FRIDAY, July 1, 1910

"If the people rule, why don't they get what they want?"—Senator Owen of Oklahoma.

Creditors of a defunct Owensboro, Ky., bank will get ten cents on the dollar. Another argument against guaranteed deposits.

Two cousins were hanged on one scaffold in Lancaster, Pa., the other day. Some families are always getting more than their share of whatever happens to be in sight.

Louis Blot, the fight promoter who was going to defy the whole state of California and pull off his little two-by-four bout in San Francisco has taken a sneak over into Nevada, where they don't interfere with personal liberty so much.

The veterans of the old Seventy-first Ohio had possession of Celina yesterday, and our people enjoyed their visit probably as much as they enjoyed getting together in annual reunion again. The vets will agree that that is putting it pretty strong. May they live long and come often. The latch-string will always be found on the outer wall.

The total eclipse of the sun advertised by some of our exchanges to appear on Friday, the 17th, did not materialize, as any one might have known by a little investigation. Newspapers can not create an eclipse.—Versailles Polity.

You don't know 'em, Bro. Martin.

The "back from Elba" business does not seem to fit the Roosevelt return. He happened to land on June 18, the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo. It is possible that he was contriving to play the part of a Blucher to Taft's Wellington? Have Napoleons Beveridge, Doolier, La Follette et al. thought of that dire contingency?—Portland Sun.

The Bryan or McLean Way, Which?

[Bryan's Commoner, June 24.]

Mr. John R. McLean has written for the Washington, D. C. Post a leading editorial. The editorial is printed in another column of this issue. Mr. McLean charges that Mr. Bryan is "very active this year in the work of destroying the chances of the democratic party." He says that "matters were looking very well in Ohio, a few weeks ago," but Mr. Bryan "started a division that threatens to nullify the efforts of broad minded democrats to hold the party and carry the state."

Now what has Mr. Bryan done to justify this outburst from Mr. McLean?

Bryan has simply suggested to the democratic leaders of Ohio that the democrats of that state in convention assembled, nominate a candidate for United States senator in order that the voters of Ohio may know, prior to election day, just what they may expect in the way of a senator in the event they choose a democratic legislature.

Why does such a suggestion as this threaten democratic unity in Ohio? Why does such a suggestion as this interfere with the plans of "broad minded democrats"? Why should such a suggestion adopted by Ohio democrats interfere with the effort to make Ohio democratic?

The one particular reason is that in the event the senatorial candidate is chosen by the convention, other men who would like to be senators would not give their efforts on election day to democratic victory and the party would lose the advantage of the combined efforts and influence of a large number of ambitious men.

On that point, it may be said that if there are any democratic aspirants for the senate in Ohio who would abandon their efforts toward democratic victory because they were not given an office, then the party would lose, and the state of Ohio would lose, more by the election of such a man to the senate than by outright defeat for the party at the polls.

The people of Ohio are not interested in democratic unity save as it may be the means of good government. When it comes to the election of a United States senator, the people of Ohio are interested in having an able, conscientious man; and under our form of government they have the right to know before they cast their ballots who the man will be in the event a democratic legislature is chosen.

To be sure the law at present does not expressly provide a method whereby the people may choose, but men of all parties are in favor of the popular election of senators, and so strong is the sentiment that that reform will soon be accomplished. In the meantime, it is particularly the duty of democrats to give to the people as nearly as possible a plan whereby they may pass upon senatorial candidates. This is true because democratic platforms, democratic editorials, democratic speeches, everywhere, are filled with declarations in favor of this new method of choosing senators. In Ohio the last State convention directed the state committee to include in its call, for the democratic state convention for this year, the nomination of a senatorial candidate. Acting, as we are told, under the advice of some distinguished Ohio democrats the state committee ignored this command from the state convention.

It is absurd of Mr. John R. McLean to say "that Mr. Bryan's plan is to ruin the party if it will not serve his interests," basing his charge upon the ground that Mr. Bryan urges the democrats of Ohio to take the people into their confidence on the senatorial question. Mr. Bryan is not concerned in the "growing popularity" of an individual. He has repeatedly said that he owes more to the democracy of America than he can ever hope to repay. He is not concerned in the building up or tearing down of any individual; he recognizes that the best method he may devise of trying to, in part, repay the great obligation he owes to American democrats is the dedication of his services to practical reform work.

