HOW SOME OF CARSON'S YOUNG BLOODS WERE FOOLED.

During the past week several of our young bloods received anonymous notes, written in a feminine hand, very elegantly composed, and the chirography of the most modern Spencerian style. The notes in each case stated substantially that the personal appearance of the gentleman so addressed had so favorably impressed the writer (a lady) that an acquaintance with him would afford her infinite delight, and at the same time appointing a rendezvous. In each instance the notes closed as follows: "I trust, my dear sir, that you will not ascribe any but the most honorable motives to my seemingly inmodest request, for language fails to express the ardency of my wish to meet you, and having no mutual friends, I am at a loss to know how, otherwise, the end of my desire can be brought about." * * * The rendezvous were all appointed for the northern part of the city, in the vicinity of one of Carson's most fashionable residences, and strange to say—as it subsequently turned out—all of the engagements were made for the same hour. At about 3 o'clock p. m., on Christmas day, a small, straggling troop of well dressed young men might have been seen miserably wending their steps toward a northerly direction, none of them knowing nor caring upon what mission the other was bound. They were all friends; but somehow or another, on this particular occasion they slumped each other's society—their minds being absorbed to an alarming extent. Each speculated upon the mysterious mission he was bent upon. At about 3 o'clock a half dozen bloods met at the street corner designated by their fair writer. They glanced at each other, but said nothing; some struck their hands into their pockets, whistled and sauntered a little way off, and then came to a rest; others remained standing still, casting their eyes in all directions, every moment expecting the arrival upon the scene of their fair correspondent. But, alas! no lady came. It grew to be 4 o'clock—the congregation of bloods was steadily augmenting—there must have been twenty of them, when suddenly one of them mustered up sufficient courage to ask one of his friends what the meeting portended. The accosted one replied that he did not know what the other fellows were doing there, at the same time buttoning his friend, and taking him aside from the crowd he whispered into his ear: "General, I'll tell you something, but don't you repeat it. I've got an appointment with a young lady here;" and drew a note from his pocket to convince his chum that he was not exaggerating. The other looked at the note, his eyes growing as large as saucers, he cried out loud enough to be heard by the whole crowd, "Sold, by Jove; I've got one too," drawing his note from his pocket and exhibiting it. By this time the crowd gathered around the twain, and each individual produced his little "billy dux." The bloods, individually and collectively, agreed that they were sold. They were sworn upon the spot never to reveal the sell, but a little bird that was sitting on a tree in that vicinity on Christmas day, flew into our office and let "the cat out of the bag." The party of bloods, being considerably chilled by their long waiting in the cold air, adjourned to the Ormsby, where they drowned their chagrin and disappointment in bumper of egg nog. As yet no one knows who the enterprising female is who got so many young gentlemen by the ears; but she will yet confide her little secret to some bosom friend, and then the whole town will know it.

TURN VEREIN BALL

On New Year's eve the much talked of German ball at Turn Verein Hall will take place. Our German citizens have decided to make this affair one of the most pleasant and entertaining of the season, and no doubt their efforts in that direction will not be in vain.

STOCKS.—The market continues to fluctuate in a way to displease the bulls. The great clean up which they expected to make ere the advent of the New Year has not been realized at this writing. If there is anything in Ophir, Alta or Justice, the mines which have recently been so greatly talked up by the insiders, why do they not permit the public to see their great deposits of mineral wealth? The outsiders have precious little faith in the assurances of the insiders, and we do not blame them. Take out your bullion, you manipulators, if you have any and declare dividends, and then the public will place confidence in what you assert, otherwise not.

Mr. John Forbes, resident agent of the forwarding house of D. W. Earl, leaves within a few days for California on a visit, and may go to the Sandwich Islands ere he returns to his duties in this city. Mr. Forbes has been in our midst for several weeks, where he has made many friends. We wish him a pleasant journey and a safe and speedy return to these scenes.

Detective Ben Lackey was in the city yesterday. He came in from a long and tedious trip looking after—well, he didn't say, but judging from his good humor, we think he succeeded in getting him, her or it.

NEW YEAR'S ADDRESS.

The carrier of the MORNING APPEAL, Albert Adams, will greet the patrons of this paper (and the rest of mankind) with the customary address on Tuesday next, January 1, 1878. Give the boy a chance!

RUNG A COLD DECK ON HIM.

He is a prominent newspaper man in the eastern portion of the State. He parts his hair in the middle. The part is over five inches wide, which gives him an innocent cast of countenance. To those who know him not, he might be considered verdant in appearance. He was riding, in a sleeper, on the C. P. R. R., and fell into an innocent little game of pedro, with a Colonel, Professor and Doctor. During an animated conversation and a quiet deal, three aces were thrown upon his side of the table, after which one of the three naively remarked, with the greatest coolness, "I wish that we were playing poker. I don't know that I have been favored with such a hand for years." Our editorial friend saw the game, looked up innocently, and remarked: "I have been favored also. I have a pretty good poker hand myself." The three looked at each other as he continued, thusly: "They call you Professor?" "Yes." "And you Colonel?" "Yes." "You are from the East, I believe?" "Yes." "Well, gentlemen," he concluded, rising, "You had better take the next train back. We meet it just the other side of Battle Mountain. You can't make a cent at this. They have been teaching it in the Sunday Schools in California for years."

