

SAY PLANS WILL NOT BE ALTERED

Democrats Predict Supplemental Anti-Trust Legislation

Discuss Morgan Declaration--Believe, However, That The Reorganization Of The House Of Morgan And The Steps Taken Recently By Other Corporations Will Tend To Stimulate Business--Money Committee Claims Some Credit

Washington, Jan. 3.—Democratic leaders in Washington say that the reorganization of the house of J. P. Morgan & Company, effected through the retirement by members of that firm from the directorates of other corporations, will not alter one way or the other plans under way to pass supplemental anti-trust legislation at the coming session of congress.

Administration officials claim to have had knowledge in advance that the house of Morgan intended to retire from active participation in a number of railway and industrial corporations. Mr. Morgan's announcement has made a favorable impression on the authorities, who predict age will be forwarded to congress by the president recommending the enactment of a law prohibiting interlocking directorates in all interstate commerce corporations.

Revolutionists Will Soon Have to Fall Back to Mula Pass to Replenish Their Provisions and Wait For More Ammunition—Refugees Will Be Permitted to Cross the Border Line.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 3.—For four days and five nights the battle of Ojinaga has raged between Mexican rebels and federals without definite result. The federals still hold all the ground they had when the rebels made the first attack, with the exception of a few outposts.

The general opinion is that if the federals' ammunition holds out the rebels can not take the town, and that within a few hours the rebels will have to fall back to Mula Pass to replenish their provisions, get water and wait for more ammunition.

The resistance of the federals has been spirited and successful to a surprising degree. Every time the long line of rebels has charged the federal stronghold they have been compelled to fall back.

MILLIONS FOR PUBLIC WORK

Cleveland Citizens Indorse the City Foundation Plan.

The plan is the idea of President F. H. Goff of the Cleveland Trust company. Goff estimated that under the arrangement there would be available $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 for public improvements, educational enterprises, scientific research and charitable work in 25 years.

The foundation would be in the hands of the Trust company as trustee, but would be controlled by a board of five, in the choice of which the mayor and judges would have a voice.
