Youthful Propensities.—How few see there who give sufficient importance to a careful training and guardianship of youth!
How few really appreciate the responsibility that attaches to the cultivation of inquisitive and susceptible boys. The buoyancy of their nature, when unchecked, carries them headlong like the wild mountain tarrant. Now they gambol on the open lawn, skipping like the young unaged deer; by and by they make a demonstration on an approaching train of cars—they clamber over the platform, they run, they jump, they leap, they dash, they are heedless of the imminent danger they are creating, and although heedless of the thrashing and rebuffs of conductor and hands. They resist their parents, however, despite of all attempts to stop them—the train stops, and away they speed them again; perhaps next plunge into some dark recess, and as if they were instinctively, track out the haunts of "boys" grown old in crime, who seek the protection of darkness and secrecy to engage in their favorite pastime at the card table.
Boys unrestrained by parental authority or uncared for by any natural protector, find their way into the various haunts of vice, and get early training in acts of wickedness, that eventually either work their total ruin or unfit them for any position of usefulness in society. "As the twig is bent the tree's inclined." When a youth in boyhood becomes familiar with the practice of vice —when he can associate with its devotees, without experiencing any sense of shame, he is in a fair way of becoming a victim himself. Again, a boy who is permitted to loiter around the streets, growing up in idleness, with no feeling of self-dependence or rather with the impression that society is bound to support him at all events, will, when thrown on his own resources, not be very scrupulous as to the means he employs to gain a subsistence. Many a generous youth, gifted by nature with a noble mind, and first prompted to action by lofty aspirations, has been allowed to grope his way through life, stumbling and blundering along, till his native energies have become paralyzed, and he finally yields to what seems his unavoidable destiny, and adapts his habits to the deleterious influences that surround him.

HOW TO DRIVE BULL CARR AWAY

Visit the light, airy Crystal Palace (in miniature) viz: HEAD QUARTERS, any dark, gloomy day, and buy Goods where you get a sight at them for 25 per cent less than you ever heard of.

"Caught a Rapping."—The sudden advent of winter has caught not a few in a "rapping" the farmers with their corn not husked nor even husked, diverse others without wood or fodder, the priver of course included as especially destitute, his patrons not usually supplying his wants till all others have a superabundance. If it were not for the hope of that "good time coming," that buoy him up, he "would be of all men the most miserable."

Returned to the Practice of Law.— Mr. Henry Brown, formerly editor of the Covaris, has resumed the Practice of Law, and will be seen by a card in another column.
Mr. Brown is an agreeable and obliging gentleman, with whom to do business. We hope that he will find his present occupation both more lucrative and less embarrassing than that of an editor and publisher. We wish him all possible success.

Court of Common Pleas.—The Court of Common Pleas adjourned on Monday last.
There was considerable business disposed of, but none, we believe, of any great importance. This was the first term for Judge Whately in this county. We hear leading members of the bar, speak very highly of his department on the bench. There is no question but he far outstrips the former Democratic incumbent in the clearness and plaisance of his decisions, and in industry and careful research.

New Advertisements.—See card of Messrs. Galt & Brown, who have associated in the practice of Law also, advertisement of Dr. A. Langworthy, in reference to the Burning Fluid and Seller's Medicines; and Mr. J. L. Stubb's advertisement of Land Agency.

Arrested.—An individual named Swindler, was arrested in this place, on Wednesday last, charged with taking money from a drawer in Lamb's Grocery. After a hearing he was required to give bonds to the amount of $100, for his appearance at Court.
