

THE DAILY APPEAL

H. R. MIGHELS: Editor

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUG. 1, 1866

CONGRESS ADJOURNED.

It is to be presumed that the Congress stands adjourned, inasmuch as a joint resolution fixing the 28th of this month (last Saturday) as the day for such action comes reported by telegraph. If the adjournment did take place, as is supposed, we have good reason for believing that our Senators and Representatives, or some of them, at least, are on their way back home. His many ardent friends are impatient to grasp the hand of Senator Nye.

ANOTHER STAR.

Nebraska, twin born with Kansas, but less favored with opportunities for political advancement, has been admitted into the grand sisterhood of States. She is the thirty-seventh of the family, succeeding to the "plebe" place which has been held by Nevada, going on two years. The new Commonwealth has proven her worthiness to the association which has been granted to her, by electing a staunch Unionist as her Governor, and by choosing her other State officers, her Legislature and her Senators and members of Congress from among her loyal and patriotic citizens. Not only was rebellion powerless to divide or destroy the Union, but it was equally impotent to check its vitality or to retard its growth. And looking farther back into the history of the past, and revising the reminiscences of the "Kansas-Nebraska Act;" and calling to mind all the heroism and all the infamy of the struggle which grew out of the passage by Congress of that memorable law; and coupling with those remembrances, a reflection upon the vicissitudes which, within the past decade, have befallen the most prominent figure upon the stage which made that act a drama, the hideous form of slavery; noting the fact of the admission of "bleeding Kansas" as a free State, just as the rebellion began, and the admission of the inseparable companion of her birth, Nebraska, at the close of the noblest labors of a Congress which has just devised a prevention of future rebellions, contemplating these things from the stand point of a political philosopher, who shall say that the genius of Progress is not making stalwart strides through this devoted land? Welcome to Nebraska!

INCENDIARISM IS AURORA.—The Emerald Union of the 28th ult. says:

Some scoundrel or scoundrels seem determined to reduce this town to ashes. Within the last four months no less than seven attempts have been made to burn the town in various places, and some of them have succeeded so far as to burn down several houses. About four o'clock on Tuesday morning two fires were kindled by incendiaries, one in a small building on Spring street, and the other in a small house on Winnemucca street near the Union office. The building on Spring street was entirely consumed, and it seems miraculous that the whole block in which it is situated, including the Clair House and the magnificent Merchant's Exchange Hotel, escaped destruction. If the wind had been blowing and the buildings had been dry instead of damp, as they were on account of the recent rains, no effort of the firemen could have prevented the whole block from being consumed. The fire on Winnemucca street was discovered and extinguished before much damage was done. It was started in a small untenanted house by putting a small bundle of straw in the corner and setting fire to it. If the fire had gained much headway before it was discovered several buildings would have been burned before it could have been subdued. If it be true that malicious persons set these numerous fires it will not be beneficial to their health and comfort for the citizens to ever detect them in the act. The first incendiary who is caught in this nefarious business in this town, will undoubtedly be tried by Judge Lynch and sentenced to don a coat of tar and feathers and do cavalry service on a very sharp rail. A few are inclined to the charitable opinion that these fires originate through the carelessness of Indians who lounge about the vacant houses, but we don't believe anything of the kind.

LOOK HERE BOB!—One of our ingenious contemporaries says:

It has been discovered that Othello held a legal as well as a military office in Venice. He was a tawny-general.

THE FIRST BREAD PARADE OF THE BREAD AND BUTTER BRIGADE.

There is something attractive, or if not attractive, appropriate, in devices made after the manner of coats of arms, conveying a legend or a motto, and setting forth in all the significance and force of well conceived allegory, the striking peculiarities of a race, a family or a clan. We alluded the other day to a grand idea advanced by General Sherman, that of making the figure of Columbus, peering confidently into the future and forestalling the glories of the great West, a pictorial or sculptural embodiment of the American conception of an earnest, hopeful Progress. We think that idea might be wrought into something sublime. Descending then from what we recognize as possible of a sublime attitude, to something which, in its most harmless aspect, is nothing better than ridiculous, let us suggest as an appropriate device for the accomplished miscegenation of Nevada Democracy and Nevada Johnsonism, for the very head and front of the Bread and Butter Brigade, let us, we say, be permitted to suggest as a fitting device for the oriflamme which that Brigade shall be known by, "the Serpent of Copperheadism, rampant, holding a buttered biscuit in his mouth and seeking the temptation of the virtuous dwellers in the Eden of Radicalism." What could be more appropriate, let us modestly yet earnestly ask? We make these suggestions so that we may not be behind hand in recognizing our duties toward the movement which has made itself manifest through the generalship of that distinguished political strategist and property-man, the honorable Joseph W. McCorkle of Vandalonghamish memory. Have we obfuscated ourself and our readers and must we explain? Well, here we go then. The "time honored" but seedy and imperfectly disinfected Democracy, the virtuous yet unwashed survivors of the days of John Bigler, Ned McGowan, Felix McCluskey and James Buchanan have been notified by the illustrious McCorkle that they and their new bed fellows, the "my policy" men who have rotted off the edges of the Union party, are expected to meet in Carson, in convention, "on the 12th day of September next, at noon, for the purpose of nominating a State Ticket;" and accompanying the notice which calls for this assembling of the Saints is a series of resolutions from which we extract the following (we quote from the Virginia Union):

Resolved, That all persons shall be qualified and are invited to participate in such primary election, who

First—Endorse the policy of Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, for the immediate restoration and maintenance of the Union.

