 Dr. Hatfield tells us he was called to attend a patient at Spitzenberg one night last week, and as the last logging train had gone he was doomed to stay all night. In the morning he got up early, ate breakfast and called on his patient, and was about to start for the train when he heard the train whistle and he was about one-fourth mile from the depot. The end of the story is that he walked home through crusted snow and for days he could not tell which bone or joint hurt the worst.
 From an account in a Portland paper we learn of the death of Mrs. Charlie Davis, on Monday. Mrs. Davis was the widow of D. T. Davis, who was accidentally killed at Scappoose by being thrown and dragged by a horse while after cattle to butcher for our market, of which he was proprietor. Grief over his death was partially the cause of her death. Friends here extend sympathy to the son, who is a young man yet in school.
 Dr. Hatfield became quite confidential and told us that he had opened up his purse strings and bought something. Yes he did. He says his eastern friends had long ago urged him to buy a typewriter in order to save their eyesight, which was becoming dim from the strain in trying to decipher his letters. Then he says his friends here began to insist upon his purchasing a typewriter. He put it off as long as possible and one day last week he was in Portland and saw a bargain counter. Yes he did, and his wife was not along, and he has no one to blame it on, but he just looked at that machine and it looked so good and shone so bright and the price—(Oh! we forget; we wasn't to tell)—but he bought it—at a bargain.

 On last Thursday evening Mrs. Jim Evereale began to feel indisposed; on Friday she was worse, but not considered serious. By Saturday she became much worse. On Sunday morning she was taken to Portland and underwent a severe operation. No hopes were entertained for her recovery. On Tuesday she passed away, thus being relieved from the terrible agony she had suffered. Her four little children are all sick in bed, being cared for by friends. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the husband. Obituary will appear next week.
 One of the largest social events ever held in Scappoose was the shower given in honor of Miss Hazel M. Watts on the last Saturday in February. The hostesses were the Mesdames James Pomeroy, D. Crowley and Russel Niblock, who received the guests at the home of Miss Watts. The guests, over twenty-five in number, presented Miss Watts with a beautiful array of gifts, including the finest of hand-made linens, also cut glass, china and many other useful and handsome articles. Clever verses accompanied each article showing the originality of the giver as well as conveying the friendship and hearty best wishes for the recipient. A program consisting of vocal solos by Mrs. Ida Burns, of Portland, and Miss Helen Watts; readings by Mrs. Washburn and Miss Crow; a trio by the Misses Johnston, Hagey and Helen Watts, and piano solos by Miss Hazel Watts, was rendered at intervals during the afternoon. After the opening of the gifts a most delicious lunch was served by the hostesses. Besides a large number of friends and relatives from Scappoose who were present there was a number of friends from neighboring towns: Mrs. Day, Mrs. Dillard, Mrs. Deming, Mrs. Charles Blakesley, Mrs. Jacob George, Mrs. Ray Morton, Mrs. Rutherford, Mrs. C. Johns and Mrs. Isbister, from St. Helens; Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Roy Price, Mrs. I. Burns, from Portland; Mrs. Trow and Mrs. Clark, from Rainier, and Miss Ruth Duncan, from The Dalles. Miss Watts will soon be married to Rev. Vernon W. Cooke, pastor of the First Congregational church of Wilamantic, Conn. Mr. Cooke was pastor of the Congregational church of Scappoose while attending Portland Academy. He is a graduate of P. A. Whitman and Yale Colleges. Miss Watts is a graduate of P. A. and Wellesley College of Wellesley, Mass. She is also an accomplished musician. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Watts, prominent citizens of Scappoose, Oregon. Guests, including men friends, throughout the evening, among the number being Dr. Edwin Ross of St. Helens, an old friend of the family, who came to extend to Miss Hazel his best wishes.
