Hungary In the Grip of Anarchy

Mobs Parade Streets of Capital and Plunder Shops and Munition Stores--Chaos Reigns

[By United Press] LONDON, noon, Oct. 31.—Anarchy is growing in Hungary and armed crowds are parading the streets of Budapest, plundering shops and munition stores, while thousands of deserters are running rampant along the frontier attacking trains. Several castles have been burned and Nazis in flames. The population of Barcz is now fleeing into the interior fearing a clash between the Croats and Hungarians.

Austrians to Evacuate Italian Terrain
[By United Press] VIENNA, Oct. 31.—The Austrian war office has announced that in "view of our often expressed resolve to bring about the conclusion of an armistice and peace" Austria will evacuate all occupied Italian territory. This may mean the evacuation of Belgrade, the capital of Serbia. In the region of Serbia the Austrians have completely crossed the north bank of the Danube and are continuing to march toward the Save and Drina rivers.

Armistice Terms In Hands of Berlin

Their Contents, However, Not Yet Given to the Public

[By United Press] COPENHAGEN, Oct. 31.—General Foch's armistice terms reached Berlin Tuesday night, it is declared by the Vossische Zeitung.

State Department Reticent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The state and war departments are reticent about

General Foch's armistice terms received from Berlin, and will not discuss anything in connection with the Versailles conference. The Allied embassies believed the terms might have been sent, the announcement of their contents being withheld until Berlin acknowledges receipt.

Germany's Reply to Wilson Simply a Continuation of Hypocritical Maneuvers

Regarding German peace maneuvers General P. M. G. Malleterre, the noted French military expert, under date of October 20th, cabled the New York World from Paris as follows:

Germany's reply to President Wilson was only a continuation, in hypocritical tone, of the maneuver to save her armies in distress. I don't see how one can keep talking about it. There are only two solutions: Either Germany owns herself vanquished and she is willing to capitulate and trust to the discretion of the Allies, or she is able to continue the struggle.

In the latter case it is a matter of letting the cannon complete its work.

We can come out of all this only by the complete disarmament of Germany, which is a matter of a very short time, I believe. In order to see the situation clearly, it will be well to compare the past with the present. Premier Clemenceau's declarations following the liberation of Lille and of Flanders have been posted in France. Why should not the conditions of peace which the Germans would have imposed on the vanquished, had conditions been reversed, be posted in all the Allied countries?

We cannot have any doubt of the fate which a victorious Germany would have meted out to France and her allies had Germany been able to subjugate the world. I recall a version of the program which Germany had arranged. There was to be annexation of Belgium, and occupation of our northern and eastern French provinces was to have been completed by the exile "en masse" of all the French-speaking inhabitants. They were to be replaced by German soldiers, and by "good" German families. That was to be the most expeditious way of Germanizing occupied territory.

In this program Germany was to be served by the repetition of the Alsace-Lorraine experience.

Hence, in order to determine the conditions of an armistice which Germany requests, and to assure a peace which may carry guarantees for the future, we must not forget the terms under which we French would have suffered in the event of German conquest in 1914. Now, more is wanted. We must guard against all sentimentality.

Justice must be implacable. Let us think of the dead; let us think of the ruins; let us think of the necessary expiations; let us think of the avoidance of the return of such murder of humanity, and guard our children and grandchildren against it.

Without being able to foresee if tomorrow will be the day of capitulation, we may still say that the battle of lit-

Turkey Has Quit for Good

Signs Armistice With Britain That Means Unconditional Surrender

[By United Press] LONDON, Oct. 31.—British representatives concluded an armistice with Turkey at Salonika at noon, according to authoritative information received. The terms are said to include the free passage of the Dardanelles and will be such that it will be impossible for Turkey to resume hostilities. Turkey approached Britain and proposed an early separate peace. An armistice is the result. An earlier report stated that Turkey had been preparing a note tantamount to unconditional surrender and it is declared the note will permit the Allied fleet to pass the Dardanelles and suggest the landing of an adequate force in Turkey to supervise the demobilization of the Turks and will deliver to the Allies for trial all persons accused of violating civilized warfare. Turkey is definitely out of the war.

