A Curious Dish.
The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a beafaco, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

Some Repartee.
We heard this one at a garage yesterday:
"You're a bum driver," says one chauffeur.
"Say," says the other, "what I know about automobiles would fill a library."
"Yes, and what you don't know about 'em would fill a morgue."—Cleveland Leader.

Diplomatic Objection.
"My dear," says the cigar manufacturer to his wife, "while it would be very pleasing to you to have a Paris gown, have you stopped to think of the criticisms and jests such a procedure would insure from my competitors? It would hurt my business, really."
"Nonsense! How could it?" asks the wife.
"Why, they would point me out as the man who didn't know the business any better than to allow a domestic filler to be put into an imported wrapper."—Life.

AMERICA'S BEST KNOWN JOURNALIST ON OSTEOPATHY.
Mr. Arthur Brisbane, editor-in-chief of the Hearst newspapers, one of the strongest factors in journalism and known to be the highest paid newspaper man in the world, receiving a salary of $72,000 a year, is a clear thinker on all topics of public importance. His editorial utterances are widely quoted. In the September 9th issue of his syndicate of newspapers reaching to both sides of the continent Mr. Brisbane printed this as his leading editorial:
Osteopathy is Thoroughly Scientific
Osteopathy is a science, and a science of the greatest importance. It cannot entirely replace medicine; it does not pretend to do so. It cannot, of course, replace or do away with surgery, and it does not pretend to do so.
But osteopathy cures, has cured and will cure many diseases; it will save many lives.
Osteopathy in many cases makes surgery and medicine unnecessary.
There is nothing of the quack or the transcendental faith healer about the able osteopath.
When he understands his profession, which implies that he understands thoroughly human anatomy, blood distribution and the distribution of the nervous force, the osteopath is a scientific man, valuable to the human race.
Osteopathy, briefly, cures disease by sending a full supply of blood to the parts of the body that are diseased by freeing nerves from pressure, due to defective structure of the skeleton, by stimulating through manipulation the activity of certain organs, notably of the liver and the spleen.
Many of the greatest living doctors of the old school recognize the great value of osteopathy, and all of the old school doctors, as they become modern and open-minded, will call osteopathy to their aid, just as the intelligent osteopath does not hesitate to call in the surgeon or the man skilled in materia medica.
We are not recommending our readers to resort to osteopathy in place of a trusted family physician. The selection of a good osteopath is more important and difficult than the selection of a good physician. For a bad osteopath may do much more harm than an incompetent doctor of the old school.
We simply demand justice for the osteopaths, with full opportunity to develop their wonderful and useful science. We trust that they will fight to the highest court for what they believe to be their rights.—Osteopathic Health.

Wills in Ancient Greece.
Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discontenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

Not at Fault.
Proprietor of the Clarion (angrily)—What did you mean by telling H. B. the man who asked if there was money in mushrooms, that there would be more money for him in toadstools? Editor of the Question and Answer Department (with air of one who knows he is in the right)—Because, sir, I looked up H. B. in the directory and found he was an undertaker.—Puck.

Refinement of Cruelty.
"That was a fierce punishment Swift got for overspeeding and not paying his fine."
"What did they do to him?"
"The prison yard was being repaved, and they put Swift on as driver of the steam roller."—Boston Transcript.

GRAND PRIZE WON BY OREGON APPLES
The growers have only five acres in bearing orchard and had not expected to exhibit at Spokane. It was not until a large part of their crop was marketed that they decided to enter a car. No particular selection of the whole crop was made for exhibit but only the best of the apples remaining in the orchard. Of course these were carefully culled and selected with reference to size and color.
Other Oregon growers won prizes at Spokane and the victories show in a most convincing way that this state is the home of the finest apples.

TIMES PROSPEROUS BACK IN ARKANSAS
They seem to grow anything they plant. I have seen some good looking fields of fall wheat. The plantations are covered with the cotton bales. Cotton is 17 cents, and one bale of 500 pounds to the acre shows pretty well. I have seen the ox team drawing the farm wagon, the cotton gin and the razor-back hog, but I will desist.
The weather is fine. I am stopping at a good hotel that compares with the Lewis hotel in Enterprise. Have sweet potatoes three times a day and corn bread if you like it.

TWO MYSTERIOUS RAILROAD SURVEYS
ing traversed by the crews could never be considered as tributary to Salmon City unless the line was intended to come to a western connection and thus become a trans-continental route.
"While the company has spent to date much over a half million dollars, no person has yet been able to clearly locate the parent organization. The man who first viewed out the Salmon river route, making the trip by boat from Salmon City to Lewiston, was J. B. Pope, an engineer whose home is in San Francisco. His trip was made three years ago. Later Chief Engineer Bacon of the Pittsburg & Gilmore, made two trips down the river by boat and the crews placed in the field this year it is understood have been working from the reconnaissance data secured by him. Bacon makes his headquarters at Salmon City and Armatoad. The work at this end of the line is now being handled by Division Engineer Roberts, who is making his headquarters at Grangeville. There is a constantly growing belief that the Pittsburg & Gilmore and the North Coast (the Strahorn road) are auxiliary organizations of the North-western and that the surveys will be connected up within the next few months."
