Threshing of grain thus far has proven an average much above the general. A large amount of wheat has been harvested. Oats are good but vegetable crops are light. FARM NOTES

Station Work Approved.
Dr. E. R. Flint, representing the federal experiment station, has just completed an inspection of the work, records and finances of the O. A. C. station and pronounced things very satisfactory. Some of the trials now under way are especially commended because of their importance and value to Oregon farmers.

Potatoes Don't "Run Out."
Disease and not run out seed stock is at the root of the little potato problem in Oregon. These diseases may be carried in the seed, in the ground or by insects. Leaf curl and mosaic, both of which prevent the plant foods ordinarily manufactured in the leaf from reaching the tuber, are the worst forms of the trouble. Sprinkle sprout, though not a parasitic disease, likewise causes immense losses in yield. All these are more or less preventible. The agricultural college experiment station will soon undertake an exhaustive study of these ailments and their control under the direction of H. P. Barsa, plant pathologist.

Testing Increases Milk Yield.

An average gain of 3 1/4 pounds of butter fat per cow was made by 3000 Oregon cows in May last over their record in May, 1918. The cows gained 35 pounds in milk yield. The value of this gain was about $2 per cow, a $5000 gain. It was obtained by weeding out the loafers and feeding the workers a better ration. The gain will continue with intelligent management, says E. L. Westover, federal and O. A. C. field dairyman in charge.

"Shine yer boots, air?" "No!" snapped the man. "Shine 'em so's yer can see yer face in 'em," urged the bootblack. "No, I tell you!" "Cow-ard!" hissed the bootblack.
