CIVILIZED MAN ALONE SNORES.
Unpleasant Habit Absolutely Unknown Among Savages.
It is a truism that no one ever heard of a snoring savage. In fact, if the wild man of the woods and plains does not sleep quietly, he runs the risk of being discovered by his enemy, and the scalp of the snorer would soon adorn the belt of his crafty and more quietly sleeping adversary. With civilization, however, we have changed all this, declares a writer in Health. The impure air of our sleeping rooms induces all manner of catarrhal affections. The nasal passages are the first to become affected. Instead of warming the inspired air on the way to the lungs, and removing from it the dangerous impurities with which it is loaded, the nose becomes obstructed. A part of the air enters and escapes by the mouth. The veil of the palate vibrates between the two currents—that through the mouth and the one still passing through the partially closed nostrils—like a torn sail in the wind. The snore, then, means that the sleeper's mouth is partially open, that his nose is partially closed, and that his lungs are in danger from the air not being properly warmed and purified. From the continued operation of these causes—the increase of impure air in sleeping rooms and permitting habitual snorers to escape killing and scalping—some scientist has predicted that in the future all men (and all women, too) will snore. It goes along with decay of the teeth and baldness.

FEW WORDS, BUT TO THE POINT.
Elder Evidently Meant There Should Be No Misunderstanding.
Last summer the congregation of a little kirk in the Highlands of Scotland was greatly disturbed and mystified by the appearance in its midst of an English lady who made use of an ear trumpet during the sermon—such an instrument being entirely unknown in those simple parts.
There was much discussion of the matter, and it was finally decided that one of the elders—who had great local reputation as a man of parts—should be deputed to settle the question.
On the next Sabbath the unconscious offender again made her appearance and again produced the trumpet, whereupon the chosen elder rose from his seat and marched down the aisle to where the old lady sat, and, entreating her with an upraised finger, said, sternly:
"The first tooth—ye're out!"—Harper's.

A Good Inheritance.
No boy or girl can ever come to be utterly bad who remembers only love and tenderness and unselfishness and sweetness as associated with father and mother in the old-time home. Give them manly and womanly examples, give them training, give them the inspiration of devoted lives, give them these higher, deeper things. Do not care so much as to whether you are accumulating money, so that you can leave them a fortune. I really believe that the chances are against that's being a blessing for a boy. But leave them an accumulated fortune of memories and inspirations and examples and hopes, so that they are rich in brain and heart and soul and service. Then, if you happen to leave them the fortune besides, if they have all these, the fortune will be shorn of its possibilities of evil, and will become an instrument of the higher and nobler good.—Minot J. Savage.

Pistols for Two.
Mr. Burr to Mr. Hamilton: "You must perceive, sir, the necessity of a prompt and unqualified acknowledgment or denial of the use of any expression which would warrant the assertions of Dr. Cooper."
Mr. Hamilton to Mr. Burr: "Your first letter, in a style too peremptory, made a demand, in my opinion, unprecedented and unwarrantable... but by your last letter, containing expressions indecorous and improper, you have increased the difficulties to explanation intrinsically incident to the nature of your application."

The Spoils System.
The name is derived from a remark made in a speech in the United States senate in January, 1832, by Mr. Marcy of New York; speaking of and for the New York politicians, he said: "They see nothing wrong in the rule that to the victor belongs the spoils of the enemy." This system had previously attained great power in the state of New York. Under Jackson's administration it prevailed in national politics and was soon adopted by nearly all parties, and applied to local as well as state and national offices.

MERE MATTER OF INFORMATION.

Irishman Seemed to Have Good Reason for His Inquiry.
Officers have a right to ask questions in the performance of their duty, but there are occasions when it seems as if they might curtail or forego the privilege, suggests Youth's Companion. Not long ago an Irishman whose hand had been badly mangled in an accident entered the Boston city hospital relief station in a great hurry. He stepped up to a man in charge and inquired:
"Is this the relief station, sor?"
"Yes. What is your name?"
"Patrick O'Connor, sor."
"Are you married?" questioned the officer.
"Yis, sor, but is this the relief station?" He was nursing his hand in agony.
"Of course it is. How many children have you?"
"Eight, sor. But, sure, this is the relief station?"
"Yes, it is," replied the officer, a little angry at the man's persistence.
"Well," said Patrick, "sure an' I was beginning to think that it might be the pumping station!"

LONDON'S WEALTH AND POVERTY.
Sad Extremes That Preval in the World's Richest City.
The London county council, according to yearly custom, has just published some suggestive statistics. In them the British capital is put down as probably the wealthiest city in the world. Its property is insured against fire for about six billions of dollars. It takes about 419,037 tons of killed meat and 58,735 live cattle, 375,950 sheep, 174,322 tons of fish and 80,826,330 gallons of milk to feed the population, which uses 82,152,249,000 gallons of water for drinking and other purposes.
But besides being the "wealthiest," London is also, to use a word made famous by Bernard Shaw, the "ill-thiest." Of the 4,795,789 human beings that live on its 74,816 acres of land and water, 1,453,266, or one in every 33, are paupers. But more appalling still is the fact that 20 persons in every 100 die in an almshouse or almshouse infirmary. No wonder the city is obliged to distribute through its charities more than $50,000,000 annually.