"'Tis well! The "old war horse" snuffs the battle from afar! "Dibble and Skinker, Skinker and Dibble" were as nothing compared with what shall be done with McCorkle and Cradlebaugh, Cradlebaugh and McCorkle, Democracy and "my policy;" and, over all, the flaunting flag of Postmaster Randall's duly authorized squad of the Bread and Butter Brigade! Wake, snakes!

"CARRYING OUT PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S POLICY."—We hear a good deal about a certain person with an unexpected office, "carrying out the policy of President Lincoln." But here is a genuine instance of a fulfillment of that trust:

An exchange states that Mrs. Lincoln has presented Fred. Douglass with a cane of her husband's, carrying out a wish which the latter expressed shortly before his assassination.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT IN A THEATER.—The San Francisco Evening Tribune of the 27th ult. says:

In the rendition of Uncle Tom's Cabin at the Opera House last night, an accident occurred by which E. Thayer, one of the performers, narrowly escaped serious injury. In the scene where "George Harris" resists the taking of himself, wife and child by "Haley" (Thayer) McCullough (who represented "Harris") inadvertently placed a Colt's navy revolver within a few inches of Thayer's head and fired, three of the chambers exploding simultaneously, the force of the explosion lacerating Thayer's right cheek and driving numerous grains of powder into it. A physician was sent for, and Mr. Thayer's part was read by Mr. White during the last two acts.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

(FROM THE GOLD HILL NEWS OF LAST EVENING.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The Senate admitted Joseph S. Fowler, from Tennessee, and E. T. Ross, from Kansas.

The Senate amended the House resolution providing for adjournment, by fixing Saturday noon, July 28th; and the House subsequently concurred.

The Army Bill, Civil Appropriation Bill, Tariff Bill, etc., are in hand.

The Senate confirmed A. W. Randall as Postmaster General.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The Senate debated the case of Patterson, Senator elect from Tennessee, for three hours, and finally referred it to the Committee on Credentials.

The President has nominated U. S. Grant, General of the Army; Farragut, Admiral of the Navy; Sherman, Lieutenant-General; and Porter, Vice Admiral. These nominations were immediately confirmed by the Senate.

The President also nominated Hancock as Major-General, vice Sherman; and Ord as Brigadier-General. Both were confirmed.

WASHINGTON, July 27th.—The Senate, after a long debate, passed a resolution which was sent to the House, enabling Patterson to be sworn in as Senator from Tennessee. The House debated and rejected the resolution.

Both Houses passed a bill admitting Nebraska.

Secretary Harlan resigned to-day and the President nominated O. H. Browning, of Illinois, to fill the vacancy.

The bill to equalize the bounties for soldiers has passed both Houses.

Also the bill increasing the pay of members of Congress to $5,000, beginning with this Congress.

OF SUCH IS THE KINGDOM OF THE PARADOX.—L. P. Milligan, one of the plotters of assassination in the Democratic Order of the Knights of the Golden Circle in Indiana, was convicted of treason, sentenced to death, and liberated by President Johnson. Returning from prison to the neighborhood where his crimes were meditated, he received a "grand ovation" from his gang, and delivered himself of a harangue which is reported as follows by the Cincinnati Gazette:

No one man could possess, in a high degree, all human vices—not even a Lincoln, a Brough, or a Morton. Among the greatest sinners against God's righteous will were these three individuals; and though he was not prone to believe in special providences, their fate was otherwise unaccountable. One had been summoned to the bar of retributive justice with his sins unrepented of. Another, covered all over with the mildew of debauchery, and wrapped in exhalations from which buzzards would turn their offended noses, carried to the grave the impress of infamy; while there yet remains one of the Godless trio. But the plague is on its westward march; his limbs are smote with the blood of crime, and tremble under the load of corruption. Still he prayed that the Governor might live long enough to realize in this world, rather than in the next, that God is just. He renewed his adhesion to the Democratic party, and exhorted his hearers, in the precise language he had used on a former occasion, to maintain the organization of the party, though cowardly men may have shrunk from the boldness of its truth, and attempted to corrupt its ritual and interpolate its constitution.

A WORD FOR DAIRYMEN AND COWBOYS. Here is a hint for people who own cows and who profess a desire to keep them within the limits of their pastures:

A Western farmer says he made it a rule that whenever cattle are made to pass a fence, whether through bars or "slippap," to leave one rail for them to pass under. This gives them a downward tendency, and lessens their inclination to jump or look upwards, as they are sure to do when a lazy attendant throws down a part of the rails and makes them vault the rest. Cattle may be taught to go over any fence by the careful training they often get for this end, and performed as follows: First, starve them, or give them poor feed, which will make them light and restless. As soon as they go over the lowest part of the fence after better provender, make them jump back again, and put on one more rail, saying—"I guess that will keep 'em out." Next day (as of course they will be in mischief again,) repeat the process, adding another rail; in a short time they will take care of themselves, and harvest the crops without charge.—Tucker's Rural Affairs.

HOLD THEM TO THE RECORD.—General Spooner, in a late speech at a Union meeting in Indianapolis, said he held the Democracy responsible for every empty grave we see in the streets, for the death of every Union soldier, for the war, and for the National debt.
