THE BELLE OF THE WEST.
BY WILL'S WIFE.

Like a new-born babe she entered the world,
The battle of life to begin;
Far out in the desert, her glory unfurled,
To struggle, to die, or to win.

But the infant Tonopah did not die,
She was destined to live and grow strong,
As some could see with the naked eye
That her life would be greatly prolonged.

Shrewd men saw this, and well they knew
That the infant so lovely and sweet
Needed encouragement, loyal and true,
To keep her stand firm on her feet.

And to the wise ones who came to her aid,
When her fate was uncertain, untold,
She has heartily, handsomely paid
With her treasures of silver and gold.

Now she is growing both rapid and great,
With smiles for the rich and the poor,
She attracts admirers from every state
And welcomes all who enter her door.

But like all fair maids of wealth and fame
She has envious neighbors, they say,
Who would mar her beauty and her good name,
While they are old and ragged and gray.

And now her success in the world is assured,
For like J. L. B., her founder and friend,
She has trials and hardships endured
And will surely succeed in the end.

Then speak well of the mines, the miners and men,
Who have done and will still do their best
To promote by word, deed or pen,
Fair Tonopah, the Belle of the west.

Only a Banana Peel.
Lift her up tenderly,
So young and so fair;
Fashioned so slenderly,
Oh, why is she there?
Come, gather 'round her
And murmur a prayer;
A banana peel downed her—
But she can't swear.
—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Making It Easy for Him.
The old Squire lay a-dying and his faithful coachman was summoned to his bedside. "Well, John," said the old gullant, "I'm going now on a longer journey than ever you could drive me." "Never mind, Squire; never mind," cried the servant in a broken voice, "It'll be down hill all the way."—London Globe.

Why They Dislike Him.
Winkers—Why is it that women always dislike a prominent man who is an old bachelor?
Binkers—Because they can't say that he would never have amounted to anything if it had not been for his wife.—New York Weekly.

It All Counts.
"You say that French editor was wounded in a duel?"
"Yes. Just as he was turning to fire, his foot slipped and he sprained his ankle."—Washington Star.

The man who taketh whiskey straight
Straight through the livelong day
Will scarcely take his homeward gait
In that straightforward way.
