

BALKS THE WAR INQUIRY.

WICKES WON'T NAME OFFICERS HE SAYS ARE INCOMPETENT.

Lawyer Parrish, who was at Camp Wikoff, Tells the Commissioners their Powers Are Too Limited to Obtain Much Information—Col. Roosevelt Invited to Testify.

For the first time since the War Investigation Commission started out on its national tour of inquiry it encountered yesterday afternoon a private citizen who professed to know the names of some officers who were responsible for alleged deaths in camp, but refused to reveal their identity so that the commission might make specific charges of neglect against them.

The incident occurred at the close of the commission's third day's session in the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday afternoon when Samuel L. Parrish, a lawyer, of 25 West Thirty-third street, was in the witness chair. Mr. Parrish testified that he had visited Camp Wikoff several times in September last and had slept in the Red Cross tent.

He told of his efforts to remove on a steamer some of the men who were ill in quarters and for whom there were no accommodations in the hospital. He praised Gen. Shafter's kindness and foresight in leaving orders on his own responsibility to permit Mr. Parrish and his fellow-workers to remove some of the men who wished to go to the hospital.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

Dr. Wickes Washburn of 21 East Twenty-first street, who was at Camp Wikoff, and who was for a time in charge of the general hospital there as Assistant Surgeon under Col. Forwood of the Hospital Corps, spoke last night at Mott Memorial Hall, Madison avenue, near Twenty-sixth street, before a meeting of the New York Medical Association.

SENATOR QUAY INDICTED.

FOUR CHARGES OF MISBRINGING BANK FUNDS AND PUBLIC MONEY.

As Omnibus Indictment for Conspiracy Against Former State Treasurer of Pennsylvania—Little Delay Expected in the Prosecution—Men Accused with Him.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Four indictments charging conspiracy to mislead the funds of the People's Bank of Philadelphia were found by the Grand Jury of Philadelphia city-to-day against United States Senator Matthew S. Quay. The first two bills indicted Quay of conspiring with John S. Hopkins, the cashier of the bank, who killed his wife, to use unlawfully the money of the bank in stock speculations.

The third accuses Senator Quay jointly with his son, Richard R. Quay, and Benjamin J. Harwood, the late State Treasurer, of unlawfully diverting to their use $100,000 of the money of the Commonwealth. The fourth accuses Quay and Harwood of conspiracy with Hopkins, the cashier, with William Lively, William H. Hart, Henry K. Boyer, John F. Morrison and Samuel M. Jackson, former State Treasurer, since May, 1889, and with Charles H. McKee, to use unlawfully for their profit certain large sums of the public money of the Commonwealth deposited at the People's Bank.

The evening District Attorney Graham notified counsel for Quay and Harwood that their clients would be called to meet in the indictments on Wednesday morning. It is expected that the indictments will be returned for the defense, will demur to the indictments on the ground of insufficient time to read and review the bills, and will not likely to grant a delay of more than twenty-four hours, so that the Quay prosecution will begin in the Criminal Court on Thursday.

Senator Quay came to the city this morning with his son, Richard R. Quay. He was informed of the finding of the Grand Jury a few minutes after the noon hour, but he refused to make any comments at that time. The fourth indictment has given rise to some speculation as to whether some of the indictments will be returned for the defense.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

The bill names all the State Treasurer in office since May, 1889, as parties to a conspiracy to use unlawfully and to the detriment of the Commonwealth the public money of the Commonwealth. The first of these State Treasurers was Charles H. McKee, who was appointed to succeed him in September and served until the following May. William B. Harwood succeeded McKee in May, 1891, and served until the following May. Henry K. Boyer, who was still cashier, was again appointed for the unexpired term of Harwood, and served until the following May. John F. Morrison succeeded Harwood, and served until the following May. Samuel M. Jackson succeeded Morrison, and served until the following May. Benjamin J. Harwood succeeded Jackson, and served until the following May.

GEN. WOOD FIGHTING SMALLPOX.

Entered Vaccination in Gihara—American Troops Escape the Disease.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Nov. 21.—The courier who was sent across the island to Col. Duncan Hood, at Holguin, returned this morning with the intelligence that the smallpox epidemic in Gihara is abating slightly under American management. Two thousand cases have been isolated, and more than 500 citizens have been vaccinated.

Col. Hood, in a report to Gen. Wood, says that not a single American soldier has been attacked by the disease. The people at first objected to being vaccinated, not understanding the purpose of the operation. It was necessary in a few instances to use military force to compel some of the objectors to submit to vaccination. Col. Hood had placards explaining the matter, and the people at last consented through the town, and gradually popular prejudice against the American physicians and their method of fighting the disease was overcome. Col. Hood's medical officer, Capt. R. S. Woodson, was treating 1,500 cases when the courier left. The town has been placed in good sanitary condition.