Tall Lofting.
Many remarkable but yet properly vouched for feats of skill are recorded of professional golfers. Thus on one occasion when in his prime the late Tom Morris, Sr., undertook to demonstrate his ability in lofting a ball. For this purpose he stood in a quarry underneath the familiar Ballochmyle bridge and sent a number of "gutties" in succession up to the footpath at the top, a height of nearly 150 yards. Probably without knowing it in doing so he was emulating an earlier performance of an Edinburgh player who once drove half a dozen balls over the spire of St. Giles' cathedral from the level of the street.

Was He Delirious?
"Almost every man," says a Baltimore specialist, "learns sooner or later to think of his doctor as one of his best friends, but this fact does not hinder the world from laughing at the profession."
"How is our patient this morning?" asked a physician, a fellow-graduate of mine, of a patient's brother.
"Oh, he's much worse," came from the other in a tone of dejection. "He's been delirious for several hours. At three o'clock he said: 'What an old woman that doctor of mine is!' and he hasn't made a rational remark since."—Lippincott's.

IN WRATH OVER POOR "SHOW."
Mexican Audiences Evidently Lack Patience of Americans.
Here is a news item the like of which one does not find in the newspapers of the United States. It comes from the City of Mexico and describes the exciting incident at Queretaro: "Yesterday's bullfight," the reader is informed, "was wretched, and started a row. The management announced that the bulls would be first-class, but those which appeared were very small and showed no fight whatever. Four of these ridiculous beasts were sent back to the corral, another barely qualified, and only one turned out to be a real bull."
"The public, unable to repress its indignation, laid hold of everything it could get its hands on and threw it into the bull ring, causing serious damage."
"In the midst of the excitement the announcement was made that the management had been fined $100, but this was not sufficient to allay the public indignation. The manager of the bull ring was compelled to hide owing to the fact that some of the most excited individuals in the audience were making a diligent search for him."
"It was a tremendous row, as we remarked before, and would have had more serious consequences had not the Fifth corps of rural police arrived on the scene most opportunely. The policemen made the discontented audience disperse, and then mounted guard over the bull ring and the residence of the manager."

FEW DIAMONDS ARE SMUGGLED.
Amount So Brought in Has No Effect on the Market.
"Very few diamonds are smuggled into this country now, whatever may have been the case in former days," declared an agent of a large jewelry house who makes a yearly trip to Europe to purchase precious stones. "The amount that is brought in without duty is so small as to have no effect on the market. Uncut diamonds are not taxed. The duty on cut stones is but ten per cent. Amsterdam, Holland, is the great market for diamonds. Nearly all the New York dealers who import buy from that city. Eighty per cent. of the diamond cutting for the world is done in Amsterdam. Few small diamonds are cut in New York city. There are almost no facilities here for doing the work. The experienced cutters at Amsterdam can turn out the work cheaper than it can be done on this side of the water even when the customs duty is added to the rates paid the Holland manufacturers. Large diamonds, about three-quarters of a carat, are cut here, but most of this work is recutting for the changes in style of setting."

A Child of Nature.
It was a primitive home in the Tennessee mountains where the kitchen range is still a thing of a vague and distant future, Cindy the capable, buxom and barefooted, performed her duties on the hearth of the yawning fireplace, and deftly raked the coals around the baker where the corn-dodgers were browning. A glowing ember, unseen by all save old Rudd, rolled out on the hearth as Cindy stepped forward with the pot-hooks, and he sounded the warning: "Sa-ay, Cindy!"
"Whut, pa?"
"You done sot yer fut on a coal o' fire!"
"Say I did, pa? Which fut?"—Success Magazine.

A Dangerous Roll.
H. Engels, an Oakland, Cal., boiler-maker, met with an experience which nearly cost him his life, while at work inside a 28-inch water pipe. The line of pipe ran along a steep hillside and was held in position by wooden supports. While Engel was riveting two sections together the supports gave way and the section in which he was working started down the hill at a terrific speed. It rolled several hundred feet and finally dropped into a ditch in which a stream of water was running. Engels' companion supposed, of course, that he had been killed, but rushed to the ditch. The in-piped man was taken out alive, but seriously cut and bruised and almost drowned.—Detroit News-Tribune.

From youth to age it looks like a long journey. But from age back to youth it appears to be but a short step.

The man who cheats his neighbor never enjoys being cheated himself. Then, only, he discovers the wickedness of the transaction.—Columbus Press Post.
