

BOOTS AND SHOES - AT - SERAGES.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Bats and crickets.
The phosphate trade has begun.
Lawn tennis for morning exercise.
Read up the calls for the conventions.
Life insurance agents appear to be busy.
Prices on cheese have a tendency upward.
J. Turley is offering a premium on gold dollars.
The town well on the square needs a little airing.
House burglars are giving us a rest for the present.
Some very smooth headed young men are in the field.
This is a very dull month for many branches of trade.
The spider and the fly do not appear to be very good friends.
The Methodist divines are preparing for annual conference.
A very heavy hay crop is reported throughout the State.
The weather is all the farmer can ask for to mature his crops.
White crops are in town. The girls can tell how much they cost.
Remember the Farmers' picnic next Wednesday, August 21.
Look out for full announcement of our fair in next week's issue.
The merchants in Elyria have formed a local protective association.
A very few sheriff sales have taken place in the county this year.
There is going to be plenty of good amusement at the fair this year.
Remember the Wellington fair takes place on August 27, 28, 29 and 30.
Fresh eggs demand remarkably good prices for this season of the year.
The band favors us with music these evenings, which is very acceptable.
Exhibitors are beginning to brighten the articles to be taken to the fair.
The Democrats convene in Elyria Saturday to nominate a county ticket.
The matrimonial market is a little dull just now but may become active soon.
Our correspondents are taking their annual. Please try and be with us next issue.
The English sparrow is unmolested this season. Braman must increase the reward.
Benedict and Lindsley are meeting with good success in disposing of their ponies.
The delivery boys at the telegraph office are kept on the march delivering messages.
Governor Foraker delivered a very able address to the farmers at Linwood Park last week.
Quite a number of fat hogs and veal calves were shipped East from here over the Bee Line last week.
The Senatorial committee of the 27th and 29th joint district convened at the American House Monday.
The trees on the school ground are being trimmed. Let some of the property owners go and do likewise.
Visit the fair grounds these evenings and see the turf men try their steeds to win the race for the evening.
Don't forget THE ENTERPRISE office when you want any printing done. We do work at exceedingly low figures.
Everything indicates that we will have a dandy fair. All come out and help us. Arrange to come early and spend the day.
Hon. D. L. Wadsworth is getting his campaign matter in readiness to attend the Democratic Convention in Columbus Aug. 27th.
Two acres of land was purchased for the Wellington Bending Works. Excavations were begun to-day for the reservoir.
Mr. and Mrs. C. McDermott were compelled to return home Tuesday from Linwood on account of the sickness of their second child.
C. W. Horr is fitting up his herd of Holsteins to take to the fair. His Holstein bull pulls the scales down to 2,300. His best cow 1,535 pounds.
J. Turley received half a car load of R. W. Bell's soap the other day, notwithstanding the house at Buffalo, N. Y., declined to recognize his orders.