The way to build up a democratic party that shall be strong is to make it deserving of the people's support. The way to win that success which will be worth having to deserve. In this day when the thoughts of men are centered upon practical methods for genuine relief to a patient and long suffering people proof of their sincerity else they could not in reason, expect to receive the public confidence.

Mr. Bryan had no candidate for the Ohio senatorship, nor for any other office. He asked the democrats of Ohio just as he did the democrats of Indiana, just as he intends to ask the democrats of other states, to nominate a strong and faithful man as the democratic candidate for senator—a man who believes that a platform is a solemn pledge and that the people rather than the special interests, are the masters of public servants.

There is a simple test whereby the character of conflicting political advice may be tested. Let all democrats consider this question in a plain matter-of-fact way.

Does it not stand to reason that at a time when the people are studying political questions and showing themselves critical of political parties, the best advice that may be given to a party that hopes to be of service to the people, is to deal with the people frankly, to take them into its confidence, to tell them exactly what it will do in the way of public measures, to show them exactly what it means in the way of candidates? Does it not stand to reason that between the McLean advice that the people be required to depend upon the whims of a legislature for the character of their senator, and the Bryan advice that the people be told in advance of election just who will be chosen senator in the event of democratic victory—does it not stand to reason that the frank and candid method is the better way from the purely practical standpoint in this year of 1910?

Let democrats everywhere deal frankly with the people and they will be given a victory worth having.

Load Too Much Even for the Elephant

The following communication, published in a recent issue of the Ohio State Journal, Republican, under the headline, "Too Much Load," reveals the spirit of discontent that pervades the ranks of conscientious Republican voters in Ohio to-day:

Editor Ohio State Journal:

It looks to me as if our old elephant is taking on a lot of extra weight for the fall races. God knows that Payne-fal Aldrich tariff bill was load enough even for a very large, healthy elephant. Then a dozen or more Cannon congressmen are hanging on to his ears and tail. Next, with that so-called primary mulligan they stuck that little Charley Dick on his rump. Then the administration threw Ballinger, white-wash and all, on his back, and last, but not least, they propose to load him down with George B. Cox and his "little Brown jug." Some of that junk must be unloaded, the more the better. I have voted the Republican ticket for 46 years, and that load of stuff is too heavy for me to help to carry at my age. GEORGE C. JENKINS, Washington, C. H., June 15.

Public Ownership of Railroads Near government ownership of railroads in five years is the prediction of an old time railroad chief. A Chicago dispatch carried by the United Press says: "E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe, predicted to-day in an interview with the United Press that within five years the United States government would own every line of railway within its domain. He believes that the measure for government control will be introduced in congress, at the initiative of the government, for the purchase of all the railway systems as an economic necessity. How much money will be required for the purchase, Ripley refuses even to estimate, but says that the present capitalization of the railway systems is not their total value. If the railroads are asked to name their price, Ripley says they will ask more in nearly every case than the capitalization at present.

"Within five years, certainly not more than ten years," said Ripley, "the United States government will own all the railroads within its borders. The rate regulation bill being considered at Washington is the step which presages this final result."

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, is another railroad chief who believes government ownership of railroads will soon be at hand.

Hasten the day.

Can They Look a Sheep in the Face?

Hard to explain. Farmers are getting one-third less for wool this year than they got last year. Taft, Aldrich and Joe Cannon said they would increase the tariff on wool so as to protect the wool grower. The new tariff bill is now in force. Even a republican wool grower feels like he had taken too many tariff physic pills. Wool is cheaper. Woolen goods are higher. The price of clothes is higher. How can even the republican politician explain this? How can Wille, Joey or Aldrich look a white sheep in the face? If a lot of shysters in Congress were dead there would not be many black sheep left in North America. Less for wool and more for clothes is what Congress did for the farmer. The voters of the nation ought to make the next Congress solidly Democratic. "The pennies of the many, make the millions of the few."—Putnam County Sentinel.

War Expenditures Still Eye-Sore of the Nation.

