A boost for Tulsa is a boost for your business.

Tulsa is the busiest city in the state—and of course the best one.

Lest we forget, what about the playground for the colored children of Tulsa?

Tulsa affords splendid business chances for wide-awake colored business men in almost any line. Come and look the field over and be convinced.

Among those who subscribed for the Tulsa Star this week appeared the name of Hon. F. M. Wooden, Mayor of Tulsa. The Mayor believes in helping and boosting the town. Do you?

The editor of The Tulsa Star is of the opinion that a weekly or monthly meeting of the business men of the city for a mutual interchange of business ideas would be a great benefit to all of us.

A new high school building for the Colored people of Tulsa now seems to be a real possibility. The city board of Education will control the Colored Schools another year and under their progressive system our children will have just as good an opportunity as other children.

Do you know that every word printed in this paper is printed at a cost? Well, it is a fact, and the longer the article you want us to print free the more cost it is to us. You are very liberal, of course, in saying nice things about us, but we cannot pay our help or buy stock with nice talk. It takes cash. Please remember this when you are asking us to do work for you gratis.

Have you stopped to think that a newspaper usually reflects the standing of the people of the community where it is published? Do you know that a newspaper is usually what the people of a town make it? Sometimes people excuse their lack of support to their local paper by saying, "O, there's nothing to it." What if every body in a town should withhold support from their newspaper on such flimsy excuse? The result would be that the town would soon be without a paper and the outside world would soon forget the town.

The Tulsa World and the Daily Democrat could not exist without the support of the people of this town and the town would not be what it is, and could not long retain the commercial rating it now has, without the influence of these papers. The people make the papers and the papers make the town. The best way to get at the proper standing of a people of any community is to read the paper published there.

The Tulsa Star is your representative and if it is not all that you would have it be it is your duty to help make it so and not to stand back and criticize it.

Another thing we want you to bear in mind: When you subscribe for this paper or bring us your printing, you are helping to create jobs for your children or for some colored boy or girl who cannot possibly get work at the white newspaper or job printing office.

The Tulsa Star is here and its yours. It is doing you as much good as it is any one else in that it is working for the common good of the community. Now, what have you done to help out in the work?

Dr. Morgan Plays Samaritan

Treat free Colored woman who was unable to pay.

Dr. J. H. Morgan, eye, ear and throat specialist on South Main street in this city is entitled to all the good things possible to be said about him for a good samaritan. He has proved himself to be. Recently Mrs. Edith Mitchell, a colored woman, who lives on Easton between Greenwood and Frankfort, called on Dr. Morgan, suffering with a severe pain in her head. After a consultation with the specialist she learned that it was necessary to undergo treatment and asked the doctor what it would cost. He told her, but she had no money with which to pay for a treatment. Mrs. Mitchell is a widow with five children, the oldest a girl of 13, and she alone is the sole support of the family. When Dr. Morgan learned this he told her that he would treat her without charges and he is still treating her just as earnestly as if he was getting full pay for it. We have never met Dr. Morgan, but we know he is a MAN.

OKMULGEE DOTS

Okmulgee is enjoying some beautiful weather now, and the little folks are more than glad that vacation time is here.

Miss Johnson the representative of the Crisis, and advocate of the National associations for the advancement of colored people, is now in Okmulgee giving a series of lectures, which are logical and instructive she makes her meanings clear and almost illiterate man and woman is interested in this great association as well as the Crisis.

Misses Hallie Ford, Jessie Woodson, Lillian Crisman, and Joana Harris all teachers of the Dunbar High School have left the city for their several homes to enjoy a delightful vacation.

Misses N. Ledinger, and E. E. Shorter two of Dunbar High School Teachers of Okmulgee will visit the National Sunday School Congress, at Muskogee before entering into their vacation.

The Joint Normal of Creek and Okmulgee Counties will begin here Monday quite an attendance is expected.

The closing exercises to the Dunbar High School indeed the greatest on the history of the school for one whole week the citizens of Okmulgee were busy attending the different exercises at the Auditorium the musical given by Miss Ford's plain class was indeed fine, the young folks showed that they had been given careful training not only for this occasion but during the entire time that they have been studying music quite a few white people were out their applause showed that they enjoyed the numbers.

On Wednesday night the young class under the auspices of the W. C. T. U conducted by Madame Preston, competed with each other for the gold medal each of these children wearing silver medals, and this content Wednesday evening was to determine who among them should wear a gold medal it was interesting from start to finish, the declamations were all temperance selections, and beautifully rendered, but the prize was captured by Rosin Carr, a girl of Mrs. J. H. Noal.

On Friday night the Graduating Exercises proper were rendered, the Dunbar High School Chorus, one of the best in the state disposed good music and Prof. E. H. Hall of Hennessey delivered the annual address, strange to say the class of 1913 is composed of only one person Christal Alexander Parks, a promising young man who goes out from school with all the best wishes of his many friends.

LOCALS

By E. G. Griffine and Char. Williams, Solo by the Juveniles a good paper was presented.

Let every pastor in the city join in the fight for the protection of our homes, wives and children. Eliminate the rotten conditions existing on Archer and Cincinnati. A respectable woman cannot pass along the street without running a great risk of being grossly insulted. The ladies of this city should circulate a petition to be presented to the Mayor asking for relief.
