Four Persons Shot in Race Trouble in Virginia Town.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The probable death list in the night's fighting later was increased to four by the death of a second city detective who succumbed to wounds received earlier in the evening in the fight which resulted in the instant death of his fellow detective, Harry Wilson, the first detective killed.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—At midnight tonight the known casualty list in Washington's race war totaled 10, including two deaths and two men probably dying, while unconfirmed reports place the number at a much greater figure.

The fighting at midnight had resulted in the deaths of four persons, and police reports place the number at ten for several minutes, but finally was shot down.

Many clashes occurred between whites and blacks on street cars. One negro attacked on the back end of a car fired into the crowd following the car and wounded four persons, but finally was stopped by a city detective, who was reported to have sent seven bullets into the negro's body.

PERMIT STORAGE OF HOME LIQUOR

House Votes Down Amendment to Make Personal Use and Supply Unlawful.

DRASTIC MEASURE ADOPTED

Lower House Puts Enforcement Measure After Defeating Provisions.

WILD SCENE IS ENACTED

Floor at Times Resembles Stock Exchange Session; Many Want to Talk.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The prohibition amendment bill, drastic provisions and all, was adopted today, section by section, by the house, but a man's rights to store liquor in his home stood up against all attacks. On the final count, only three votes were needed in favor of an amendment to make home possession of intoxicants unlawful.

After all perfecting amendments had been adopted and others designed to make the bill less severe were bowed over in a chorus of "noes," an attempt was made to adjourn over night. This prevailed, but there was a demand for a roll call and the prohibition forces, summoned from all sides by their leaders, piled into the chamber in sufficient numbers to keep the house in session tonight for the tedious roll call vote on half a dozen amendments to the bill which had to be passed on before a vote was taken on the bill as a whole.

Like Stock Exchange. When the house reached section 35 of the bill, dealing with enforcement of constitutional prohibition, which contained the provision that it was not unlawful to store liquor at home for personal use, the scene was not unlike that on a stock market on a high sales day.

Every body wanted to speak or offer an amendment, rally a score clamoring for recognition. The time for reporting possession of intoxicants, in one Mr. Volstead offered, and which the house accepted, the time specified in the prohibition law for the state department as to the effective date of constitutional prohibition—January 18, 1920—was accepted without discussion.

Representative Rubeley, democrat of Missouri, got the floor after Chairman Volstead was through with the section, and immediately he announced intention to throw the searchlight on American wine cellars reported to be swarming with liquor in enough to last for generations. His amendment provided that a person should not possess more than 500 worth of liquor, which a member of the house said was "one white chip in a barrel."

Chairman Volstead said that he had opposed it, saying the section had been given very serious consideration by friends of prohibition. When his vote was called, on 123 yeas, 215 nays, and all of them democrats, supported by the amendment Mr. Rubeley and Representative Johnson of Texas, and Upham of Georgia, the latter an evangelist.

This section was amended, however, so as to provide that such liquor must be for personal consumption by the owner of the dwelling or his family or bona fide guests. This restriction, put in by Representative Steel, democrat of Pennsylvania, was aimed at the man who might turn his dwelling into a saloon.

Several amendments were added, these including one by Representative Igou, democrat, Missouri, making provision for the handling of sacramental wine which the bill had failed to do.

An amendment by Mr. Igou which would make valid the defense of a person charged with violation of the prohibition law if he proved that such liquor or beverage was not intoxicating was defeated 78 to 36.

The one speech which was the beginning of a debate which was listened to by the entire house, was by Representative Mann, former republican floor leader, who opposed the elimination of the provision permitting a person to have liquor in his possession for private use.

"By preventing the manufacture, transportation and sale of intoxicating liquors," Mr. Mann said, "we are enforcing the amendment and it should be but when we say what a man should do with a bottle of beer in his home we are going too far."

Mr. Mann provoked great applause by declaring that while the government went a long way during the war in sending its agents into private homes, the country wanted no more of that sort of a war as the subject of such invasion.

Former Governor Dorr. PHOENIX, Ariz., July 21.—James Dorr, former republican floor leader, and a pioneer in western railroads and other enterprises, died here today, aged 68 years.

PREMIER DEFENDS PLANS FOR TRIAL

Lloyd George Replies to Critics in House of Commons and Says Just Hearing Is Assured Emperor.

London, July 21.—Premier Lloyd George replied to his critics in the house of commons on the second reading of the German peace treaty and the Anglo-French convention. His recent announcements that the former German emperor would be tried before a tribunal in London, had created much discussion and several members, including Lord Robert Cecil, expressed doubts as to the advisability of the trial being held in London. The selection of a neutral country for this purpose, it has been contended, would have been better.

The premier, in answer to this, said:
