WATER and Arbor days are the next of importance.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has returned from his trip to Cuba.

THE rush to the White House to see the President about appointments has somewhat subsided within the past few days.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND did not stop in Ohio while he was in office, and evidently President Harrison has almost forgotten that there is such a state as Ohio to give any of its people an office.

THE Cleveland Plain Dealer says that Hon. D. L. Wadsworth, of Wellington, will be a candidate for Lieutenant Governor at the coming state convention. Mr. Wadsworth received a nice complimentary vote for the same position at the state convention held two years ago and his chances for the place this time if he desires it, is certainly very flattering.

BURGERS cracked the vault and safe by the use of dynamite in the bank at Plymouth, one night last week, and secured fifteen hundred dollars. In their flight they omitted to secure fourteen thousand dollars which was stored in one of the vaults of the safe. Vaults were considered a protection against burglars but it appears they have now become master of the situation and some other means must be resorted to if the funds of banks are kept secure.

THE lower house in the general assembly has passed Mr. Braman's bill to compel owners of cattle which are destined to be slaughtered in this state or their meats consumed here to undergo inspection. This is certainly meant as a direct blow to the producers from the west. First it was for purely sanitary measures the state, city and village boards of health are already clothed with abundant authority to prohibit it being placed on sale or consumed in any way. Secondly we have not heard of one case of sickness charged as the direct result of eating these meats. By this plan, meats are placed on their merits and if the west can produce just as good an article, and cheaper than it can be done in the east, have the people not the right to make their own selections? Let there be free inter course between the states unless the people by petition desire it otherwise. Mr. Braman and the balance of the members of the lower house probably had good motives in framing and passing the bill, but the folly of it is apparent.

Murat Halsted.

The rejection by the U. S. Senate of Mr. Halsted, nominated by the President to be Envoy extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Germany, is a matter for regret, and intensifies a growing feeling among the people of distrust for that body. A feeling that it is too far removed from the people and is made up of millionaires who are able to get and hold their places by sheer force of money. It is conceded by Mr. Halsted's most vigorous opposers that he is every way fitted for the place to which he was nominated. While his friends contend that his sojourn in Germany and presence at that Court and friendly relations with the government during the Franco-German war rendered him peculiarly fitted for the post and gave him exceptional facilities for being of great service to his country at that court. The petty spite of the seven republicans who voted "No" on his nomination, will not add to the respect in which the party would delight to hold them. We do not employ a teacher, a preacher or doctor, because we agree with them in all things, but because of fitness in their particular callings.

We regret to see this paragraph in a notice of the event in the Elyria Republican from the pen of Hon. G. G. Washburn:

"There is no question as to his ability, and the press generally think his rejection was on account of the scoring he gave the Senators who voted against an investigation of the methods by which Senator Payne was elected. Be that so or not, there are many republicans in Ohio who will shed no tears over his rejection. He was a mugwump at Grant's second election, and there is no man in Ohio who has so ably and persistently opposed every law that has been proposed or adopted to rid the people of the evils they have so long endured from the unrestrained sale of liquor, as Murat Halsted. In this respect he has done the republican party great harm in Ohio, because of his ability and influence in opposing their clearly expressed will on the subject of liquor legislation."

In all kindness we must be allowed to say that this is unworthy of Mr. Washburn. If Mr. Halsted was a mugwump at Grant's second election so was Whitelaw Reid. Without the votes of the republicans who refused to vote for Grant at that time, Benjamin Harrison could not have been elected President of the United States. Does the editor really propose to read all those who may have erred in this direction, in his estimation, out of the party. In the party quite strong enough to stand so vigorous or lopping off? We think our neighbor would scarcely say that he would not let those men vote our ticket if they desire to. Then it comes to this, Mr. Halsted and such as he, may work for Republican success as he did work in 1884 and 1888, but he shall not nor such as he, receive any official recognition therefor. Not that we for a moment concede that his work or vote was for place or favor, any more than we concede that the republican party acts from the grovelling stand point of getting the work and the votes of these men, at the same time proposing to keep them out in the cold. Is there no respect for other men's opinions? Mr. Washburn's reasons as here given were not the reasons of the Senate. The reasons of those seven Senators were because they still winced and writhed under the whip of the Commercial Gazette. It is a low revenge, one that in our opinion, Mr. Halsted would not have paid in kind, any place within his gift that any one of the seven Senators was a candidate for and was peculiarly fitted to fill would even now be given to him were Mr. Halsted the dispenser thereof. There is but one standpoint and that is fitness, all others sink out of sight to the full grown man.

Mr. Halsted is not an enemy to the temperance cause and is not so regarded by the people of Ohio. He has favored the present temperance laws of Ohio and without his aid they could never have been enacted, for the republican party would not have had the power to enact them and the democratic never would. Mr. Halsted is the man for the republicans to place in the U. S. Senate and thus right the wrong. We believe H. B. Payne's seat was corruptly obtained by the corrupt use of money in his behalf. Mr. Halsted more than any other man has labored to exhibit that wrong. These same Senators who voted to reject him voted to suppress the inquiry though asked to make it by the legislature of the State of Ohio. We do not impugn their motives, we do question their judgment, and no investigation was ever had. The real outcome would be for the people of Ohio to place Murat Halsted in the seat of H. B. Payne. We hope the President will again place his nomination for minister before the Senate. The new Senators from the northwest will then have taken their seats and the confirmation will be assured. He can decline the position and accept the senatorship if in his judgment he can better serve his country in the latter position than in the former.

SAN FRANCISCO.

One of the chief attractions to every tourist who visits California is the wealthy metropolis of the Pacific coast, through whose Golden Gate there pours so large a proportion of the commerce of the world. The San Francisco of to-day is a city of 350,000, being the ninth city in the United States in population. It is located on a peninsula separating the Pacific Ocean from the bay. The city is about four and one-half miles in width by six and one-half in length. The bay is a calm and magnificent body of water surrounded by picturesque hills and set along its shores on all sides with beautiful suburbs, which with their enchanting climate, beauty of location, wealth of flowers, air of refinement, and their nearness to a great city with all its metropolitan advantages make them the most attractive places of residence. A grand view is presented from the hills surrounding the beautiful bay. Its bright unruined surface is always dotted with the smoke and sails of the smaller craft which carry much of the commerce of the bay and its navigable streams, and with scores of great ships and ocean steamers which lie motionless at anchor in the quiet haven. We were ferried over the bay from Oakland with two thousand other tourists in an elegant steamer that was built with a view of giving a view of the city and suburbs. It seemed that beautiful morning as if we were crossing the "Jordan to the celestial city" and what made it appear so much a reality was because we were so near the "golden gates" and could see so many celestial citizens. We passed out on deck so as to hear the first strains of music, but could hear only the music of the waters and hum of a great city. (They evidently had not heard we were coming; well, we are so reserved and modest that we prefer to avoid great public demonstrations when it is possible.) There were many chariots and horsemen in waiting, but I noticed the streets were not paved with gold. Then there were crowds and crowds of people on their way to the great revival meetings conducted by Sam Jones. I knew by this the "millennium" had not arrived. No, this is a very wicked city. Moody preached here four weeks and now Sam Jones is holding the mirror of truth before the people until they tremble. He announced that on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock he would preach a sermon to men only and requested all of the Christian women of the city to spend the hour between three and four in prayer for the blessing of the holy spirit on this special service. The six thousand chairs were all taken at half past 2 o'clock and the doors of the great pavilion were closed and locked so as to have it perfectly still while Prof. Excell sang "Are you ready for the judgment day?" As the last strain of music died away the great crowd outside burst in the doors with a crash and poured into the aisles. Sam Jones sprang to his feet and slapping his hands shouted, "Glory to God, there is hope for old San Francisco yet; they are breaking down the doors to hear the gospel. Come in my fellow countrymen you are welcome," and five or six hundred men filed into the aisles. The audience were richly dressed, being composed largely of business men, bankers, lawyers, merchants and railroad men. Although they represented the better class of the city their faces showed very plainly that Satan had lured them in to many sins. Some of them are beyond hope, for they have stabbed their consciences with sin until they are dead. The revivalist said before he commenced to preach that unless they were prepared to hear the gospel truths preached as they had never heard them before they had better pass out, for he did not want to have them come whining around after the service and say he had hurt their feelings. His text was, "Flee for your lives." He preached on the sins of profanity, drunkenness, gambling and licentiousness. At first, in order to draw the closest attention, he let his mirth play. To illustrate his sermon he related some incidents that made them laugh while the tears ran down their cheeks. Then he let the commandments of God and truths of the Bible fall on that audience as it never fell before. I never saw the power of the spirit besting at the hearts of men as it did there. Some wept, some trembled, and others swayed to and fro under conviction of sin. When he asked how many would turn from their ways of wickedness over six thousand rose up, nearly the entire congregation. It was a scene and sermon they will never forget.

