

BELGIUM NURSES HER FARM CROPS LIKE HER BABES

Farms Average Thirty-seven Bushels of Wheat to Every Acre

A GREAT CARD GAME

One American Won Sixty Million Roubles, but His Earnings Were Really $10

A FARM FOR BLANK PAPER

Farmer Chose Fifty Sheets Instead of 50 Million Polish Marks; Deal Fell Short

CARPENTER'S WORLD TRAVELS... BRUSSELS, Belgium.—The boat had left the Tatar city of Kazan, and was steaming slowly towards Samara on the way to the Caspian sea.

At a table in Paris the other night an American gave a dinner with a million-rouble note at each plate as a place card, writing the name of the guest on its face.

Whisky Bottles as Savings Banks... This enormous amount of whisky is not only in Russia but also in many other European countries, is trying to find its way to the peasants.

A Farm for Blank Paper... I hear similar stories as to the antics of the peasants in Poland and others of the mushroom republics.

Surprises Even the Lunatics... My last story is from Austria where, for several years, the krona has been "on the toboggan."

A Shock of Wheat in Little Belgium

The small farms of Belgium lead the world in wheat, producing 37 bushels to the acre, as against the average of 15 bushels in the United States. My chauffeur, 5 feet 3 inches tall, shows the size of the grain stacks here that look like hills.

Never seen more beautiful views than those we are now passing through. A Land of Small Farms. One of the surprising features of one's travel through Belgium is the multitude of small farms and also the intensive cultivation.

How Flax is Harvested... But to return to the crops through which we are passing, here and there we see a wheat stack. It is beautifully shaped and the top is so made that it looks almost like that of a haystack.
