Hood River Glacier.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 6, 1903.

No time in the history of the Oregon state fair has there been such a good feeling among the agricultural classes toward the success of the fair as exists at the present time. Every section of the state seems to be taking an interest in the fair and promises to give it their hearty support. Eastern Oregon for the first time has promised one or two county exhibits, consisting of agricultural products, while the southern portion of the state will also be represented by a comprehensive exhibit of its agricultural products. Live stock from all over the state is being prepared for this year's fair. In order to encourage exhibitors and attendance at the state fair, the Southern Pacific company will transport all exhibits, including live stock to and from the Oregon state fair free of charge. Exhibitors should ship direct to the fair grounds, where they will find ample facilities for unloading all exhibits.

County Judge George C. Blakeley and Commissioner Harriman turned down cold and hard the petition of the Hood River people to have the Indian creek bridge raised ten feet above its present height and set straight with the section line. The county judge declares it is an unnecessary expense. Although he visited the point himself, he doesn't think traffic demands the removal of the steep grade to the south approach. Put on a straight line, Mr. Blakeley thinks it might look prettier, but that's all. Commissioner Hibbard would like to grant the petition to put the bridge where it properly belongs. But the others won't have it that way, and there the matter stands. Hood River had a chance once to elect a county judge, but it didn't.

Bring in the name of your country home. A revised list will be printed in next week's Glacier. When the name of the farm and that of the owner appears above the gate of every Hood River farm, visitors to the valley may be directed about as easily as in a city. Then it would be a splendid idea to have the names of the roads marked at each crossing. With telephones and electric lights scattered over the valley, and a daily mail service to each house what more conveniences of the city can Hood River people ask for, unless it be an electric car line!

Strange to say, notwithstanding the Heppner disaster, the volume of business here for the month of July just closed has been greater than the corresponding month of last year. Heppner is the logical business point of Morrow county and will continue to be one of the best towns in the Northwest.—Heppner Gazette.

Commissioner Hibbard says he can't recall a single instance where the eastern part of Wasco county raised money by popular subscription to assist the county in road construction- Hood River people have lots of money, you know, and can afford to build their own roads and Indian creek bridges.

The matter of a road to the boat landing is now being looked into by the city council in conjunction with the Commercial club. The Glacier earnestly hopes this much needed piece of work can be accomplished, and with the 5th largest river in the world at our door, that proper river transportation facilities will be given Hood River.

The total absence of smoke this summer speaks well for the work of Forest Supervisor M. P. Isenberg and his efficient assistants. No better proof could be offered in substantiation of arguments that the forest reserve policy and patrol system of the interior department is a good thing.

If Indian creek bridge is replaced where it stands now, it would be years before the county could be persuaded to put another one where it should be—12 feet higher and straight with the road.

The fact that the railroad companies are attempting to prevent the building of the Celilo portage is the best kind of argument that an open river would mean money for the Inland farmers.

Fire wiped out the entire business section of the little town of Halsey in Linn county last Thursday. Will it be Hood River's turn next?,

Is Nephew of John H. Gerdes.

The following honorable mention of John Gerdes is copied from the New York World. Mr. Gerdes is a nephew of John H. Gerdes of Hood River.

John Gerdes, who has lately won a state business certificate, is a Brooklyn boy of uncommon brightness. The certificate was given at the close of a business course and regents' examination taken at a Brooklyn school.

The state business certificate is an honor only lately established, and is given to those students who pass at a remarkably high percentage in business subjects. Gerdes has won the first of these certificates given out in Greater New York. Only one other has been granted as yet, and that was won by a student in an Albany business college.

Young Gerdes was graduated at a Brooklyn public school, and afterward took a course of two years in the amannensis department of Heffley school, studying the stenography, business English and typewriting demanded by the regents' examination. His percentages have been excellent.

The Puyallup valley expects to compete with Hood River for a reputation in raising berries, says the Pacific Farmer. The probabilities are that it will in a few years raise and ship many times the amount, but it is a different kind of a berry altogether. Hood River has builded her reputation on strawberries, while Puyallup is building on raspberries and blackberries. The way this reputation is growing can be gained from the following figures: In 1901 there were shipped 15,000 crates; in 1902 it increased to 20,000, while it is expected the output will reach 60,000 this year, the greater part of which will be shipped East. As the production exceeds the demands for fresh fruit, factories for canning and making jellies and jams will be established, so there are probably some large berry production figures in store for us before many years from that place.

Written for the Glacier.

To Mount Hood.

A pilgrim, footsore, through the West,
Upon thy hills I climbed to rest,
And wept.

When shadows through the pines dropp'd down,
And clouds caress'd thy crystal crown,
Upon thy banks, with brakes o'er strown,
I slept.

When mountain sides their mattins sung,
And mists along thy valleys hung,
'Til prime,
I wandered forth by fancy led
To view the clouds unerown thy head
And o'er thy form a mantle spread sublime.

When sunlight blends thy sparkling glance,
And ariel lights around thee dance
By day,
As "pigmy" bove thy fir-lined rills,
One humble thought my spirit fills
And names thee Empress of the Hills,
For aye.

While musing on thy lavish store—
The wealth that from thy sides outpour
For man,
I bow before thee, noble dame,
Whose lavish hand is known to fame,
Let him refuse to bless thy name
Who can.

O, mother of a thousand streams,
Whose sparkling liquid nectar beams
With health,
Who deck the vales while hastening through
With garlands bright of richest hue,
And proudly 'long their banks o'erstrew
Great wealth.

* * * * * * *

Enraptured by thy regal grace,
Beneath the shelter of thy face,
Among thy pine-clad domes I stood,
And gave thee homage—proud Mt. Hood.

For ages reigned thee on thy throne,
And time to come will be thine own;
But while I walk thy hills upon,
To me thou'rt Queen of Oregon.

Grapengeter, contestee, in which it is alleged that claimant has never constructed a house upon the tract, has never resided upon or cultivated the same; that the abandonment has existed for the six months last past, and that said alleged absence from the land was not due to his employment in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States as a private soldier, officer, seaman or marine, during the war with Spain, or during any other war in which the United States may be engaged. Said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegations at 10 o'clock a.m. on August 15, 1903, before the Register and Receiver of The Dalles Land office, The Dalles, Or.