There are many attractions in this city to visitors. Golden Gate Park, comprising 1,600 acres, is one of the finest in our country. A large amount of money has been lavished upon it. It contains many miles of lovely drives, walks and bridle paths. From the elevated portions may be had a magnificent view of old ocean, the bay, the city and acres and acres of flowers in gorgeous bloom and of entrancing beauty and loveliness. Here we find the hibiscus, pandanus, begonia-zerules, with many other plants and flowers so dear to the hearts of all. In an elevated portion of the park is a large statue sacred to the memory of our martyred President, James A. Garfield. All honor to his name: gone from our midst, yet living in the hearts of his countrymen. Here thousands of miles away a grateful people perpetuate the name and memory of Ohio's noble son and Christian statesman.

In the Concert Court is a monument to the memory of the author of "The Star Spangled Banner." The memorial is surmounted with a Goddess of Liberty holding the flag; beneath, in marble, is the author holding a scroll in his hands. On tablets at the side in gold letters, bold and bright, are written the inspiring words of that famous song. Grand band concerts of a high order furnish free music to the thousands that assemble here, and there is a wonderful display of wealth and beauty between 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon; hundreds of magnificent coach teams driven by coachmen in full livery, the coaches filled with pretty ladies, poodle dogs, pinks and parasols, titter and ha ha. Near the concert court, where mirth makes love with melody, is a children's play ground, a perfect paradise for boys and girls. Goats harnessed and hitched into carts, donkeys by the dozen all saddled and bridled, teeters and swings and spring boards, a large merry-go-round with boys and girls on horses and in boats, all the air musical with mirth and merry childish glee. The golden-hued sun as it bids good day to this western slope and dips itself gracefully into its evening bath in the placid Pacific throws its last kisses prior to its final dip upon these play grounds, and the first rays of morning smile upon this lovely park.

Twenty Pieces of Bone.

My little niece, left me by her mother, had one of the worst cases of white swelling I ever saw. More than twenty pieces of bone came out of her leg, one piece being about the size of the small end of a walking cane, and nearly three inches long. The hole left by taking these pieces out was as large as a good sized walnut. She was not able to walk a step for eight months, and was afterwards compelled to use crutches for nearly a year. The doctors said there was no cure, and advised amputation of the limb. This I wouldn't consent to, but put her to taking Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) leaving off all other treatment. It has cured her sound and well, and I shall never grow weary of speaking its praise.

Mrs. Annie Geesling, Columbus, Ga., Feb. 11, 1889.

The World Ought to Know It.

The world ought to know what S. S. S. has done for me in the cure of a malignant Cancer, which was so bad as to be considered incurable by the physicians in Chicago, where I went to be treated. The hospital surgeon gave me up, saying they could do nothing for me. One of my neighbors sent me a copy of an advertisement cut from a paper in regard to Swift's Specific, and I began taking it. I got relief from the first few doses; the poison was gradually forced out of my system, and I was soon cured sound and well. It is now ten months since I quit taking S. S. S. and I have had no sign of return of the dreadful disease.
