LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Our sick folks are on the gain. E. E. Husted is again a full fledged squire. The promised cold snaps have not visited us yet. Look out for counterfeit money and forged signatures. Our own William Schroeder is billed to lecture in Medina. A very large increase in business is reported on the W. & L. E. this season. H. O. Biggs reports business in a very flourishing condition in the northwest. Pay day on the Bee Line to-morrow. Such notices make the employes smile. Mrs. Olympia Brown at the M. E. church Wednesday evening November 20. Hiram Davidson, of Penfield, died this morning after a long illness. Funeral Friday. The people of Kentucky should now class the old dark age code of honor with dinosaur. A very few public sales have taken place in this vicinity, for this season of the year. Messrs. Hoyt & Peters have begun their new brick block. It will be 31x71 feet; two story. Our weekly letter from Huntington was omitted on account of our correspondent being away. The land appraiser and the census enumerator will be on duty at the same time next year. An inventory is being taken of the stock of drugs belonging to the estate of the late Dr. Emerson. The boys had better consult the Mayor as to their rights about tearing down and destroying posters. We have made arrangements for letters from Florida, California, Dakota and Virginia, this winter. Quite a number of the Masonic brethren went to Oberlin Tuesday, to attend the funeral of Mr. Brown. The Democrats of Spencer had a blow-out Tuesday evening. D. L. Wadsworth of this place made the farewell address. Those seeking employment will do well to read the advertisement of the Guarantee Nursery Co. in another column. The bicycle craze here has been quite dormant this season, a number of wheels we notice are offered for half their original cost. Deputy Treasurer Cushion will now receive what you owe the State, county, township, school district and corporation for the year 1889. Read special advertisements of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, The Century, St. Nicholas, and Harper's Monthly Magazine. Strangers presenting orders for cash at the offices of the wholesale cheese houses in this place had better bring a friend along to identify them. Business rooms would be much better lighted if the wooden awnings were removed and canvas placed upon adjustable rods substituted in their places. This office is in receipt of a number of requests to aid in the repeal of certain laws, or to advocate some measure at the next session of the General Assembly. S. Branbach, Superintendent of the Estey Piano Company of New York, stopped over with Wm. Vischer a couple of days on his way to St. Louis, last week. The game laws to permit the killing of quail went into effect November 10. Gene Robinson and W. F. Crozier went out and downed four rabbits and twenty-two quail. D. A. Brown of Oberlin, died very suddenly of heart disease and was buried Tuesday with Masonic honors. He was formerly prominently connected with the commercial interests of this place.

The dry goods and clothing houses are enjoying an unusually good trade this fall. That's right. Come to Wellington and consult our business men if you want to get good goods and at just what they are worth. The stone drive-ways are being appreciated even by the patrons of trade from a distance. Public opinion may be moulded sufficiently, in time, to form a connecting link with some of the remote villages. Who cares a fig about an election in Ohio anyway? It is now only one forty-second part of the United States. So long as we can swing at the head, we are all right. The White House is the point for solid comfort. The people of Oberlin witnessed a funeral on Tuesday conducted with full Masonic honors. The old time anti-Masonic residents there probably looked upon such proceedings as being adverse to public good. A number of towns in the State with less population than the Cheese City are enjoying electric lights. Let some expert inform us the difference between the expense of the present system of lighting and the electric. The members of the fire department have been called out but very few times this year for actual service. This is one kind of service that the people are willing to pay for to be in readiness only and no actual service to be rendered. J. M. Otterbacher and Wm. Vischer have caused to be erected some new designs of hitching posts in front of their places of business. The hitching post patronizer will have to procure a stool if he gets that old time rest for his weary limbs. G. W. Cable, the novelist, of New Orleans, appeared at the opera house Thursday evening. A fair audience was present, and his recitation was considered very good. About two hundred tickets have