AU FAIT CLUB RECEPTION.

There was an unusually large attendance of pleasant and refined ladies and gentlemen at the reception of this popular club last evening. The dancing was kept up until a late hour and those who were favored with invitations pronounced the reception the most enjoyable one of the season, so far. The gentlemen comprising this club are certainly an fait in management of a party. No guest of the club's ever leaves one of its receptions without extolling the courtesy and good manners that are to be met with there. Carson may well feel a little proud in the possession of such a distinguished social club.

NEW YEAR'S CALLS.

Those who desire mention in these columns as receiving their friends on New Year's day, will please send their names and addresses to this office no later than Monday noon, the 31st instant.

SLIGHT UNSET.—Yesterday afternoon a buggy containing a lady and gentleman was passing along Nevada street. Whether the gentleman and lady were in love or not, we are unable to say, but at all events the attention of the driver was not sufficiently attracted to the team to prevent their shying at a coal oil can at the corner of Robinson and Nevada streets. The little buggy gracefully reeled and landed the gentleman upon the cold, cold ground, with the reins in his hands. The lady held, if we may be allowed to say it, manfully on to the rear side. No damage. Buggy righted, and all went peacefully on in the direction of Franktown. A good item spoiled.

OBSTRUCTIONS.—We beg to call the attention of the Street Inspector to the fact that, day and night, wagons are left standing on Spear street, at the corner of Division, by the side of a large barn, much to the inconvenience of passers by. The other night a lady stumbled over some lead-bars and chains lying across the sidewalk and nearly sprained her ankle. There is an ordinance on the subject of obstructions, we believe.

RODENTS.—Travelers from Bodie report that camp infested with rats, and the absence of cats is a striking feature of the place. The feline market of Carson is fearfully overstocked. Why can not some enterprising speculator take a cargo of these moonlight warblers to Bodie and realize a handsome result from his venture?

DEAD.—Mrs. James Moore of Vallejo, after many months of intense suffering, died in that city on Thursday morning. She was an accomplished musician and a most estimable lady in all respects. Mr. Moore (who formerly resided in Carson) has our very hearty sympathy in his distress.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of Maude, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hollis took place yesterday. The deceased was a most extraordinarily beautiful child, and her bright, angelic face will be missed by many in this city. The bereaved parents have our warmest sympathy.

Gillson & Barber continue shipping goods to Bodie. A team was loading at their store yesterday, but the skies look mightily as if said teams would have a hard time getting through.

The weather is very disagreeably cold. The skies are overcast, and a storm is imminent. Get out your ulsters and overshoes, and if you haven't any, go to Joe Platt's or Frank Bosko's.

PERSONAL.—Ex Senator William M. Stewart arrived from Bodie yesterday afternoon. Hon. Jasper Babcock's genial face was also seen in the city last evening.

Subscribe for the MORNING APPEAL during the coming year. This journal will present greater attractions than ever to the intelligent reader.

THE MORNING APPEAL FOR 1878.

In a few days we shall issue a Prospectus for the New Year. Among the items therein set forth will be a statement of a reduction in our rates of subscription. For example: Delivered by carrier, one week, 25c. Sent by mail, one year, $8 00. Sent by mail, six months, 4 00. Sent by mail, three months, 2 00.

This is a reduction of fifty per cent in the price of the paper delivered within the city, and a general reduction of about 35 per cent on the price of yearly, semi-annual and quarterly subscriptions. The Prospectus will set forth, more minutely, certain intentions, prospects and purposes, all of which will present the advantages to be derived from a regular subscription to the MORNING APPEAL.

POLICE COURT.—Before his Honor Judge Witherill, yesterday, appeared John Morrissey, not of pugilistic or political renown, but the other, who was arrested by officer Duncan for using language which jarred upon refined ears, while under the influence of the "exhilarating." Result of his visit to the Judge was free board and lodging for the space of fifteen days.

DEPARTURES.—Two sleepers went out last evening both full. Among the departures were Mrs. Arthur J. Hutchinson, who departs for the Bay; Hon. A. W. Atchinson of Eureka, who has been sojourning at the Capital for several days, and Mrs. T. J. Murphy of Carson Valley.

FIRE.—The fire which brightened the northern horizon last evening was occasioned by the igniting of a woodpile out by Marlette Lake. By latest telegraphic advices we learn that the fire was under control.

The auction at the store of Mr. C. W. Friend, was well attended last night. Mr. Samuel H. Greenberg acted in the capacity of auctioneer, and performed his duties remarkably well, for a novice.

BULLION.—Received yesterday per Southern Stage by Wells Fargo & Co., two bars of bullion from Belleville, valued at $2849.99.

Several flocks of wild geese were heard over head last night, traveling in a northerly direction.
