrow morning and will occur the metropolis and suburbs up to Monday night.

So lacking have been the usual evidences of enthusiasm and interest for both parties and candidates that managers are at sea over the result. While Republican and Democratic leaders both make bold claims of certain success, this is the ordinary political bluff for public effect. In reality they are puzzled and uncertain.

Political ammunition for the final bombardment has been prepared on each side. Mr. Whitman is slaming Gov. Glynn with the record of various Tammany appointees in various State departments, aiming particularly at the Comptroller's and State Engineer's Departments. He charges that many Tammany leaders and other men with discreditable records are holding offices. The District-Attorney makes dramatic recital of the list by reading their records.

Gov. Glynn, who he gets to town, is to unlimber heavy artillery and fire the same kind of shells at Mr. Whitman. He will read the list of assistant district-attorneys appointed by Mr. Whitman and disclose the records of some of them. More revelations concerning the subterranean activities of Lemuel Ely Quigg, in Republican politics and in the District-Attorney's office are to be recited by the Governor.

William Sulzer, who will spend the rest of the campaign in and around this city, will speak to-night at Yonkers, New Rochelle, White Plains and Mount Vernon. He will make a whirlwind trip through Kings County to-morrow, speaking at eleven meetings. Thursday night he will speak at nine meetings in Manhattan and the Bronx. Friday he will make a campaign through Long Island. Saturday he will address mass meetings on the east side.

JURY SAYS WALCOTT'S DEATH WAS ACCIDENT

Partner of Man Who Fell From Window Explains the Tragedy.

A jury in Coroner Healy's court to-day found that Philip K. Walcott of the firm of Hawkins, Delafield & Longfellow did not commit suicide—that Walcott did not jump from the thirteenth floor of No. 20 Exchange place on the morning of Aug. 6, but was leaning from a window when he lost his balance and fell.

Louis L. Delafield, a member of the firm, told why, in his opinion, the suicide theory was out of the question. Said Mr. Delafield:

"Mr. Walcott had everything that a man of his age, thirty-six, might live

BIT A GIFT HORSE.

Man Who Aided Old Friend to the Victim.

When Henry Zeimer, once wealthy but now penniless, was arrested last Sept. 24, charged with forgery in a check case, Samuel Zimmerman, a millinery dealer at No. 5 Great Jones street, and an old friend, came to his assistance. He got Zeimer out of his trouble and gave him a job, but the old man (Zeimer is sixty-seven years old) did not seem to appreciate the help, and on Oct. 10 Zimmerman had to let him go. A few days later he found that many checks had been stolen from his mail, and when one of them was traced to Zeimer Detective Laukeman arrested him last night in the same mansion in Bond street where Laukeman had caught him before.

In 1906 the police arrested him for running a divorce mill. It was found that Zeimer and his partner had got more than 100 divorces on fraudulent testimony and Zeimer was sent to prison for ten years.

WOMAN DIES, HEARING OF BROTHER'S DEATH

Policeman Broke News to Her of Fatal Accident and She Expired.

Miss Della Cunningham, sixty-four years old, who lived alone at No. 128 Hoyt street, Brooklyn, listened quietly to-day while Policeman Edward Hart, of the Butler street station, told her as gently as possible of the death of her brother, Edward, her only living relative, who was crushed beneath the wheels of his own truck yesterday. He drove for the Scranton Lehigh Coal Co. and was leaning over the side of his truck as he backed against the curbside at No. 14 Gates avenue, when he slipped from the seat under the wheels.

As Hart finished, Miss Cunningham slipped unconscious to the floor. The policeman tried to resuscitate her, and, failing, sent for Dr. Lee from the Holy Family Hospital. The physician needed only a glance to tell that the woman was dead. The news of her brother's death had been too great a shock.