If all of the districts are represented at the Senatorial convention, to be held here Sept. 5th, there will be one hundred and thirty-two delegates present.
Mr. E. F. Webster, of the firm of Wean, Horr Warner & Co., will start for Dixie in a few days, to be absent a number of weeks to look after the sale of onions.
Mr. Charles Gardner, one of the firemen at the Wellington Milling Co.'s, had his hands and face badly burned Tuesday by the bursting of a steam pipe. He was attended by Dr. Hathaway.
W. R. Wean will deliver the address at the Pioneers' picnic at Lodi to-day. The unveiling of the fountain statue and opening of the water works will be celebrated with appropriate ceremonies.
There are very few men who were in the civil war that would be subject to military duty at present, on account of age. Uncle Sam wants men to perform that line of duty between the ages of 18 and 45.
S. S. Hall is now disposing of the third car load of horses in this place which he has shipped from Kansas. Our farmers should aim to supply their own local market with horses that the trade demands, and keep the money at home.
The fair at New London will be held Aug. 21-23. The directors of the Association have spared no pains or money in placing the grounds in first class condition, and by the number of foreign entries made the exhibition promises to be one of interest. Thanks to Secretary Starbird for favors.
September the 6th a company of twenty-five farmers from Georgia will arrive here and remain a couple of days to inspect the dairy interests. These gentlemen are in charge of an agent connected with the leading railroad lines and will visit many points of interest in the North before they return. An unusual effort should be made on the part of the dairymen to make their visit a pleasant one.
Some of the manufacturing firms keep the wages of one week of their employees in their possession until they quit their service. A person is compelled to work two weeks before pay is drawn. By this plan an employe has the earnings of one week laid up. If laborers could arrange their matters to draw their salaries monthly many a dollar would be saved where it is now unnecessarily expended.
Uncle John Long went to Lodi one day last week to visit the onion fields, and through the courtesy of W. R. Wean he was conducted over the plantation. The onion and celery crops are booming and everything bids fair for an excellent yield. Mr. Long says that he was on the same premises fifty-nine years ago picking cranberries and there has been a decided change in the vicinity in that length of time.
The wholesale merchants in Chicago, Ill., have introduced quite a scheme to grapple the trade which patronizes the eastern cities. Their plan is to send return tickets to the leading merchants in a town or city as an inducement to call them to examine their stock of goods. The Queen city of the West can produce the corn and pork, but as a center for cotton goods it will require many years yet to establish it at all.
Mrs. Hull, who is spending the summer with her aunt, Mrs. Hiram Couch, taught school here some thirty years ago, when our townsman, Horace Wadsworth, was principal of the school. Since that time she has spent several years in Santa Fe, New Mexico. She says that she finds Wellington much changed for the better. Mrs. Hull is an enthusiast on the subject of educating the Indians, having been among them a great deal.
Pomeroy's Western World show was fairly patronized here Saturday afternoon and evening. The performances of lady contortionist and trapeze performers were exceedingly fine, from which it is evident that the young women are far more adapted to such work than young men. The performances of the trained horses exceeded anything of the kind we have ever witnessed. The company was a very civil one—not a drunken rowdy was observed in the crowd, which speaks remarkably well for a traveling company of the kind.
The amount of subscription required to keep the bending works at this place is about completed. The company made the following proposition to the town: If $1,500 was donated to them they would agree to erect works valued at $9,000, employ at least thirty men and perhaps more, and remain here five years. The committee have secured the option of Mr. A. M. Fitch for land for a site for the works just across the track from the W. & L. E. depot. Mr. S. K. Laundon, who has charge of the subscription list, informs us that the amount will be raised in a very few days and the site purchased. The building will be erected ready for occupancy on or before July 1st, 1890.

Next year the real estate will be appraised again. With our present State debt hanging over us and the constant increase in county, township and corporation expenses it would seem that real estate should be appraised at a higher rate than ten years ago. But farming lands, city and village property having greatly decreased in value the people will naturally expect the valuation placed at least 33 per cent lower, and perhaps it will be done. But what benefit will it be to us in the end? The levies must be increased or bonds must be issued to create the necessary revenues to meet our incidental expenses. The debts we have already contracted must be paid and all subsequent expenses must be paid. The present valuation had better remain undisturbed.
The business houses in the cities are employing lady clerks whenever the place can be filled by them. The merchants claim that goods are sold on close margins, and in order to compete they must reduce expenses in the way of salaries. This will be cold comfort to the gentlemen clerks to be compelled to leave their counters to permit cheaper help to come in. There is a cause for this. Young men of the present day sneer at young women who take the domestic field and class them as "kitchen mechanics," "mop slingers," &c. By this treatment the young women make a desperate effort to educate themselves to reach some place of business where they can earn a living. They can and will work cheaper, and the result is the young dudes are turned out to pasture for their sneers, which serves them right. It is but natural for the gentler sex to follow the domestic circle, and they will continue in that line if properly treated.

An Imperative Necessity

What pure air is to an unhealthy locality, what spring cleaning is to the neat household, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody, at this season. The body needs to be thoroughly renovated, the blood purified and vitalized, the germs of disease destroyed. Scrofula, Salt Rheum, and all other blood disorders are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the most popular and successful spring medicine.

Don't Get Caught

This spring with your blood full of impurities, your digestion impaired, your appetite poor, kidneys and liver torpid, and whole system liable to be strayed by disease—but get yourself into good condition, and ready for the changing to warmer weather, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It stands unequalled for purifying the blood, giving an appetite, and for general spring medicine.

The many remarkable cures Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes are sufficient proof that it does possess peculiar curative powers.

HATERS OF WOMEN.

A Physician Relates His Experience with Misogynists.

Hated of the Fair Sex Pronounced a Disease Akin to Insanity—Several Cases Illustrating the Truth of This Plausible Theory.

"Women-haters! Plenty of them!" A reporter for the New York World had met a well-known physician in a popular cafe and interrupted a conversation that the doctor was holding with a friend over a cigar and a bottle of claret. He spoke easily and with confidence that he knew his subject.

To hate a woman, especially one of the dainty, loving kind, upon whose glances men hang enthralled, or for whose kindly glances men would sacrifice their souls, seemed incredible. Perish the thought! And yet the visitor's mind brought into remembrance cases in which men had sworn they hated women, only to be captured and put in bondage by a pair of bright eyes.

The physician struck a fresh match and watched the smoke from his cigar roll lazily upward as he related a few strange incidents that had come under his observation professionally.

"Oncecase that I recall," said the doctor, "was that of a German, a member of all the musical societies, who late in life acquired and betrayed an intense hatred of all women. He had been happily married, and no one suspected him of this new feeling that began to creep over him and destroy the love he had for his wife and the respect for his mother.

"He struggled against it and fought it, but it was no use, and the disease, if such it may be called, began to show itself to his family and friends, and an instant estrangement from his wife was the result. He ran away from his home and was finally returned hopelessly insane.

"Now," concluded the doctor, "there was a man who was a woman-hater, only he did not know it, because he was insane." The physician had diagnosed his case aright.

The conversation turned then on a case that had been mentioned by Oliver Wendell Holmes in his book. A very young boy had been left in charge of a nurse, and she had suddenly gone insane. In her maniacal frenzy she tried to strangle her innocent charge, and only desisted when she thought she had succeeded in her object. Then she killed herself with a razor, which left her a most shocking sight. The boy revived, and the first thing his eyes fell upon was the corpse.

From that day throughout his childhood and up to the hour of his death the sight of a woman was enough to throw him into convulsions. His nurses were men, and his family decided it best to seclude him. No woman ever entered his apartments, but all the work of taking care of him devolved upon men. He died in those rooms.

"Yes, that is very strange," said the physician, meditatively. "But I think I know of one nearly as remarkable," and he went on to relate the following:

"In the spring of '91 I was called in by a prominent banker to attend his son, who had suddenly become afflicted with a strange state of mind, which proved to be a hatred of women. His family could not understand, as he had always been a leader in social events and fond of ladies' society.

"I found the young fellow's constitution very much run down, and made him admit that he was a victim of the opium habit. He also confessed to me an adventure that had happened to him, but which I will not repeat, as it is too long, in which he had been scared nearly out of his wits by a woman.

"It was easy enough for me to see that unless the impression caught and retained by his mind in its enfeebled state could be removed, he would remain a woman-hater all his life."

"Was it ever removed, doctor?" asked one of the listeners.

"Never," was the answer, and the party relapsed into silence for a moment.

A diversion was caused by the waiter's removal of an empty bottle and the substitution of a fresh one, and the conversation was resumed.

"Tell us another, doctor," intimated the newspaper man.

"I could tell you several more, but would have to do so briefly, as a patient is waiting for me," he responded. "I recollect a gentleman who stood very high in all affairs connected with education in New York. He, too, was a woman-hater. As his opinion on school affairs was considered valuable, many teachers, especially ladies, used to run to him for advice, but, as he was deeply engaged in study, their calls were a source of annoyance to him and irritated him into the state of mind that I have mentioned.

"He was a bachelor, but he finally discharged all his women servants, substituting men. And orders were given that no woman was to be allowed to set foot within his doors. He has often told me that women had prevented his reaching the highest rounds of science and that he could never regain the time lost.

"I know another case where a man entrusted his entire fortune to a woman, and she made away with it and made a woman-hater out of him. He could never address one.

"But," concluded the doctor, impressively, "I think that designing mothers are responsible for many of the woman-haters, as they frequently prevent their daughters from marrying the men of their choice, and when a girl deserts the man she loves and marries another it is very apt to do mental injury to the first."

The Spider as a Traveler.

A doctor desired to send a fine specimen of the spider tribe to a medical friend who was exceedingly curious in the study of such matters. As the reddest means of transit, he inclosed it in a common wooden box, and dispatched the tiny traveler by express. The box, however, was too roomy for the spider's wants, and as he seemed to have disliked the jolting incident to traveling, he had recourse to a very ingenious remedy. Bees emit extraordinary sagacity in overcoming difficulties of form and situation, and spiders, it would appear, share to a great extent the same delicate and useful trait. Such at least is the inference we feel inclined to draw from the following fact: When the spider reached his destination and the consignee opened the box, he was equally surprised and delighted to find that his insect charge had spun for himself a superb hammock, securely hung from the four corners of his prison-house, in which he had cooched, in sailor fashion, as softly as he does in his native lair.

Herold German Deaconesses.

The Churchman, speaking of the death of Damien, the leper priest, says that outside of the walls of Jerusalem is a leper hospital tended by deaconesses from the German religious houses. "Year after year these heroic women, without pretensions, without any trumpeting of their work, almost unknown to the world, have wasted upon lepers, who themselves literally dying by inches. Their courage has only come to light by the chance notice of travelers."
