accepted without qualifications. This is the language of the clause to which the Allied Governments unanimously pledged themselves:

A general association of nations must be formed under specific covenants for the purpose of affording mutual guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small nations alike.

It will be seen therefore that the real question as to whether or not there shall be a league of nations has been decided and it is part of the terms by which we required the Germans to lay down their arms and surrender their ships. The question of details only remains to be worked out and this task though one of difficulty and intricacy will no doubt be accomplished in due time.

THE NATION DRY

If sufficient states have not already ratified the federal prohibition amendment they will do so, with a big margin to spare within a few hours or a few days. The death knell for John Barleycorn is sounded. The law will go into effect one year from the date of ratification but may in reality become effective next July under the war time prohibition provision.

We are going to have a dry nation and it is going to stay dry. The law will be enforced because public sentiment is back of the law and because federal and state governments will cooperate in prosecuting those who attempt violations.

The Roosevelt estate of $500,000 is said to be the largest fortune ever left by an ex-president at his death. None of our president's have made any money out of their positions but the job seems in fair demand nevertheless.

A German commission has determined that the ex-kaiser should be brought to trial; the peace conference may decide that there are other gentlemen aside from the kaiser who may need the same.

Some critics have been complaining that the work of demobilization in America has been conducted too slowly; but in view of the danger of having two or three million unemployed men in the country it is pertinent to ask if this is not a case where we should make speed slowly. One reason certain railroad executives object to McAdoo's railroad plan is that the government pays no inflated salaries to such men as they.

Marston and Roosevelt, leaves for Chicago in a few days to buy goods for the Boston Store.

J. H. Dickson has resigned as secretary of the Oregon Building and Loan Association and has been succeeded by C. W. Brownfield.

For More Forest Roads. SALEM, Jan. 16.—Addressing the senate by special invitation E. J. Adams, a former member of the state highway commission, urged the legislature to take steps to induce congress to appropriate to Oregon a larger fund for building roads in forest reserves.

Oregon's allotment under present national laws is approximately $257,000 a year, and if consideration were given to the immense area of the state which is confined in forest reserves, and which is subject to taxation, the allotment should be not less than $1,000,000.

the speaker said. Mr. Adams urged that the legislature make an appropriation to send two representatives of the state to Washington to lobby for a larger allotment, and suggested this appropriation should be sufficient to keep the men there for at least two years. He also urged that men be sent to California, Washington, Idaho and Utah to enlist the cooperation of those states in presenting claims for more funds for forest road construction.

The Owyhee Project. SALEM, Jan. 16.—Under a suspension of rules, moved by Gallagher, the house passed the senate joint memorial No. 2, introduced by Senator Hurley, memorializing congress and the Oregon delegation to pass the appropriation for the Owyhee irrigation project in Malheur county.

To Watch Flu. SALEM, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Dedman, Merryman and Moore were appointed by Speaker Jones as the house members of the joint committee to look after the flu situation during the legislature. Major A. C. Seeley and his assistants spent the day at the capitol, and many members were inoculated.

THE FUNNY BONE A soldier home from the front was relating anecdotes in an admiring audience in the railway carriage. "I remember one boche sergeant," he said, "who told me—after he had been taken prisoner of course—that he had 100 eggs given him, and was ordered to distribute them among a company of 100 men, but somehow or other, one of the eggs got broken. The boche was troubled at first as to how he was going to share out 99 eggs among a hundred men, but he had a real Prussian inspiration. "Yes, And what did he do?" demanded one of his hearers. Tommy heaved his pack higher on his back and opened the carriage door. "Killed one of the soldiers!" he called over his shoulder.

Ben Larrabee, the new secretary of Tussock Lodge in St. Louis, has an office in the building for the Railway Express Building and the other day he hired an office boy. A man in the office who was suffering from an ulcerated tooth sent the youngster out for $2 worth of stamps. The boy was gone for ages, and of course, everybody assumed the boy had decamped with the $2.

Along about noon the new boy burst into Larrabee's office and looked around in wild fright. Then suddenly he saw the man with the swollen jaw and cried: "Oh, there you are. Gee I had a hard time finding the place. I went out with $2 to get the stamps and I never looked at the name on the door so when I came back I began at the top floor and went into every office on every floor—looking for the guy with the bum jaw."

One night an Irishman and an Englishman met in a lodging house, so they had a chat together before they went to bed. When the Englishman woke in the morning he said to himself he would have a joke with Pat. "Good morning, Pat," said he. "I dreamed last night you were turned into a dog."

"I see," said Pat. "Well, then I was dreaming last night you were after turning into a sausage. I was just getting the pan greased to fry you."

SELF SCRUTINY

I wish that I could take my eyes And turn them square around, And look about inside o' me, To see what might be found.
 I know a lot of folks, as well As books upon my shelf, But sometimes, sorry truth to tell, I'm stranger to myself.
 And I would really like to see Past all veneer and sham, What curious things inside o' me Have made me what I am.
 I have no great ambition high To posture as a saint, But many a time I've wished that I Might be some things I ain't.

IN THE ARMISTICE TERMS

THE question of a league of nations was virtually decided at Versailles when the armistice terms were dictated by the allied powers. This is shown by the fact the allies at that time issued a declaration of policy, the following being a part thereof:
 The Allied Governments have given careful consideration to the correspondence which has passed between the President of the United States and the German Government. Subject to the qualifications which follow, they declare their willingness to make peace with the Government of Germany on the terms of peace laid down in the President's address to Congress of January, 1918, and the principles of settlement enunciated in his subsequent addresses.
 The provision for a League of Nations which was the fourteenth point in the President's address of Jan. 8, 1918, was Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and stomach-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.
 Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.
 Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, other who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, headache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.
 Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate cleanses the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.
