THE earnings of the Big Four show an increase for July over 1888.

ASHLAND and Richland counties will present candidates at the Senatorial Convention.

THE committee appointed to secure local aid for the proposed railroad south from Sandusky are not meeting with the best of success. The farmers are becoming tired of such farces.

THE Law and Order League of Cincinnati has finally come out victorious over the saloonists of that city. Governor Foraker's letter to the Mayor had the desired effect. Not one saloon has been opened for two Sundays past.

THE delegates to the Constitutional Convention of North Dakota discussed the propriety of recognizing God in their Constitution for a number of days, and finally the following preamble was adopted: "We, the people of North Dakota, grateful to Almighty God for civil and religious liberty do establish and ordain this Constitution."

THE order of the Knights of Labor is fast reducing in numbers. Two years ago it numbered nearly two million members, to-day it can scarcely rally one hundred thousand in good standing. The originators of the scheme and the officers have made a nice fortune out of the pockets of the poor deluded laborer; but what has he got to show for the money he has advanced from time to time to keep it up? Such fraudulent organizations should be a warning to the laborer to learn to live upon the fruits of his own ideas and not suffer himself to be made a tool of.

FORTMASTER GENERAL WANAMAKER is trying to compel the Western Union telegraph company to transmit messages at the rate of one mill per word. How could Mr. Wanamaker like for some official of the Government to dictate what price he should sell his pants and coats at? The Government is abundantly able to pay a reasonable compensation for their work and do not authorize any official to attempt to enforce his penurious ideas upon any corporate body. If Uncle Sam is entitled to such cheap rates why not give the business men a little advantage in rates? The Western Union company has declined to accept of any such weak aided offer and will continue to transact business as usual and rely upon the good judgment of our representatives for their day. A sensible move.

THE Seventh Day Adventists of Ohio held their annual camp meeting at Mt. Vernon last week. Elder Farnsworth of Iowa reviewed the question of religious legislation. The speaker said "that the relation existing between a man and his maker was a personal one, wherein no human authority had a right to intervene, and that the sphere of civil government was wholly confined to those questions which arise through the social relations of man in a civil capacity alone. God only can deal with sin against Himself; man may protect himself and society against crime for the preservation of the civil rights of the individual and maintenance of social order." To adopt Mr. Farnsworth's ideas would hardly be in keeping with the forms of a civil government. Free speech is recognized, but still when individuals advocate and attempt to enforce opinions that are adverse to the Government they must be held strictly accountable for them. Nine-tenths of the Mormons in Utah believe that polygamy is right and the Government of the United States committed a grave error in the sight of God in enforcing the Edmunds bill, but still it had to be done to protect our free institutions. Law abiding citizens should not attempt to form societies in this country that their acts will be unlawful. The world is wide, and if they insist upon that kind of religious freedom a country may be within their reach where they will be under no restraint. Ever since the Blair bill which, it passed will prevent common labor on the Sabbath day, has been under consideration the Seventh Day Adventists have been a little uneasy. No one has any objections how many days any society sets apart for worship, but the days set apart to perform common labor is quite another thing. Last winter this society sent agents into the field with a remonstrance against the Blair bill to obtain signatures. Thousands of individuals signed it by not considering its true inwardness. If common labor on Sunday is forbidden by a general law, that would of course interfere very much with this society, as they respect the seventh day (Saturday) as the Sabbath, hence feel at perfect liberty to perform common labor on Sunday. Inasmuch as this state of affairs exists we are glad that Mr. Farnsworth selected this subject; it is one that must be settled sooner or later. We love to see our people enjoy religious liberty, but still it is necessary to have civil laws enacted by man and enforced to secure good government; for without laws we might just as well return to a state of nature. The question is one which concerns all of us and we hope the agitation will continue until it can be settled.

THE National Monument to the Pilgrims was dedicated at Plymouth, Thursday of last week. The cost of the monument has been about $300,000. It is of solid granite. The pedestal is forty-five feet high, on the center of which stands the figure of Faith, thirty-six feet high, resting one foot on Plymouth Rock and holding in her left hand an open Bible, and with the uplifted right arm pointing to heaven. On each of the four projecting buttresses of the pedestal are seated figures of heroic size representing Morality, Education, Freedom and Law; and on the faces of the pedestal under the feet of the figures are tablets representing the embarkation at Delfhaven, the signing of the compact in the cabin of the Mayflower, the landing at Plymouth and the first treaty with the Indians. The figure of Faith, which cost $33,000, was the gift of the late Oliver Ames; that of Education was presented by Roland Mather, of Hartford, Conn.; and that of Freedom was given by the United States Government. The corner stone was laid just thirty years ago. That the dedication of the monument should have been performed with Masonic rites and ceremonies will strike many people as particularly inappropriate and out of keeping with the spirit of the event to be celebrated. Hon. John D. Long, President of the Pilgrim Society, presided. The orator of the day was Hon. Wm. C. P. Breckenridge of Kentucky, and the poet J. B. O'Reilly, of the Boston Pilot. The only clergyman, it is stated, invited to a seat of honor was a Unitarian. What principle of fitness guided in the arrangement for the celebration is not clear. The oration was appropriate and excellent, though in no respect remarkable. This, at least, is true, the spirit of the Pilgrims, in one form and another, has vitally penetrated all our American institutions. The real monument of the Pilgrim Fathers is America itself.—[Advance.

Notes from Other Towns.

