

SHOT HIMSELF AT CRY OF "LYNCH!"

Charles Robinson, a Barber, Had Just Killed Mrs. Josephine Whales and Crowd Wanted to Punish Him.

"I'LL KILL MYSELF BEFORE YOU CAN HANG ME," HE SAID

The Woman Had Repulsed Him and Chased Him Out of the House Before He Fired at Her.

Charles Robinson, a barber, shot and killed Mrs. Josephine Whales this afternoon in front of No. 247 East One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, and then turned the weapon and killed himself.

Robinson, who was a barber, twenty-seven years old, lived in the same house with the woman, who was thirty-five years old, at No. 247 East One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street. Mrs. Whales had three children and it was understood by some that her husband had deserted her and by others that she was a widow.

It is known, however, that Robinson was in love with her and paid unwelcome attention. He was repulsed a number of times, and on several occasions she had him arrested and placed under bonds to keep the peace.

He went to her rooms again today and she chased him to the street. On the street she followed him a few doors, threatening him with arrest. Several neighbors gathered, and they were denouncing Robinson, when he drew his revolver and shot Mrs. Whales three times. She was killed instantly. The crowd leaped on Robinson and were crying:

"Lynch him, lynch him!" when he said:

"No, I'll shoot myself before you can hang me," and while he was speaking he got the revolver to his left temple and fired one shot. He dropped to the sidewalk lifeless.

When Policeman Kennedy arrived the crowd was kicking the body of Robinson about the sidewalk, and he had to use his club vigorously to make a clearing. He called an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital, but the doctor refused to take the bodies, saying both were dead.

All of Mrs. Whales' children were at school when the shooting occurred. When they returned home and were told that their mother had been murdered the scene was pathetic. Neighbors took charge of them.

FIRE A BULLET THROUGH HIS HEAD

John F. Clancy, Saloon-Keeper, Kills Himself in Bathroom at His Home—Bullet Also Broke Mirror.

John F. Clancy, a widely-known liquor dealer, died in Flower Hospital this afternoon from the effects of a self-inflicted bullet wound. He fired the shot into his head at his home, No. 245 East Fifty-second street, and death followed in half an hour.

Clancy was a member of the firm of Hennessy & Clancy, owning saloons at Forty-eighth street and Eighth avenue and Fifty-fourth street and Eighth avenue. His business was apparently prosperous.

Clancy went to the bathroom of his residence, a three-story brownstone structure, this afternoon, and a few minutes later his wife and a servant heard the report of a pistol.

A policeman found Mrs. Clancy in a dead faint and the servant in hysterics. In the bathroom he found Clancy with a .38-caliber revolver in his hand. He had shot himself in the right temple. The bullet had gone clear through his head and smashed a mirror on the wall. The suicide was forty years old.

FRAGNER IS DISBARRED.

Appellate Division Acts in Case of Convicted Lawyer.

Albert M. Fragner, the Brooklyn lawyer, who was sent to Sing Sing for six years and six months several weeks ago for stealing the property of the Karner sisters, one of whom he married, was formally disbarred by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn today.

Fragner's conviction carried disbarment with it, but the action of the Appellate Division was necessary to complete the matter.

FOUGHT HIS WIFE TO TAKE POISON

Payton Wyeth Roughly Thrust Her Aside and Forced Her to See Him Drink Deadly Cyanide of Potassium.

HE FELL TO FLOOR AND DIED IN THREE MINUTES.

Suicide Was a Member of a Well-Known Family Who Became Despondent Over Reverses in Insurance Business.

Payton Wyeth, an insurance man of this city and Philadelphia and a member of the well-known family of drug manufacturers of that name, committed suicide in the presence of his wife in the apartment at No. 383 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, today.

Mrs. Wyeth made a desperate effort to save her husband, but was roughly thrust aside and obliged to watch the man as he tossed off a glass of water in which he had mixed cyanide of potassium. He died within three minutes after taking the poison.

Wyeth was thirty-three years old and had been for many years the assistant general manager of the Greenwich Fire Insurance Company in Philadelphia. After the Baltimore fire, in which this company was hard hit, there was a reorganization and Wyeth lost his place.

This worried him and within a few weeks he had nervous prostration. He secured a place with the Union Fire Insurance Company, and came to this city, taking an apartment on Ryerson street, Brooklyn. He went back to Philadelphia in May, but returned here on June 1 and took the Lafayette avenue apartment.

Wyeth's nervousness increased, and

HANGED HIMSELF
TO TREE IN WOODS

Suicide, Who Was Not Quite Dead When Found, Had Destroyed All Marks of Identification on His Clothing.

After destroying all marks of identification on his clothing, a middle-aged man, fairly well-dressed, hanged himself to a tree in the woods at the foot of McAdoo avenue, Jersey City, early today.

He was not quite dead when found by William L. Call, of No. 35 West Side avenue, a watchman, but doctors summoned could not save him.

The man's hat, which lay on the ground, gave the only possible clue on which the police could work. This was a black derby of the kind of which the name "Dingy" and under that the words "Maker, N. Y."

The article was of medium height and weight, dark complexion and hair, and sandy mustache. He wore a black cutaway coat and vest, and plaid trousers.

His body was taken to the morgue.
