ROBERT N. STANFIELD

Portland on equal basis with Chicago and eastern ports. 4. To a nation-wide prohibition and to all measures which shall make it practicable and operative and not theoretical.

- 5. To permanently establish equal suffrage in both state and nation. 6. To establishment by the federal government of a naval base at the mouth of the Columbia river. 7. To effective rural credit legislation and administration with a particular view to its adaptability to the needs of Oregon. 8. To construction by the federal government of a military highway along the Pacific coast, and federal aid in the construction of permanent highways. 9. To see that Oregon participates, all things being equal, in national trade, commerce and industry, and that our state is given recognition in the federal expenditures made necessary by the war. 10. To legislation which shall bring to a settlement the public lands question, and the greater development of Oregon's natural resources, including the development of water power, reclamation of arid, swamp and logged-off lands. 11. To the organization and mobilization of all industrial forces, with a just and proper consideration of the rights of labor, which shall guarantee...