The congress which adjourned Saturday night was overwhelmingly Republican in both branches. It authorized the expenditure of more than a billion dollars. Only $100,000,000 of this covers permanent annual expenditures.

More than one-half of the total expenditure was for wars that have been or are to come. Over $50,000,000 was appropriated for river and harbor projects that were left incomplete, and must be finished by future appropriations. The finance record throughout was one of saving at the spigot and wasting at the bung-hole.

The Arizona and New Mexico statehood bill was passed by the aid of Democratic votes. The railroad regulation bill was passed by the aid of Democratic votes. The conservation, reclamation, mine bureau, white slave and campaign publicity bills were passed by the aid of Democratic votes.

The iniquitous tariff bill, that levies an oppressive tax on every consumer in the United States and is a flagrant violation of Republican platform promises, was passed by Republican organization votes exclusively.

A new congress will be elected the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.—Columbus News, June 27.

MINIATURE ARMADA TO BE EXHIBITED

Models of All Types of Warships at Ohio Valley Exposition.

Cincinnati, O.—(Special).—What probably will be the most extensive miniature armada ever assembled outside of the Navy Department at Washington, will be shown at the Ohio Valley Exposition, to be held at Cincinnati Aug. 29 to Sept. 24. By arrangement with the United States Navy Department, the most comprehensive display of models of naval vessels ever shown at an exposition will be brought to Cincinnati. The list includes models of practically every type of war vessel now in commission in the navy, as well as several that have made history in the past, to say nothing of a display of the ammunition used in the various sizes of guns aboard the modern vessels. The "boxed navy" which will be shown at the Exposition includes models of the following vessels: Battleship "Maine"; the old "Maine," blown up in Havana harbor; the torpedo boat "Shubrick"; torpedo-boat destroyer "Decatur"; battleship "Virginia"; submarine boat "Holland"; battleship "South Carolina"; floating drydock "Dewey"; cruiser "Birmingham"; battleship "Tennessee"; reproduction by model of the review of

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said: 'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful, comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was small and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost.'"

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now—she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dining table so tired out that you can't eat. Just light a New Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. But the room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no draft in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

It has a Cabinet Top with a shelf for keeping plates and food hot. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

the United States Atlantic fleet by the President in Long Island Sound, Sept. 3, 1906, together with many photographs and paintings of famous vessels of the past, and other historical relics in the possession of the Navy Department. It is expected that this exhibition will be one of the most interesting of the entire government display, which, in its entirety, will be the most complete ever assembled.

POWER BOAT OF CONCRETE NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED

Cincinnati, O.—(Special).—What probably will be the first boat built of concrete navigating by its own power will soon be constructed in this city for use on the Miami and Erie canal during the Ohio Valley Exposition, which opens Aug. 29 and closes Sept. 24. This boat will be built on plans devised on information received from the United States War Department in regard to the construction of barges of concrete for use on the Panama canal work. It has been found that barges of this kind can be constructed more economically than wooden barges, and that they are just as easily handled as ordinary barges, with the advantage that they can be more readily cleaned of sea parasites than wooden barges. The method of construction is similar to that employed in erecting concrete buildings, in that the concrete is spread over wire framework, making a perfectly rigid and waterproof surface throughout.

It is planned to utilize this boat to tow pleasure barges, also constructed of concrete, on the canal during the Exposition, the barges to be brilliantly illuminated and each supplied with musicians, a sort of continuous water carnival being thus inaugurated, the beauty of which will be augmented by the canal and brilliant illumination.

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT
STATE OF NEW YORK) ss. Rochester, N. Y.
County of Monroe)
Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a school girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair, that was so plentiful, rich and glossy, that it was the envy of many of my young schoolmates, and attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. After I was married and as I grew older, my hair commenced to come out just a little at first, but gradually as time passed it came out more and more, and began to turn gray. I was induced by many good reports heard of Sage and Sulphur, to try a bottle. My hair was quite gray and thin on top when I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and you may imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, becoming thicker, darker, smoother and glossier than it had been for a long time. I continued the use of Sage and Sulphur and my hair is now in a splendid condition, as heavy and as dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. From my experience I believe it is one's own fault if they lose their hair, or let it get gray or harsh. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and still use it, and my hair still keeps thick, dark, smooth and glossy.
