Ed Perrow Killed

Will Ryan received a telegram yesterday stating that Ed Perrow had been killed in the Parrot mine at Butte City. Perrow is well known as the phenomenal pitcher for the Nevada Stars who gained the victory for them in their contest with the Alameda Alerts in the Examiner tournament three years ago. He was a quiet, steady, industrious young man and deservedly popular. He was a native of this city, aged about 28 years and leaves a wife, a father, brother and an uncle, E. Perrow, who resides here. His wife was formerly Miss Eva Maledon of this city.—Report.

The Fire

Saturday morning about two o'clock the property owned by D. G. Kitzmeyer known as No. 1 was discovered on fire. By the time the alarm was given the rear of the house was in a sheet of flames and it was only by hard work on the part of the fire boys that the main building was prevented from total destruction. The fire pretty well gutted the building and with the damage done by water the loss will foot up about $1,000, with no insurance.

The fire was evidently of incendiary origin as the house has been unoccupied for the past two months, and the small house where the fire started has been used for a store room for two years past.

Honeyman Still Lives

Considerable anxiety has been felt here of late as to the fate of E. Honeyman who is a prisoner of the Luzon insurrectionists.

This anxiety is allayed by news brought by Albert Sonnichsen of San Francisco, a fellow prisoner who was recently recaptured.

He says that when he last saw the Reno boy a few days before Thanksgiving he was in good health and spirits.

Housekeeping rooms: In desirable locality, centrally located, to be rented to responsible parties. Inquire at Mrs. Clary's, east of Capitol.

TAXATION IN NEVADA

Hon. Wells Drury Suggests a Remedy for the Ssate's Condition

For some months past the question of taxation has been a fruitful source of discussion in Nevada. It is patent to everyone that something is wrong in this State. Capital is very chary of investing here and men who make money in large quantities within its borders invariably take it out of the State. Meanwhile the situation is aggravated by the constantly increasing tax rate, a rate which is prohibitive as far as the investment of capital is concerned. It is clear that when a State of the magnificent resources of Nevada is languishing there must be a cause.

In the last number of the Nevada Magazine Hon. Wells Drury, formerly a member of the Legislature from Ormsby county, points to the existing system of taxation as the prime cause of the decline of the State and recommends what is commonly know as "the single tax" as a remedy. This is a tax on land alone and Mr. Drury proceeds to argue in favor of the theory with great force.

He says in the article:

What's the mater with Nevada?

"She's all right!"

That would be the easiest response for the optimist to make, were it not that we all know it to be untrue.

Nevada is not all right.

There is something radically wrong with Nevada. Everybody knows that. Even the Piutes know it. Things have gone wrong so long in Nevada that many begin to think there is no such thing as a remedy.

But there is a remedy and the people can provide it.

"Population!

"We want more population!" is the constant cry of the level-headed Nevadan who clearly perceives what the State needs. Then this sometimes level-headed Nevadan, in a bevel-headed manner, turns in and passes laws to drive away as many inhabitants as he can and to hinder others from coming in to take their places.

Men and women of Nevada you know that you are in desperate case. What shall you do to be saved? That's the question. You see the values of your property dwindling. You sadly mark the departures of good families, apparently without being able to curb the outgoing tide. You observe the bad result, but not all are able to discern the evil cause.

Would you like to know the reason for this calamitous condition? Listen, and I'll tell you in a few words:

Nevada has enacted unwise taxation laws; laws that penalize active, energetic citizens, and that offer premiums to those who least deserve the assistance and good will of the community.

You must know that your laws are driving people out of Nevada, for nobody who ever lived there ever really wanted to leave. There are other contributory causes of the depopulation, of course, and the depreciation of silver is a potent one, but in my estimation it is not so overmastering as the unjust manner of levying taxes. Personal property and improvements, such as houses, barns and the like, ought to be absolutely exempted from taxation, and all revenue for governmental purposes should be raised by the taxation of land values.

It seems like a simple thing, yet this change would be fraught with stupendous results. By exempting improvements and personal property from taxation, which would be the adoption of the Single Tax philosophy as taught by Henry George, you would encourage all kinds of industry. You would invite capital from afar and the State would fill up with prosperous people. In less than five years the State would contain more than 100,000 inhabitants. These would not be exclusively of the industrial classes, for the rich, finding that they would be freed from unjust burdens of taxation, by becoming citizens of Nevada, would make their homes with you, and as their houses would be released from the demands of the Assessor, there would scarcely be any limit to the extent of their establishments. They could expand their improvements to their hearts' content without fear of being punished by the tax collector."

Of course there are difficulties and objections in the way of adopting anything which is entirely new to Nevada and Mr. Drury proceeds to [illegible] objections and explain [illegible] be met and dispose [illegible] of his interesting argument will appear in a subsequent issue of the APPEAL.