Col. Hood has established a hospital in the city of Holguin by appointing as Mayor Col. José Rodríguez, who was formerly commander of the Cuban forces in the Holguin district. Col. Rodríguez did not get his commission until he accepted American citizenship. He promised to retain in office the Spanish municipal employees who were indorsed by the best people of the town.

Col. Hood informs Gen. Wood that he has organized a mounted rural police force of seventy-five men, who will go to the mountains in shape for active service. They will be paid $30 a month. They are required to furnish their own horses and equipment.

Gen. Wood has authorized the organization of forces on the same plan in the Manzanillo, Baracoa, and Guantánamo provinces. Gen. Wood has instructed Col. Hood not to attempt to occupy the city of Holguin with a military force until he is prepared to go there and effectually fight the smallpox epidemic. He is not able to combat the disease in Holguin at present owing to the small medical corps and hisdiapsoidal and limited quantity of medical supplies on hand.

The courier reported that many Cuban soldiers had been sent home on unlimited furloughs by their commanders, and were now engaged in clearing their land and putting in small crops for their maintenance through the winter. A few bands had refused to disband, however, and had taken to the hills. They had committed no acts of violence and the highways were safe.

The revenue cutter Manning sailed for the United States to-day, with Capt. Shoemaker, Chief of the Revenue Service, aboard. Capt. Shoemaker took the correspondent of THE SUN that he had made a thorough inspection of the coast of Santiago province and was satisfied that one revenue cutter was needed here to prevent infractions of the Revenue law. He would recommend that one of the best boats in the service be sent to Gen. Wood to be used as a cutter, and also to transport him quickly to different parts of the province.

SPANISH EVACUATION OF CUBA. Spanish Government Orders Ten More Steamers to Take Soldiers Home. Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. MADRID, Nov. 21.—The Spanish Transatlantic Company has received instructions from the Government to enter into contracts for ten more steamers. Each vessel must have accommodations for 2,000, and is to make each two voyages to Cuba to bring soldiers from the island. The company has received offers of steamers from German shipowners, but they have not been accepted, the terms being regarded as exorbitant.

GEN. RUIZ RIVERA RELEASED. Spaniards Liberate the Cuban General from the Military Prison at Barcelona. Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. BARCELONA, Nov. 21.—The Cuban General, Ruiz Rivera, who was captured by Gen. Hernandez de Velasco in March, 1897, and had been a prisoner in the Montjuich fort here since the beginning of the present year, has since been released. He was seriously ill, and as imprisonment threatened his life the Government decided to liberate him. He has gone to Paris.

VICTORY FOR GEN. RIOS. The Spanish Governor Reports That He Has Severely Defeated the Insurgents. Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. MADRID, Nov. 21.—Gen. Rios, Governor of the Vizcaya Islands, telegraphs that he has severely defeated the advanced lines of the insurgents, who are fortifying the shore against an expected attack by the Spaniards at Iloilo.

RED CROSS RELIEF IN CUBA. Miss Clara Barton's Agents Report Need of Food and Medicines. Two of Miss Barton's Agents Report Need of Food and Medicines. Miss Clara Barton has received a letter from J. K. Ewell, a Red Cross agent in Cuba, who is in charge of the distribution of relief supplies around Cardenas. He says it is necessary for the Red Cross agents to visit personally every village in their territory to make certain that each reach the needy, and that they are intended. The conditions are still very bad, he says, and the amount of supplies available is not nearly equal to the demands. Dr. Egan, who went to Cuba with Miss Barton, is still there and has recently been working with Mr. Ewell. Of the work at Jovellanos the latter relates this incident:

"When we arrived yesterday we found Irling in the morning the doctor told us that a dead Chinaman who had been picked up on the street by the police. The doctor shrugged his shoulders and said, 'Starved to death.' Dr. Egan soon discovered that the man had been in a few minutes he brought him to, and in an hour he was eating crackers and milk and feeling very comfortable. By stiff work yesterday the doctor succeeded in getting quite a number of women and children in the hospital. They were all well washed and put in fairly clean beds."

Mr. G. W. Hyatt, who is distributing Red Cross supplies in the city of Havana, says: "I am importuned for medicines every day by doctors having in their charge large numbers of starving women and children. As to oats, when I tell you that the Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at the door. Our food is broken bread and salt water with soap and water help very much. The little soap tins near here, last week brought in a swifter fifty of the starving women and children, and left them on the wharf; two died on the way to the hospital. The other fifty were taken care of here, but I could not help them. Deaths registered the past year were 100,000. The Civil War in Cuba has cost the lives of 100,000 men, and numbers on the floor, you may imagine the condition of this hospital. If the tents were not surrounded by a high fence, I could place some or as many as I could accommodate of the starving women and children in it. This camp would be surrounded by a high fence, with a guard stationed at