MILITARY POWERS

France's regular force is 732,000, consisting of conscripted French and colonial troops, and in addition it has 1,560,000 men enrolled in the reserves.

Italy's regular force numbers 350,000, but its reserve force consists of 4,527,000 men, including 3,000,000 mobile militia of the first line, 1,000,000 territorial militia as second line reserves and 114,000 carabinieri and royal guardiamon.

Japan's military forces comprise 1,918,000 men, including a regular army of 273,000, a first reserve of 552,000, a second reserve of 667,000, a national army, consisting of men between 37 and 49 years, of 246,000, and 200,000 men enrolled for replacements.

Great Britain's army of white troops totals 295,000 with 130,000, additional native and colonial troops plus 233,000 men in the territorial armies.

Italy's army expenditures for the current fiscal year were placed at 1,812,000,000 lire, France's at 1,200,000,000 francs, Great Britain's at £190,155,000 and Japan's at 210,000,000 yen.

The German army was 150,000 men, allowed until January 1, 1921, under the Versailles treaty. Germany also has 85,000 armed police and 500,000 additional emergency volunteers troops, but its army must eventually be reduced to 50,000 men under the treaty.

France has the greatest standing army in the world, but counting its active and reserve forces Italy is the world's leading military power.
