

Business as Usual: Are the Sure Result if It's Looking There

The cooperative need of harmony in home surroundings as well as in business life is being felt by thinking men every day. It is impossible to do our best work in an atmosphere of confusion, and it is almost invariable that the business man who is to be successful is the man who is to be a success in the family circle. We allow ourselves to be drawn to to confusions that do not spell harmony. Our home is our castle and no man should be allowed to enter there, that makes us unhappy.

If one is obliged to raise a stranger into the home on account of financial consideration, it is well to make sure that they are not antagonistic in any way that will affect the family relations, otherwise it is better to give up the extra profit and do with less if it means peace of mind. There is no price too great to pay for harmony for it means health, happiness, financial success to you and yours. The ability to help others and to temper the gaining and losing, the mental peace which is the peace of understanding. Some of us have to be patient with many other people, we realize the need of our own peace of mind, but those who have already felt a measure of it will realize that those who get the reputation of "peace" will get the reputation of "peace" in a very special way.

Expensive Slip.
A well-dressed man was hurrying along the boulevard in Paris when he tripped and falling forward dashed his head through the window of a wine shop. The proprietor rushed out to claim the price of his window and a large crowd gathered to see the fair play. The man who had broken the window protested that he had no money. "Search him!" shouted some one in the crowd. There were no policemen about, so the wine shop keeper and a few friends took the law into their own hands. They searched the man's pockets and found a $20 note. The man advised the wine shop keeper to pay himself well for his broken window. He took $2 to pay for the search and the unpopular man who had broken it went away with a cent and $18 change. The man was a forger.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A $50,000 painting of the late Emperor Menelik II of Abyssinia is among the unique exhibitions to be shown at the National Emancipation Exposition begun in this city today as semi-centennial commemoration of Abraham Lincoln's proclamation freeing the slaves. Work of negroes from all parts of the globe are on view.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A LIBERTY MARTYR OF LONG AGO

By A. W. MACY.
On June 7, 1581, Wat Tyler was chosen leader by 50,000 men to re-conquer with Richard II, against the oppressions of the people. On June 15 he was dead. In eight days this man, of whose antecedents and personality we know nothing, made for himself a permanent place in English history. During that time he commanded a great army; he confronted the king as an equal; he ordered the execution of the two chief ministers of the crown, and it was done; he wrested from the king a promise of social reform. But in the hour of victory he was struck down by the hand of an enemy, and the great uprising fell in its undertaking. Yet it was not altogether in vain. It stirred to life the desire for personal liberty in the laboring people, a desire that has grown to giant proportions with the passing years. This was the first time that English peasants and laborers asserted that they were men. Centuries afterward some of the seed thus sown found its way across the sea, and today 90,000,000 free Americans owe a debt of gratitude to the memory of Wat Tyler and his men.

Success is not always
"Keep up the struggle till all your might"
The only way to get out of trouble
You must fight.
Don't use the "Keep a waitin'
Don't use in hesitation
Till death has overtaken—
Ain't dat right?

If opportunity ever comes near you
Take a hold.
Do you has no friend to cheer you
You be bold.
If trials come don't get scared,
Don't tomorrow's work dread.
Fizzer how to get ahead—
Never woid.
