Unconditional Surrender Sentiment of House

German Note Has Arrived at Capital

Is Now Being Decoded, But Difficulty for Some Reason Is Found In Deciphering It

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The Swiss legation has received the official text of the German note and it is now being decoded.

Foch Will Dictate Military Terms

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—German must come to military terms with General Foch, is the outstanding feature of the developments soon to follow the receipt of Germany's reply. The next step appears to be Foch's announcement of terms on which he would consider an armistice. It is believed in military circles that Foch's minimum terms will include Allied occupation of Metz, Strassburg and Coblenz. American sentiment, however, is an unconditional surrender as the only basis for negotiations.

Does Not Suit the British

LONDON, Oct. 22.—A majority of parliament members are hostile to Germany's reply, regarding it as an attempt to split the Allies. Referring to constitutional changes in Germany, members said they had not passed the reichstag yet. A few laborites and radicals consider it a great advance towards peace.

Not Satisfactory to France

PARIS, Oct. 22.—"The German reply gives no satisfaction in France," a high government official declared today. "It is possible President Wilson will not reply, but if he does France is confident of his decision," he stated.

Austria Will Soon Reply

PARIS, Oct. 22.—The Austro-Hungarian government will soon reply to President Wilson, inasmuch as he did not answer the question concerning the possibility of peace negotiations, a semi-official Vienna dispatch declared.

Delay in Delivery of Note

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22, 3 p. m.—The delay in the delivery of the official German text has given rise to the belief that there has been some difficulty in decoding, and perhaps it is a different text than the Nauen wireless note.

BRITISH WITHIN MILE OF TOURNAI

Working South to Form Junction With the French

LONDON, Oct. 22.—General Haig announces the British are within a mile of Tournai, the Germans in that region having been driven from the Orq wood near Froyennes. The British have now reached the west bank of the Escaillon, five miles southwest of Valenciennes.

The British have also reached Escourt (Scheldt) river, on a five mile front north of Tournai. They advanced about a mile between the Escaillon and Lys rivers. The Germans have abandoned all their coast defense guns. It is announced the French have advanced within a mile of Crecy-sur-Serre from the south.

Allies Advancing On Wide Front

In Flanders Are Nearing Valenciennes—Huns Throwing In New Troops to Head Off Yanks

LONDON, Oct. 22, 3 p. m.—The French operating in the north with the British second army in Flanders advanced on a wide front this morning, making excellent progress, front dispatches reported. Earlier reports stated, the British had practically surrounded Tournai and were within less than a mile of Valenciennes, while the Allies at the gates of Audenarde were within five miles of Ghent. The Belgians have crossed the Scheldonek canal on a fifteen-mile front.

We'll Bet They Won't

WITH THE AMERICANS IN FRANCE, Oct. 22.—The Germans continue to strengthen their forces opposing the Americans in the Argonne-Meuse region. A captured order declared that that region was the most vital to Germany's military movements and the enemy intends to hold despite cost.

WHAT ALLIES HAVE DONE IN PAST THREE MONTHS

It is but two or three days over three months since the Allies began their counter offensive.

One glance at the war map will show you what has happened since that time. Ninety-three days have passed and the whole complexion of world events has changed.

On July 15th the Germans began their last grand offensive and penetrated south of the Marne river in a new "double-action" drive designed to spread in two directions—toward Paris to the westward, and to cut off Rheims to the eastward.

American troops, French soldiers and Italians were opposing them, the Yankees at the very apex of their smash towards Paris, the French at the nose of their drive to cut off Rheims and the Italians at and near Rheims itself.

A break through meant that Paris would be placed under intense bombardment, the great Rheims salient would be flattened and the Huns would be another step toward the goal of victory.

First, the Americans drove the enemy back across the Marne. The French gave ground slightly and then reacted. The Italians didn't budge.

Then General Foch assembled a new army in a single night. From all points of the compass he drew it. On the morning of July 18th he struck the exposed right flank of the German crown prince, with Yankee soldiers leading the assault. Victory came immediately. The Huns were beaten and their retreat began. The enemy lost 200,000 getting out of the "Marne pocket" in which he had been trapped by Foch and taken by surprise.

Then, while the Germans were weakening their other fronts to send succor to the beaten crown prince, the Allies launched blow after blow along the entire line of battle from the North Sea the Vosges mountains. Wherever attack was unexpected by the foe, there it struck and bored in till a hole was punched.

armies was slow, but now the Huns are retreating faster and faster toward their frontier.

Now, three months later the German armies are demoralized and retreating. The Hun is changed from a blatant victor to a whiner for peace.

There never has been another so complete revulsion of form in the history of the world.

General Foch's masterful strategy and the American reinforcements have turned the tide. The end is coming nearer every hour.

HOPES SOON TO BE ON HER WAY

Miss Brenetta Donlin, who some time since volunteered for Red Cross service overseas, has been notified to apply for her passport and will leave for San Francisco the coming Thursday.

Before the applicant's appointment is formally made all requirements must be met, one of them being the receiving of a passport. There is no doubt but that Miss Donlin will receive her passport at once and in all probability will depart in a very short time for overseas service.

For nearly four years Miss Donlin has been chief stenographer in Judge McCarran's office, and is in every way competent to fill any office which may be assigned her in the Red Cross service.

Knowing of Miss Donlin's intense desire to do her bit in the greatest war of all the ages, her friends are rejoicing with her, but she will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends both in Carson and Reno.

REMAINS DID NOT ARRIVE

No word has yet been heard from Fort Logan regarding the shipping of the remains of Karl Chartz, the young Carsonite who died at that post last Friday night.

A number of telegrams of inquiry have been sent to the authorities by the Chartz family, but no response of any kind has arrived, so all are in the dark as to when the remains will arrive.

Camp Logan, it is stated, is one of the most grievously stricken posts in the Union, and from report is almost a charnal house. At the time it was struck by the plague 750 men were training there and of this number 150 have died up to date.

NURSES, ATTENTION!

The National Bureau of Nursing desires that all women who will nurse—graduate nurses or otherwise—register at once so that it may know how many and who are available to call upon.