been sold, which is an excellent financial showing for the opening. The Bee Line made the long expected change in time Sunday, November 10th. Better accommodations are furnished now than for some years past. It is now understood that passengers can leave town over the Bee Line at almost any hour of the day. Many thanks. See corrected time table on 1st page. The witnesses in the clover seed case, went to Ashland last Friday, but the accused waived examination, and were bound over to Common Pleas court. Messrs. Laundon, Windecker & Co., still hold the seed purchased from the strangers, but whether the complaining witness can identify it, is the question. It is rumored that Geo. Prosser of Brighton is negotiating for a settlement with his wife, with a view of living together again. Prosser reported her to be a bad woman, and unworthy of his attention, but a very short time since. If the compromise is effected, Henry Haines should be adopted. Henry is a whale. Complaints are being made daily by the friends of the dead interred in south cemetery about the vases being stolen from the graves. It is to be hoped that some plan will be devised to catch the rascals and bring them to justice. It must be that someone is contemplating starting a factory or wholesale house as no conceivable idea can be entertained of what value such articles could be to anyone. The town clock has been put in order again and now serves as a time piece for the first time in two years. For the good work the town is indebted to Mr. Wm. Cushion, Jr. The city fathers were interviewed about appropriating a little money to aid in making the necessary repairs, but they declined, as they claimed that the clock was not the property of the corporation. Mr. Cushion then secured private subscriptions sufficient to warrant him to proceed. Many thanks. Quite an audience convened in Grange Hall Saturday afternoon to hear the discussion on farm topics. Hon. Lucius Herrick, I. L. Comstock, J. W. Beartrap, and others, imparted some very valuable ideas on the care of stock, how to prepare the food, etc. They expect to hold another meeting at an early date, as there was a little mistake in making the announcement of the one held November 9. Pittsfield Grange convenes in this place, instead of Pittsfield, owing to its organization under that charter. We have received some very handsome samples of dried fruit from the Shaw place, now occupied by A. H. Palmer. The lot includes prunes, nectarines, figs, peaches, pears and apricots, and in color and superior flavor is the best collection we have seen. The nectarines and pears are really remarkable. The drying was done by Mrs. Palmer, who, though a novice at the business, has evidently solved the problem of "what a woman can do."—Ontario (Cal.) Record. A box of the luscious fruit was received at this place. The editor sampled them and pronounced them excellent. The flouring mill at this place is now operated day and night and manufacture two hundred and forty barrels of flour daily. Three leading brands are manufactured aside from various other brands. These are the VanCleaf patented flour, the Famous, or Straight Grade, and the Monarch Clear or Baker's flour. The Van Cleaf is considered the best. A large amount of chop and middlings are also manufactured to supply the local trade and towns surrounding. The grain consumed is purchased from points along the Bee Line, eastern Indiana and southern Michigan. Quite an amount of flour has been exported to Scotland, and one car load was forwarded to Havana, Cuba, last week, but the principal trade is in Pennsylvania. It requires thirteen employes at the mill aside from the general manager, secretary and treasurer and traveling salesman. The company spare no pains in procuring all the latest patents, which only serves to improve the grades of flour and reduce the operative force. More Crookedness. About ten days ago, Mr. William Chamberlain, a patron of a milk factory in Sullivan, called upon G. W. Crozier & Co., of this place, for some money in advance of annual settlement on his milk. The clerk turned to his account, and told him what was due, which Mr. Chamberlain thought must be a mistake. He was then shown an order with his name signed to it, which read as follows: "Please pay this man $30.00 of my milk money, and oblige Wm. Chamberlain." Mr. Chamberlain looked it over carefully and decided at once that it was a forgery. About the same time, Willard Hart, a patron of the milk factory in Penfield, appeared at the office of Laundon, Windecker & Co., and wanted an advance, when he was shown an order that read as follows. "BALDWIN & LAUNDON—Please pay this man thirty-five dollars of a milk money, and oblige WILLARD HART." Mr. Hart looked it over and he, too, decided that it was a forgery. The