Great Science.

Nicola Tesla believes there is enough power going to waste in the air to run all the factories, the railroad and steamship and other transportation lines in the world. Moreover, Mr. Tesla declares he has found a method of utilizing this power and of transmitting it without wires to any one who desires it. The inventor says he will soon be able to run railroad trains at a rate of 100 miles an hour without half trying, and he hopes to cut down the time between New York and Liverpool to about three days. He is not making public any of his plans just now, but expects to give out a complete announcement before very long. We hope he will tell how steel can be made strong enough to withstand the motion.

First Training.

Mrs. Belle Dormer, wife of Nevada's ex-Secretary of State, writes an account of a prize fight in the Stampeder, published at Bonanza, Yukon territory, and in another column a poem entitled "Ashes." The Carson Appeal says: "Reporting pugilistic encounters and inditing beautiful poems all the same day seems as easy as rolling off a log to the lady who received her first journalistic training on the Walker Lake Bulletin."—Reno Journal.

In Mrs. Dormer's girlhood days she was a versatile and valued contributor to the Inyo Independent, years before the town of Hawthorne was invented.

The Difference.

Senator Treacle—"Did you tell that reporter I had nothing to say?"
Servant—"Yes, sir."
Senator Treacle—"I suppose he was very much disappointed."
Servant—"I hardly know. He said he was aware of the fact that you never said anything, but was under the impression that you never missed an opportunity to talk."

The total land area of Nevada is 109,740 square miles, or 70,233,600 acres, of which 2,565,647 acres, or 3.7 per cent, are included in farms.
