

MARY'S WICKED RAM.

Mary's Mary had a hard-browed ram as black as any crow, and every where Mary went the ram was sure to be with her to Zion church one Sabbath day, and Mary thought it would behave in a religious way. She wisely counseled it en route and begged to be good and rammy shook his whiskerettes as if to say he would (not). A deacon met them at the door and said 'would be a sin, to see a wicked beast at church, but rammy butted in! The deacon got a plexus punch that stretched him on the floor, and the subsequent proceedings interested him no more. The congregation rubbernecked with widely staring eyes, the superstitious thinking 'twas the devil in disguise. A sister from her seat arose—she fain would hence depart—but got a chug behind her back than almost broke her heart. "I will expel the sinful brute," cried Brother Pettifrew, but in his midst the rammy's brow was buried p. d. A choir man threw a prayer stool to crush the warlike ram, and landed with vigor on poor Mary's diaphragm. The preacher said that kindness could subdue wild beasts and birds and moved toward the waiting pet with soft, endearing words. Then came a dull and sickening thud! The pastor, where was he? Go ask the sister in whose lap he lit ungracefully. Then sent they for the butcher man who slew the aged ram and fixed his meat with chemicals and sold it for spring lamb. —James Barton Adams.
