Cinna. Jan. 19, 1861. A large number of citizens were present to give effect to the wishes of the people of the city, and the proposition to reduce the state convention to one hundred and sixty members. They were met by a large number of citizens who had assembled at the county court house to hear the proceedings. The convention was held in the city of London, and the proceedings were made public by the press. The convention was called to order by the chairman, and the question of reducing the state convention to one hundred and sixty members was discussed. The matter was referred to a committee, and the report was adopted by the convention.
