VOL. 3, NO. 11

These are days of praise and thanksgiving, my beloved brethren, to God Almighty for the abundance of His heavenly gifts to us. We glorify God for His unbounded goodness in providing for our eternal salvation. We thank Him unceasingly for sending His own divine Son on Christmas day as Man among men. The Incarnation of the Son of God was but a prelude to His redemption of the human race. He came to raise us to the dignity of the children of God and heirs to His Kingdom.

Such, my dear brethren, is my fervent prayer and my holy greeting to you on this Feast Day of our Saviour's Birth. May you grow in the love of God and continue in your loyal spirit of serving Him in His Holy Church.

Bishop of Columbus
