WILSON UNABLE TO WITNESS CEREMONY

REAL STORY NOW REVEALED OF WILSON'S LONG ILLNESS; PARTLY BLIND LIKE T. R.

Was Found One Morning Stricken in Bed at the White House. LIFE DESPAIRED OF. Has Suffered Severe Attack of Thrombosis—Once Thought of Resigning.

WASHINGTON, March 4 (Associated Press)—Woodrow Wilson left the White House to-day to resume the practice of law, a profession in which he has not been active in many years. He will have as his associate Bainbridge Colby, the retiring Secretary of State.

The second Democratic President since Andrew Jackson to fill two successive terms, Mr. Wilson's eight years in the White House carried him through the range of human emotions. He was almost blindly idealized and cordially hated. Profound peace, the most terrible of wars, death of a wife and helpmate, courtship and marriage, and finally lingering illness all came in turn to brighten or darken his days. Eight years of it whitened his hair, racked his frame and impaired his physical vigor, but did not rattle his mind. His physician says he is able to take up legal work, and he will make application for admission to practice before the Supreme Court.

Characterized by his friends as much a wounded veteran of the World War as if he had been shot in battle, he goes back to private life today regarded by his partisans as a living sacrifice to his ideals.

Woodrow Wilson was not a well man when he took up the Presidency. He was decidedly a sick man. He was threatened with Bright's disease, which physicians diagnosed as having been brought about by a particular treatment for frequent head aches to which he and the first Mrs. Wilson were subject. The wife died soon after, but his case yielded to care.

Some years before that, Mr. Wilson had suffered a thrombosis in one of his legs. It was the lodging of a blood clot in an artery, but because of its location not serious. It was, however, a complaint of the same nature which caused his breakdown in 1919, when the clot formed on the right side of his brain impairing the control of his left arm and leg.

Little known, also, is the fact that Mr. Wilson, like Mr. Roosevelt, is practically sightless in one of his eyes. Bursting blood vessels in the retina practically made it useless, although the impairment was in part overcome by the use of eyeglasses. He suffered also from nervous indigestion. With a predisposition to

$2,806,029,647 TOTAL VOTED BY CONGRESS FOR FISCAL YEAR 1922

Reduction of Nearly Billion and a Half From Estimates, Official Senate Figure

WASHINGTON, March 4.—TOTAL appropriations by Congress for the fiscal year 1922, were $2,806,029,647. Chairman Warren of the Senate Appropriations Committee announced in the Senate today that this represents a reduction of $1,424,955,249 from the estimates submitted, and a cut from appropriations for 1921 of $39,247,310, he said.

HARDING PLEDGES NATION TO HELP LIMIT ARMAMENTS IN INAUGURAL ADDRESS

"We Can Reduce Abnormal Expenditures and We Will," He Says—"We Can Strike Out War Taxation; We Can End Government Experiments in Business; There Is No Place in America for Revolution; the Tariff Must Be Readjusted."

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Following is the inaugural address delivered to-day by President Warren G. Harding:

HARDING STARTS IN WITH INNOVATION IN NAMING CABINET

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Harding's first official act was to break a precedent by submitting in person his list of Cabinet officers to the Senate in executive session. He addressed the Senators briefly.

HUMAN LIBERTY GLORIFIED BY OUR NATION.

"We have seen the world rivet its hopeful gaze on the great truths on which the founders wrought. We have seen civil, human and religious liberty verities and glorified. In the beginning, the Old World scoffed at our experiment. To-day our foundations of political and social belief stand unshaken, a precious inheritance to ourselves, an inspiring example of freedom and civilization to all mankind. Let us express renewed and strengthened devotion, in grateful reverence for the immortal beginning, and utter our confidence in the supreme fulfillment.

"The recorded progress of our Republic, materially and spiritually, in itself proves the wisdom of the inherited policy of non-involvement in Old World affairs. Confident of our ability to work out our own destiny, and jealously guarding our right to do so, we seek no part in directing the destinies of the Old World. We do not mean to be entangled. We will accept no responsibility except as our own conscience and judgment in each instance may determine.

"SENATE THROW ME DOWN," WILSON TELLS SEN. KNOX, "BUT I DON'T WANT TO FALL DOWN."

Dramatic Meeting With Senator Lodge, His Bitterest Foe, Marks Last Few Minutes of President's Stay in Capitol.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—After Mr. Wilson reached his home in S Street, returning from the Capitol, Admiral Grayson, who accompanied him, addressed him as "Mr. President."

"No," Mr. Wilson interrupted, smiling, "plain Woodrow Wilson now."

HARDING TAKES THE OATH CHEERED BY GREAT CROWD; WILSON GOES TO NEW HOME

New President Departs From His Set Speech to Pledge Aid to Service Men—Wilson Rides to Capitol With Him, Walking Unassisted—Coolidge Is Sworn In—Crowds Wait Hours in Bitter Wind.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Warren G. Harding was inaugurated to-day as the twenty-ninth President and Calvin Coolidge was inaugurated as Vice President of the United States. Mr. Harding took the oath at 1:18 P. M. and Mr. Coolidge at 12:21 P. M.

Pressing his lips to an historic Bible used at the inauguration of George Washington, the new President took the oath administered by Chief Justice White. He had chosen the eighth verse from the sixth chapter of Micah, saying:

"What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Immediately after the administration of the oath Mr. Harding turned to the vast crowd which stretched across the Capitol Plaza and began the delivery of his inaugural address.

WILSON UNABLE TO ATTEND CEREMONY.

Yielding to last minute entreaties of his family and physician, President Wilson took no part in the inaugural ceremonies to-day other than to accompany the incoming President from the White House to the Capitol.

Immediately after signing some bills in the President's room Mr. Wilson returned to his motor car and drove to his new home.

Walking feebly with the aid of a cane, the outgoing President had persisted in carrying out so much of his part of the programme as called for him to accompany his successor in the abbreviated inaugural procession from the Executive Mansion to the Capitol. When he departed from the White House it was necessary for Secret Service men to place his feet on each succeeding step as he descended and it was apparent to all that it was next to impossible for him to take part in the ceremonies at the Capitol.

GREAT CROWD TO SEE NEW PRESIDENT SWORN IN.

While the inauguration of the Vice President was in progress the crowd waiting in front of the east portico grew momentarily. Before Mr. Harding appeared the jam extended for more than a block to the east and for almost the same distance to the north and south of the stand erected on the Capitol steps.

A guard of marines kept the people back for a space of thirty feet from the stand, and exactly in front of the red-coated Marine Band, the President's own, made about the only other splash of color in the fur-clad and overcoated assembly.

During the wait the band entered