MEADINA. A pioneer and old folks picnic will be held at Lodi, this county, on Wednesday, August 14, '89. This will be made the occasion of opening and formally dedicating the water works that have just been completed in that village, and also the unveiling of the beautiful statue and fountain erected there. An unsuccessful attempt to break into the post office at Chippewa Lake was made on Thursday night. Mr. Koppes, the postmaster, was a little too wide awake and scared them away.

SHOWMAN Robinson was called home from Medina by a telegram announcing the death of his wife. The early quiet of last Sunday morning was considerably disturbed at Brunswick by the visit of a gang of burglars and safe robbers. About 3 o'clock Sunday morning Dr. Hawkins, at Brunswick Center, and his son were awakened by a loud report, as of a gun, in front of their residence. They immediately arose to learn the cause and found that burglars had entered the hotel of Otto Elster, and had dragged a safe that weighed about six hundred pounds out into the road and had blown it open. One of the burglars was seen by young Hawkins, who gave chase for a short distance. The Dr. went into the hotel to awaken Elster's family, and discovered the smell of chloroform in the room in which they were sleeping. After much racket he succeeded in awakening them, and on going out where the safe had been rolled they found it badly demolished and $321 in cash, its contents, missing.—[Medina Gazette.

OVERLIN.

Last evening for the first time since his installment in office His Honor, Mayor Dade, was unable to preside at the regular session of the council. His absence from meeting was rendered necessary by illness. Last Tuesday, we will venture the assertion, was one of the quietest days Oberlin has seen since way back in the 40s. The farmers' picnic at Linwood, with Governor Foraker, Gen. Bill Gibson and the Great Western Band as drawing cards, was so far attractive as to pretty nearly depopulate the town, and the country for miles around. The citizens of Vermillion township, outside of the village, are taking steps to have a vote under the local option law. There is one saloon. The meetings of the Christian alliance at Linwood, closing on Monday, were largely attended. The Faith Cure doctrine was prominently presented. Twenty-nine persons were baptized by immersion in the lake last Sunday. For five mornings in succession Deacon E. W. Andrews, of North Professor street, found that his growing corn had been visited during the night and the corn on a number of ears had been partially or wholly eaten off the cob. To solve the mystery a careful watch was kept and the pilferer was found to be a large thomas cat, which would stand on its hind legs, pull down the ear, tear open the husks and eat the corn. In the five nights forty ears had been destroyed. This is a true cat story, and is believed to be entirely new as the fact that a cat will do this has not been generally known.

LINWOOD PARK, Aug. 10, 1889.

Editor of THE ENTERPRISE: The custom of taking a few days from the busy cares of life and, with the little ones and a good big Saratoga trunk, removing bag and baggage to some pretty spot on the shore of old Lake Erie, is becoming more in vogue each year. The sharp, bracing air, the cool, invigorating waters of the lake, the forgetfulness of the cares and worries of life, are all conducive to health, and one can hardly invest a few days or weeks of time to better advantage. The writer, having tried many of the localities and resorts on the lake shore, is prepared to say a word for beautiful Linwood. It is reached by a pleasant carriage drive of about four hours from Wellington, or in much less time by rail via Elyria and Vermillion. The park contains about 60 acres, 30 acres or more of which is a grove of magnificent oaks, furnishing ample accommodation for pleasure and picnic parties. The whole grounds are under the management of Mr. C. F. Nagle who seems to be the right man for the place. Nothing within his power is too good for his guests and visitors; a pleasant word for all and a careful attention for all the small details of comfort and convenience leave little to be desired in the way of oversight.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low cost, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. Royal Baking Powder Co., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

The bathing facilities are first class. Mr. E. M. Chase is in charge and, at reasonable prices, will furnish anything in the way of suits or boats to those who wish to develop their muscle by pulling the oars. A large hotel on the grounds furnishes ample accommodations to those who do not come prepared to "camp out" or "take a cottage." The restaurant is fairly good and the charges moderate. I am informed there are about 75 cottages already occupied and more are being constructed. These are owned and mostly occupied by private parties. It is seldom that one of these can not be rented at reasonable price, and the whole cost of lying here would be but a trifle more than it would be at home.

We left Wellington bright and early Tuesday morning, the 6th, and arrived here shortly after 10, in ample time to hear the speeches of Gov. Foraker and W. H. Gibson and to look over the crowd of 10,000 people who turned out to the Erie Co. Farmers' picnic. We found our cottage still occupied, but before night we were comfortably settled and ready to enjoy our surroundings. Ten persons in a small cottage would seem to be a "little thick," but we eat and sleep and enjoy ourselves without let or hindrance. We are hardly awake in the morning before the daily papers are hawked around. Our mail is here just as promptly as it arrives at Wellington. The grocery man, the milk man, the meat man and the ice man, are promptly on hand to deliver at our door, anything we may need in their line, and at prices as low as they can be had in Wellington.

It would seem that there is little to be desired in a vacation that can not be had at Linwood. It is easy of access; prices are moderate; there are all the facilities necessary for enjoyment and recreation; the moral influences are all good and wholesome. Wellington people are noted for appreciating a good thing when they find it, and as 60 persons or 3 per cent. of the population of our town were camping on the grounds of Linwood yesterday, we refer to any of them for corroboration of our statement. F. W. Bennett, C. McDermott, W. Cushman, Jr., J. B. Vermilya, E. D. Bush, J. Benschoten, Chas West, L. Fowler, F. C. Williams, N. Huckins, E. W. Adams, J. W. Bunce, and E. E. Husted, with their families, are among the number.