next thing to do was to look up the rascals. After looking up the case carefully, it was decided to place Frank Wannamaker, of West Salem, under arrest, as suspicious pointed toward him very strong. Constable Williams was armed with a warrant, which was sworn out by Laundon, Windecker & Co., before Esquire Husted, and went to West Salem and placed him under arrest. The hearing was set for Thursday, Nov. 7th. Dickson represented Laundon, Windecker & Co., and Nye of Elyria, represented the accused. W. B. Follansbee, and C. W. Arner were inclined to think that the accused was the man, while W. F. Crozier testified that he did not think he was, but he swore that he was at work bailing hay in Spencer on the dates named, the books of Crozier & Co., and Laundon, Windecker & Co., showed that the money was drawn Sept. 21 and 20. The entire day was consumed to try the case, but under the testimony, the court could do nothing but acquit the prisoner. The money was drawn by some one and from the description, the same person presented both orders, but the next thing is to capture the guilty person. This will work to a great inconvenience to patrons of the factories, as it has been the custom for years for the wholesale firms here to recognize orders for money from the patrons, presented to them by a bearer, but the rule will now doubtless be changed, and every patron will be compelled to present himself in person, and sign an order in presence of the firm. The fraudulent orders that were presented were written with a pencil, on plain white paper. Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria. When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Obituary. Roy C. Paul, the subject of this sketch, was born in Wellington, Ohio, September 14, 1874, and died at his home in Wellington at 2 o'clock a. m., November 5, 1889. His funeral was held in the Christian church on Wednesday, the 6th, at 2 o'clock p. m., conducted by Rev. S. D. Gammell, a large and sympathizing concourse of friends and relatives attending. His school teachers and class-mates, numbering near sixty, attended in a body, bringing with them many flowers, besides those that had been strewn in and about the grave, the ground all about being literally covered with choice flowers and vines. On or about July 1st last, Roy met with an accident to the eye, and soon after an extract began to form. A skillful physician was called, and he advised that he put himself under treatment of an expert for such difficulties in Cleveland. On the 3d day of October this little hero suffered an operation to be performed on the eye without the use of any anesthetic to deaden pain that must naturally follow such treatment, after which a fair prospect was had of restoring the sight of the injured eye. The pain and stress upon the system were such that during the operation he sweat so profusely that his clothes were wet. On the 10th day of October Roy came home feeling quite encouraged that the injured eye would be good again after a time; but, alas, how soon to be discouraged, though no murmuring was heard during all his sickness. A few days after his return home a slight fever was noticed, which was termed malarial, but finally took on a typhoid nature, and continued on until it terminated this poor boy's life. No more that voice we loved to hear Shall fill the mother's listening ear; No more its tones shall join to swell The songs that of a Saviour tell. A mourning class, a vacant seat. Tell us that one we loved to meet Will join our youthful throng no more That morn'ning changing scenes are o'er. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Paul and family desire to express their heartfelt thanks to all who remembered them so kindly during the sickness, death and burial of their boy, Roy C. Paul. G. PERSONALS. H. O. Biggs is in town. G. W. Ransom, of New London, was in town Monday. Dr. J. W. Houghton is able to be at his store again. Kent Warner entertained his sporting friends from Cleveland, Monday and Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Philadelphia, Pa. A Surprise. A genuine birthday surprise was given Mrs. L. C. Winchel, last Friday evening. She was visiting her daughter in Penfield while those at home were making every needed preparation for a good time. Her return was delayed until just the right moment, to make all complete. Sociability and games interspersed with songs and music, gave a pleasing feature for every taste. Not the least interesting was the partaking of an oyster supper which was served to children, grand-children and neighbors to the number of fifty. As the company dispersed at the hour of midnight, each looked as if ready to say, we have had a very pleasant time. A catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no permanent good.