Dardanelles Were Opened This Morning

[By United Press] LONDON, Oct. 31.—Sir George Cave, home secretary, announced to the house of commons this afternoon that Turkish plenipotentiaries arrived at Mudros early this week and that Admiral Calthorpe signed the armistice last night. The Dardanelles were reported to have been opened at 6:30 this morning.

Mesopotamia Turks Surrender
[By United Press] LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Turkish army groups of Mesopotamia have surrendered, it is authoritatively stated. The armies consist of one division and a large part of two others under the command of Ismail Hakki. General Townshend, commander of the British Mesopotamian force which surrendered in April, 1916, at Kutelamara, was the messenger bearing the Turkish request for an armistice.

Turks Concede Everything
[By United Press] PARIS, Oct. 31.—The terms of the Turkish armistice give free passage of the Dardanelles to the Allies' fleet as far as the Black Sea, the occupation of the Bosphorus and Dardanelles forts and the immediate release of all Allied war prisoners.

eration is going on untiringly. Notwithstanding the rainy autumn weather, the Allied armies are advancing in Belgium and Northern France. Belgian Flanders has been liberated. As we foresaw, von Armin's left wing, which had defended the coast, has been pushed across the Dutch frontier and has allowed itself to be interned. We can only regret that Holland has considered it advisable to maintain the neutrality of the mouth of the Scheldt. England could have opposed this in 1914, for the treaties did not authorize Holland thus to favor the siege of Antwerp, to the detriment of Belgium and of the Allies. It is to be hoped that a rectification of the frontier will shortly occur.

German armies in Belgium appear to be preparing for the evacuation of that country. They still resist along the Scheldt, but the Allied pressure becomes heavier steadily, and Ludendorff is obliged to send troops to the dangerous eastern sector.

The battle around the Meuse is still a hard one. It will be equally hard in Lorraine. Strong opposition must be faced by the valiant American troops. But there is a big margin yet, and we may hope something will change very soon along the Lorraine front. The Germans are expecting a blow.

Reverting to the subject with which I began this article, if it were for the German people to decide, I believe a complete downfall would be near. If the military chiefs hold the upper hand, one may expect that the upper hand, one may expect that the war will continue, for the sake of German honor, until the complete exhaustion of strength and munitions.

It Don't Help Nevada
[By United Press] WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The war department has announced the immediate construction of additional buildings at Camp Kearney in order to accommodate 9,000 additional men. The cost will be nearly $2,000,000.

Austrian Debacle Still Continues

Italians Have Backed Up Huns for Fifteen Miles Along Eighty Mile Front

[By United Press] LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Allied advance east of the Piave continues without check, the war office has announced. Anglo-Italian cavalry has reached the outskirts of Sacile, fifteen miles beyond the Piave and the Italians occupy the important railway town of Oderzo. The British have entered Asiago. The front is now more than eighty miles in extent. The Italians have taken Vittorio, a great supply base. The latest estimate of Austrians imprisoned has reached 40,000.

Austrian Note Received
[By United Press] WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The Austrian "personal note" to Secretary Lansing was delivered this morning. It is practically the same as the press text.

Crisis Impending for Austria
WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Fifteen Austrian divisions between the mouth of the Brenta and the Piave are gravely endangered, the Italian embassy reported. A crisis is now impending. The Allies reconquered more than 1,000 square kilometers yesterday in the Piave region.

Captures Reach 45,000
PARIS, Oct. 31.—The Austrians imprisoned now total 45,000, it is announced. Three hundred guns and 100 villages were also captured. The Italians have extended their offensive along the whole Austro-Italian front.

Communications Cut
[By United Press] ZURICH, Oct. 31.—The Czechs have cut all the railways between Berlin and Vienna, via Orderberg and Bodenbach, it is learned. Communications between Agram, Budapest, Fiume and Vienna have been completely interrupted.

Poles to Take Hold
[By United Press] MILAN, Oct. 31.—Austria has notified the Polish government at Warsaw that the military and civil authority will be handed over to them and that the Austrians will evacuate immediately, it is learned from Vienna dispatches.

Virtual Surrender to Italy
[By United Press] LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Italian commander in chief on the Italian front has applied for an armistice to General Diaz, it is authoritatively stated, and the request has been forwarded to the inter-Allied conference at Versailles.
